TO ELIMINATE AMATEUR LINE

Athletic Union to Adopt Important Amendment at Annual Meeting

Philadelphia, Nov. 3.—The legislation committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, of which Justice Bartow S. Weeks is chairman, has made its report upon the amendments to the Amateur Athletic Union constitution, by-laws, general and athletic rules, submitted to it. Secretary Frederick W. Rubien yesterday mailed copies of this report, as required by the constitution, to the delegates who will attend the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union to be held at the Missouri Athletic Association in St. Louis on Monday, November 1.

Probably the most important amendment reported by the legislation committee is the one permitting enlisted men in the United States service to compete among themselves during the existence of an actual state of war, without Amateur Athletic Union registration and without their amateur standing being affected by the fact that they compete with or against professionals, provided the prize competed for is other than money.

All Soldiers Eligible

This proposed amendment also provides for the participation of enlisted men in public competitions or exhibitions as members of teams against all-amateur teams without the amateur status of either team being affected. No objection to the adoption of this amendment is anticipated, as all officials of the Amateur Athletic Union feel that there should be no line drawn between the amateur and professional while wearing the uniform of the United States.

Reasons for Amendment

The sporting editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger says:

"The clause regarding team competitions allows for a team of enlisted men, some of whom may be professionals, to compete against an all-amateur club or college team in football or baseball, without affecting the amateur status of the club or college team or the amateurs on the team composed of enlisted men. The trouble which arose last spring over an athlete representing his club in a race, while recorded at Metropolitan Association headquarters as 'unattached,' although he had applied for a transfer to his club several days prior to the race, which transfer was placed on file and was not officially passed upon by the registration committee until after the race was contested, is responsible for the proposed amendment which provides that, when transfers are approved, the change of registration shall be effective from the date of the receipt of the application for transfer by the registration committee."

ARMY-NAVY GAME TO BE STAGED IN PHILADELPHIA; AMBULANCE PLAYS MARINES

Allentown, Pa., Nov. 3. — Football enthusiasts, scribes and critics throughout Pennsylvania and other eastern states are waiting with keen interest for the big gridiron battle which will be staged November 10 on Franklin Field, in Philadelphia, between the all-star teams representing the United States Marine Corps, and the United States Army Ambulance Service. The records made this season by these two big military gridiron machines have stamped them as two of the greatest football elevens in the game to-day, and their clash November 10 will decide the championship of the enlisted service of Uncle Sam.

Nation Represented

Both the Marine and Ambulance teams are representative in their lineups of the entire nation. In the Ambulance team from the concentration camp here are ex-college stars from twenty-three of the largest colleges and universities in the country —men who, in the midst of their careers as college athletes, answered the call to arms and enlisted in the service. The same thing may be said of the Marine eleven. It is conceded by football critics who have seen the two teams in action, that when they meet on Franklin Field, November 10, it will be a battle between the nation's topnotch gridiron players, and will be a genuine classic.

The Ambulance camp consists of about 5,500 men, most of whom enlisted in units recruited in colleges. Thus, when the call went forth for men to represent the camp on the gridiron, there appeared a long line of stars, who have made football reputations in the east, west, north and south. The Ambulance eleven has played five games and has won three, the last victory being against the Marines, October 2. The score was 27 to 0, and the game was filled with every kind of sensation known in football.

Stars With Marines

In the final game with the Marines the Ambulance machine will face such men as "Eddie" Mahan, the Harvard superstar; "Gravy" Williams, the famous University of Pennsylvania fullback; "Mike" Wilson, well-known Philadelphia end, and Pete Garlow, the Carlisle Indian tackle.

November 10 will be a red letter football day in Philadelphia. Nearly all of the men in the Ambulance camp will be transported to the Quaker City, and will hold a huge parade in Broad street before the game. It is planned to make the game a big society event in Philadelphia, as well as a football classic, the plans being carried out by the athletic committees of the Allentown camp and the Marines.

THE BIG GAME

Not for a pennant of blue or gold,
Not for a precious cup;
Not for a name when the tales are told
Where men of the sport world sup;
This is a game where the balls are lead—
Runs are the inches won;
This is a game where the best lie dead
After each inning's done.

Some of the players may see it through—
Knowing the best—and worst;
Some must go out while the game is new,
Dying ere they reach first;
Some, broken bodied, but whole and brave
Of soul, from the game will drop—
Fragments of men that the doctors save,
Gleanings from death's rich crop.

Some of them, brothers of yours and mine,
March to the field to-day;
Soon they will stand in the foremost line
Facing the last big play;
Still we must cheer through the thoughts of that,
Smile, though the spirit chafe,
Whisper to each as he goes to bat
"God grant you may reach home safe."

H. VARLEY.

The thing to applaud in football this season is not victory, but the spirit of those colleges willing to carry on against every odd, minus material and any chance to win. Victory itself will mean nothing whatsoever this season, due to the face that certain elevents have returned veterans where others have sent their entire rosters into khaki and the battle line. Football, encouraged at all army camps, now the big army game, was badly needed at every college, so those who have overcome tremendous handicaps to get any sort of team into the field deserve most of the credit.

