Seven Marriageable Girls Chosen From Workmen's Compensation Bureau

Little Dan Cupid, not satisfied with all his hurry-up war weddings, was looking about one day for further prey and happened to glance through Capitol Hill. When he came to the offices of Statistics and Information of the Workmen's Compensation Bureau he paused, and straight and swift shot a lot of arrows regardless of where they were going.

"Crash," went some hearts, and the next thing came weddings, six of them, and another engagement just announced, all of the brides girls of the department who have married during the past few months. First came the wedding of Miss Henrietta Grimes and Arthur Afferbach, of Philadelphia, where the couple is residing; Miss Mary Wall married the Rev. Robert Wolf, a young Lutheran minister, filling his first charge at Berwick, Miss E. Harry and Sherwood P. Watts, were both attaches of the department, and are residing in town; Miss Anna Nissley married Fred B. Harris, of this city, early in October, and they are housekeeping at Second and Hamilton streets; Miss Flora Galbraith went to Elbow, Arizona, for her health some time ago and while there married Daibert Wiley of that city. She is here for a brief time and will soon join her husband in the West. Miss Catherine Church, who married Robert Yohn, of the Yohn Brothers music house, this city, last June, told of her marriage just a day or two ago, and pretty Miss Alice LeCompte gave a tea last Saturday to announce her engagement to Dr. Robert M. Hurch with the Bathys Steel Company at Steelton. The marriage will be an early spring event. The gift of the department to its brides has always been a handsome clock with chimes, and it is said that there will be several more candidates for the gift before long.
