

fields-the leaves have fallen, fruits and grain have been gathered. Out in the haunts of nature all is quiet and restful-in reverence the trees seem to stand. The world looks to our fair land for her supplies and we enjoy the largest harvest ever known. So tomorrow let us give thanks for the blessings we enjoy-for a happy land, peace and plenty, for opportunities to live, grow and attain to the ideal life, in government and citizenship. We know that He who rules over all
