The Yukon Trail

By William MacLeod Raines

For an hour before the Hannah reached Katma Miss O'Neill was busy getting her little brood ready.

Her heart was as tender as a Madonna to these lambs so ill fitted to face a frigid waste.

One glance at their father, who introduced himself to Miss O'Neill as John Husted, relieved her mind greatly.

It came on to rain in the afternoon. Heavy clouds swept across from the mountains, and the sudden squall opened like a sluiceway.

Of the two bridge-tables all the players were old-timers except Mrs. Mallory.

It easily loosens congestion and drives out that cold in the head, throat or chest.

Bringing Up Father

THIS IS A FINE HOUR TO GET HOME - WHERE CAN YOU GO AT THIS HOUR AND WHO WERE YOU WITH? SHUT UP! DON'T TALK BACK TO ME!

VERY FEW WOMEN WOULD STAND FOR WHAT I DO - WHEN I THINK OF THE MEN I COULD HAVE MARRIED ETC - ETC

SAY - WILL YOU STOP TALKING IN YOUR SLEEP?

PARDON ME FOR INTERRUPTING YOU - MAGGIE!

"Oh, Frances, I miss that cat more than I can say," sighed Helen, as she watched Mahomet stretching before the open fire.

"And then along came little Damares, and poor Mahomet was shifted again."

"Well, go on, Frances; you have not told me what it's all about yet."

"I know what's going to come," said Helen, smiling. "He hates to be left alone and he always cries."

"Cries! Well, my dear, according to the people upstairs, he must have howled."

"And that's just what I did. I thought that some one had been annoyed hearing the cat cry, and had slipped some poison under the door."

"What do you make of this?" Helen exclaimed. "But, Frances, how on earth did it get there?"

"Easy enough, my dear. Notice the way the door from the hall into the studio has drawn away from the floor; why, there must be nearly three inches of space there."

"I should have thought of just one thing."

"And that's just what I did. I thought that some one had been annoyed hearing the cat cry, and had slipped some poison under the door."
