War Activities in Capital Increase the Population

Washington.—The population of the City of Washington has increased at least 50,000 since the war began. It is natural that the capital city, the center of governmental activities, should show this marked effect of the most extensive preparation for war ever undertaken by any country.

At the request of the United States Civil Service Commission the Washington Chamber of Commerce has undertaken the work of directing to suitable rooming and boarding places the new arrivals who are not acquainted in the city.

Stenographers and typewriters make up a large part of the additions to the force at Washington. Thousands have been appointed and thousands more are needed.

MULE COMMITS SUICIDE RATHER THAN BE SHOT

Bedford, Ind.—Rather than be shot to death because a veterinarian had pronounced her crazy, Maude, a mule valued at $250, belonging to George Hays, a Lawrenceport farmer, committed suicide.

As there was no known cure for a crazy mule, Sanders, a veterinarian who was called to attend her, decided she should be shot. Her executioner went for a revolver, but before he returned the mule had flipped the rope around her neck, and lunging backward, choked herself to death.

New Cigaret Packages Contain Fewer 'Smokes'

A universal protest from consumers and sellers of cigarettes over the war tax being collected with penalties has resulted in a reduction of the number of cigarettes in each pack. The merchants began to find themselves in desperate plight for change, pennies apparently being hoarded up. Equally irritating was the process for customers and hence the manufacturer has now returned to the old prices with reduced contents.

Burns & Co.—Largest Furniture Store in This Section of the State

The Grieg numbers have been heard often, so need no comment here. The "Variations de Concert," by Joseph Bonnett, the French organist, proved to be a show piece for the organ and organist, but there is absolutely no originality in the composition itself.

The group of Russian compositions contained "Chanson Pastorale" by Ivan Lynerik; "Prelude Pastorale" by Anatole Liadoff, and the C sharp minor prelude by Rachmanninoff. All three were interesting. The first two were short, of exquisite workmanship and delicacy, and suggested the folk song as their source.

Mr. Baldwin is an organist of considerable ability. He has splendidly technical which he uses with fine taste and discernment. His pedal-work was accurate and firm and the whole program reflected musicianship of a high order.