No, You Never Can Tell

We have heard Fielding H. Yost figure in advance upon a strong eleven for more than one season, only to have all joy knocked out of life by class defections, injuries and ten or seventeen other details.

This season Yost looked for no great strength in his Michigan team. Most of his veterans had entered the service. There was nothing pink about Wolverine prospects.

Whereupon Michigan suddenly breaks out into the highway and begins trampling down everything in sight, including Nebraska's husky squad. Or, as Colonel Walter J. Travis remarked to us one day, "In this sporting whirl one can never tell when he is well off; or when he isn't."

Football Lure

Football surely holds the old guard in line. We think of Walter Johnson, Eddie Cicotte and Hal Chase as veterans, but they are mere debutants compared to A. A. Stagg, Hurry-up Yost, Foster Sanford, J. W. Heisman and others, who have been coaching for over twenty years. And they seem to ket keener about the game as the years drif by. Football has a certain dash and color that no other game has, barring polo. And it carries possibilities for strategy and team play beyond any of the lot, barring none of them.

It is this matter of tactics and strategy in the main which hold the lure of the veteran coach for so long. In this respect it is the next thing to war.

Carrying On

Cupid Black, captain of the 1916 Yale eleven, expects to pick up where he left off last season—i. e., on top of the football heap.

Black is now with the Naval Reserve at Newport, from which citadel he will launch one of the best machines in the country, including Barrett, of Cornell; Schlacter, of Syracuse; Gherish, of Dartmouth, and stars from Michigan and other points West.

The Newport motto, according to Captain Black, will shortly be as follows: "Kindly get out of the road or leave something to help remove the debris."

You Understand How It Is

A bloke or boob I'll stand for, but
I've never cared much for a mutt.

Aside from "informal football," the only thing informal about some of the golf we have seen this summer is the variety of the language employed in bunkers and cuppy lies.

Many are called, but few who are have better than a small pair.

Connie Mack may have made a wise move in selling Eddie Collins. But if we ever own a ball club and have a Collins on it we'll sell Collins the day after we've sold the franchise and the ballpark.

Huggins Gives Cards Chance to Sign Him

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 3.—That Miller Huggins did not throw down the Cardinals and the National League without giving Branch Rickey a chance to sign him before he accepted terms as manager of the New York Yankees last week, was revealed in Huggins' first inside story to-day after his arrival here from Chicago, telling why he quit the National League. Huggins came here to-day for a "good-by" to Rickey, but found the Cardinals' president was not in town.

"I'm going to give the story to the fans before I tell it to the many stockholders," said Huggins. "In brief, here it is: In September Rickey asked me if I was in a position to sign a contract with him; naturally believing that I had signed with the American League, I told him I was. That stunned him. His offer to me was $10,000 a year and 10 per cent. of the profits over $25,000. I didn't like this and I told him that my offer was a $2,000 raise over my 1917 salary. He said he couldn't give me this. I split this. I offered to sign at a raise of $1,000 and then I said that if I didn't finish in the first division next year I'd forfeit $1,000. Wasn't that fair? Rickey asked for time to consider my offer. Days passed and I didn't hear from him. On October 15 I told Rickey that I would let him know in ten days whether I would accept his offer. Then in New York I met Colonel Ruppert and his offer was so good that I couldn't refuse it. But I gave the Cardinals a chance to sign me."

Penn-State in Form For Dartmouth Game

State College, Pa., Nov. 3. — Penn-State's football squad met Dartmouth to-day in the first gridiron contest to be played between the institutions. With the exception of Captain Conover, the right end, and Wolfe, a quarterback, all of the Blue and White players are in good physical condition. The former's leg has bothered him since his injury in the West Virginia Wesleyan game. A three-day layoff this week has made him fit to lead his men against the Green, but it is questionable whether he will last long.

Charlie Way, the slender youth, whose elusive openfield running won the Wesleyan fracas, will start at quarterback in Wolfe's place. The coaches are banking on Way's speed and Pond's punting to be the high points in State's attack. Gross has been picked to play fullback because of his ability to back up the center of the line. State expects Dartmouth's backs to drive their attack through the forwards, from tackle to tackle, and Gross has been elected to stop it.

BAN JOHNSON TO REMAIN AT HOME

No Job in Army to Suit American League Leader; Meeting in Doubt

Washington, Nov. 3.—According to reports in local baseball circles yesterday, Ban B. Johnson's application to fight in the trenches in France has been pigeonholed in the archives of the appointment clerk's office in the War Department.

There is no denying that the president of the American League wanted to get into the war and do his bit with the "red-headed gunners somewhere over there" in "No Man's Land," but it seems that the government officials at Uncle Sammy's army factory could find no jobs which would fit the qualifications of the American League boss.

No Meeting Called

The American League's annual meeting was scheduled to be held three weeks after the world's series, but no date has as yet been set for it by the big mogul. From present prospects it appears as if Ban Johnson will remain in baseball next season.

