Enforce New Law—Enforcement of the state nursery inspection law, which became operative this autumn, has resulted in a number of prosecutions of men who refused to comply with provisions of the act laid down by Secretary of Agriculture, Charles tions of men who refused to comply with provisions of the act laid down by Secretary of Agriculture Charles E. Patton, who is charged with administration of the act of 1917. Most of these men were served with notices and when they refused to comply the law was invoked.

Prof. J. G. Sanders, the state zoologist, says that the large nursery establishments co-operated in the administration of the law and opened their plants to inspection and removed such as were declared dangerous by the inspectors. Some of the smaller plants, however, made some trouble. Prof. Sanders predicted much better conditions in tree stock as a result of the new law.

Offer 39,000 Acres—Offers for sale to the state of 39,000 acres of woodland for addition to the state forest reserves will be laid before the Commission tomorrow, but owing to the figures at which the land is held it is not probable that many purchases will be made. Some of the largest racts are in Union, Lycoming and adjoining counties and were operated by a large lumber company.
