The government expects an even more noteworthy response to the offering of War Savings Certificates and Thrift Stamps than it has had to its appeals for the purchase of Liberty Bonds or other agencies for raising money to carry on the war. The principle involved is even farther reaching and more vital than that in the other measure, for in the shooting.

The Evening News says that at a test of the presentative meeting o ng forces will consist of the 841 moorporated banks and trust companies and the national banks in orty-eight counties of the state, and other means will be put in operation when these are going. There will be committee chairman, a man well snown in the section, who will in urn appoint a working force consisting of various branches of labor, pusiness fraternal, religious, educaknown in the section, who will in turn appoint a working force consisting of various branches of labor, business, fraternal, religious, educational and civic groups, so that all the people will be represented. Certain counties have already been furnished with a leader, as George E. Lloyd, Carlisle, for Cumberland; C. M. Taylor, for Huntingdon; William H. Greenough, Sunbury, for Northumberland; John C. Motter, New Bloomfield, for Perry, and O. Rowland Read, for York county.

Commenting on the scope of the baby bond sale, Mr. Cassatt says:

"This sale is going to be distinct from anything ever attempted in this country in the line of financial operations. While the big banks and trust companies are to have their part in it, the sale will reach right down until every sales agency will be employed to sell these certificates that are to raise $2,000,000,000 from the people of America.

"Post offices, drugstores, retail stores, cigar stores, schools and colleges, saving societies and every oher agency that can be put to work will be certified to make these sales. The government feels that it must employ the selling agencies that are closest to the people. In this way the sale can and will be made a success."

It is pointed out that money is doubly useful in these savings as it not only draws compound interest of four per cent. in five years, but the money can be claimed at any time during that period and still net fair interest during the time held of a bit legs than three per cent.
