Thousands of Dollars Coming For Training of Teachers in Specialties

Word has been received at the State Department of Public Instruction that the Federal Government is about to forward the first quarterly instalment of national aid for vocational education in Pennsylvania.

The first quarterly allowance for those teaching agricultural subjects will be $7,500 for home economics, trade and industrial subjects, $13,886.50, and for preparing teachers, supervisors and directors of agricultural subjects, $10,455.33.

Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, says that the state has made notable strides in its agricultural educational work and ranks among the leaders in the country.

The Legislature made the appropriations for the teaching of agriculture and the money coming from the two sources will enable material progress to be made in the next eighteen months.

STEVENS TAKES CHARGE OF WORK

Agricultural Expert Will Keep Things Moving For Greater Food Production

The State Chamber of Commerce to-day announced that F. H. Stevens, former agricultural expert for the Lehigh Valley Railroad, who had been made chief of the agricultural bureau of the State Chamber, would undertake a series of visits throughout the state to stimulate sheep-raising and to give farmers benefit of his experience in adapting certain crops to Pennsylvania soils.

Mr. Stevens served as agriculturist for the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company for eight years and during this time has worked very closely with every agricultural organization along the lines of the railroad to help agriculture from the standpoint of production, transportation and market.

Much of this work has been done in Pennsylvania, where he has assisted the agricultural societies in outlining policies for the development of the state.

The work which he has begun will be continued and enlarged. Vast areas of cut over lands are making more serious our summer droughts, increasing unseemly gorges and giving a desolate appearance to many sections of our state.

They are producing no revenue nor is there sufficient activity in rebuilding these lands to assure its suitability for agriculture.

The problem of marketing our farm produce economically is still unsolved and the close of the war new conditions will arise which will require concerted action of all to avoid great confusion and waste.

Mr. Stevens is a specialist on soil adaptability, as it was among his former duties to stimulate the production of farm products along the lines of the Lehigh Valley railroad.

The problem which the farmer has to face as to the adaptability of his soil for the various crops is more or less of an individual one, but, wherever possible, it is planned to give to the farmer the benefit of the experience of the experts of the State Chamber regarding soil adaptability.

A special effort will be made by the agricultural bureau of the State Chamber to increase the flocks of sheep in Pennsylvania. There is much land which is suitable for sheep-raising and it is highly important that this animal industry be revived every encouragement.

The passage of the law of 1917 and which goes into effect on January 15, 1918, will aid in sheep-raising, as it will cut down the number of dogs in the country districts, many of which prey upon sheep.

Many other problems will arise to demand serious consideration of every person interested in the agricultural development of our state. It is hoped and expected that consumers, transportation companies and produce dealers as well as producers will be able to apply this.

Mr. Stevens and join with the State Chamber in helping him with these problems.

Election Holiday at Meade Refused

Camp Meade, Admiral, Md., Nov. 6.—Major General Kuhn yesterday denied the request of James Franklin, commissioner-at-large in charge of voting for the Pennsylvania soldiers, that a holiday be declared in the camp to-day so the Keystone soldiers might ballot.

In refusing the request the division commander took occasion to pillory the "business-as-usual" and "voting-as-usual" slogans, which he said had atrophied the war nerve of America and might be said to threaten the life of the nation itself.

A moment or two before Commissioner Franklin asked for the holiday a copy of a newspaper had been handed to the General, which gave a list of the first American dead, wounded and missing on the western front in France.

Kuhn looked at the list and there was a suspicious mist in his eyes. Commissioner Franklin approached him and said: "General, the state authorities would like to know if you will give the Pennsylvania men a holiday tomorrow so they may vote?"

"No, sir," was the instant response. "We will give them ample time to vote, that's all. Persons in civil life have no idea of the training these men will undergo. They think soldiers are a lot of carpenters who work eight hours a day and a half holiday on Saturday and then go home and say 'to blazes with the boss' until Monday morning."

Forsaken German; Gets Record-Breaking Crowd

Ashland, Wis., Nov. 6.—Deserted by his congregation when he hung a small American flag in his pulpit, the Rev. J. H. Bietfeld, of the German Evangelical Church, decided to abandon the German language.

He announced that he would use the church for American service and Sunday recorded the largest attendance that has ever been known at any Ashland church.

He called it a flag service, and it was the opening of a new career for an American Evangelical church. More than 300 former members of various German churches declared they were willing to join an American-speaking congregation of their denomination, and formation of a new church body. The new congregation voted to have a big flag carried into church every Sunday with the choir.

American Flag Flies From Top of Penn-Harris Hotel

Workmen on the new Penn-Harris Hotel, Third and Walnut streets, showed a true American spirit yesterday when they raised a large flag on the top of the tower.

There are about 150 men on the job, who contributed to the fund for the flag. The flag-raising was a patriotic affair, and attracted a large number of spectators. There were patriotic speeches by Baneroff Theodore Foley, electrical superintendent of H. B. Foley Company, Washington, and Roy C. Thomas, of the National Fireproofing Company, Washington.