The questioning of the shortening of the playing schedule for the major leagues and the possibilites of the third major league as a war measure, will be the big items of interest to both the major leagues and minor league moguls at this meeting.

The howl has gone up from most of the owners in the American League on the shortening of the schedule, while President Hickey, of the American Association, has already called a meeting of his body to be held in Milwaukee for next Sunday, so that he will be well posted on the situation when the major moguls hold their session.

Williams and Rensselaer in Cross-Country Run

Troy, N. Y., Nov. 3.—For the first time in the nistory of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute its cross-country team will compete in a match race with the Williams College harriers at Williamstown, Mass., Saturday. Although the Polytechnic has trained cross-country teams for four or five years, this will be its first intercollegiate dual contest. Williams has a splendid coterie of distance runners, but the Rensselaer team shows good form and will make the more experienced college men extend themselves. The race, which will be run to-morrow aftrnoon, will be over a course between five and six miles in length. Seven men will enter in each team, the first five to score. The Institute team will include T. L. Smith, '19, of Oxford; J. L. Smith, '20, of Oakville, Conn.; Louis T. Shannon, '19, of Pittsburgh; Arthur R. Graves, '19, of Newport; Joseph Harris, '20; Edward Judson, '20, of Plainville, Conn. and Walter C. Sutton, '21, of Pleasantville.

Supervisor of Athletics W. C. Batchelor is negotiating for another dual intercollegiate cross-country match with the Union College team before the R. P. I.-Union football game at Schenectady, Saturday, November 10.

The Commonwealth five, of this city, won a very interesting game from the Monarchs, of Sunbury, score 32 to 29. The game was attended by a large crowd. An extra five-minute was played. SOLDIER HURT AT CAMP

Waynesboro, Pa., Nov. 3.—Harold Rumberger, son of A. E. Rumberger, who is now at Camp Meade, with the first quota of drafted men, suffered a fractured shoulder in a football game last week.

Three Football Stars at Rensselaer 'Poly'

Troy, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Several runs of twenty to fifty yards in an intercolnlegiate football contest go a long way toward breaking up the close-in, brute force traditions of the gridiron and give the game that spectacular interest supposed to be sought by the rules revisionists.

That's what halfback and acting captain Harry Parrott (upper portrait) is doing for the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute team this season. Shifted from end to backfield, he is proving unusually speedy in the getaway and is perhaps the leading collegiate exponent of the use of the straight arm in bowling over would-be tacklers. He scored two touchdowns against St. Lawrence University eleven last Saturday. Abetting in the interference and paving the way for these runs are the two Rensselaer Poly ends, Jacob Frank, of Newark, N. J., (center) a main cog in the team's defense, and "Phil" Sweet, of Buffalo, the team's punter and a star player in every contest. Both of these ends have proved particularly speedy in receiving and incepting forward passes.

WELLY'S CORNER

A victory to-day for Tech will give the Maroons a hold as contender for the state scholastic football championship. Greensburg with its six-year rule, had been a big winner for several seasons.

Games at Island Park will start at 2.45 p. m. until further notice. Why not make it 2.30 and play scrub team games on Friday.

Stephen A. Brady, for six years captain of the old champion Metropolitan baseball team of New York city, died at Hartford, yesterday, aged 59. Brady played with Hartford in the seventies when that city was a member of the National League. He led the Metropolitans in an interleague series with Providence in 1885 and was the star of the series, although his nine was beaten. He played first or second base equally well. He was a beginner when the Metropolitans played in Harrisburg against the High Boys. "Charley" Fleck, now day desk officer at the police station, was on the local team and remembers Brady as a real star.

If you want to know anything about old-time records call on "Charley" Fleck. He was the first real professional baseball player Harrisburg had.

"Pop" Kelchner will quit St. Louis Americans as scout. He was on the job for six years. There is a report in sport circles that "Charley" will become a magnate and manage a major league team. He is still coach at Albright College, but may also quit this work if he becomes a manager.

An Associated Press dispatch says, "The Swedish Amateur Athletic Association has officially accepted John Zander's new world's record of 3.54:7 for the 1,500-meter run. The old record of 3.55.8 was made by the American runner Kiviat in the preliminaries of the Stockholm Olympic games in 1912. Zander's splendid performance is the more remarkable from the fact that he ran the entire distance alone."

The proposal to stage a football game between the elevens of the Universities of Chicago and Michigan for the benefit of the Red Cross may result in the revival of one of the most important of the Middle Western gridiron classics, according to an Associated Press dispatch. These two institutions first met in football in 1892, and since that date have played fourteen games, of which Michigan has won nine and Chicago five. The Wolverines led in points with a total of 199 to Chicago's 102. Michigan has held the Maroon elevens scoreless four times, while Chicago shut out the Ann Arbor University but once and this was in the famous and final game between these universities played in 1902 when Chicago forced Michigan to make a safety; the only score of the contest. Michigan's greatest string of victories was won between 1901 and 1904 when the Yost warriors took four games in a row by scores of 22 to 0; 21 to 0; 28 to 0 and 22 to 12.
