Ambassador Honored at Annual Dinner of Pennsylvania Society

The red, white and blue and the blue, white and red—the star spangled banner and the tricolor—shone with equal luster over a thousand members and guests of the Pennsylvania Society of New York who dined in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf

Words of affection for France and of America's opportunity to repay its obligation to the land of Lafayette were spoken by Theodore Roosevelt, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, James W. Gerard and the chairman, James M. Beck, Replying, M. Jusserand said:

Roosevelt on War's Object. Colonel Roosevelt was widely applauded when he said it was not sufficient for America to make war upon Germany and Austria; we must fight all of Germany's vassal allies, including Bulgaria and Turkey; we must see that France gets back Alsace and Lorraine; we must see that the Slav peoples are made free; the Hungarians, the Italians of Austria, the Poles, the Bohemians and the rest. His speech amounted to a statement of his conception of the only possible terms of peace.

What with the presence in balcony boxes of 200 members of the Pennsylvania Women's Society, who had a dinner of their own in another part of the hotel and then went to the ballroom to hear the speaking, and of about 1,000 men crowding corridors and anterooms as well as the banquet hall, it was the Pennsylvania Society's biggest annual dinner.

Francine embodies all of loveliness and all of valor; beauty is her handmaiden and strength her shield-bearer; and the shining courage of her daughters has matched the courage of her dauntless sons. For three and a half terrible years she has walked high of heart through the valley of the shadow. Her body is in torture, her forehead is alight with the beauty of the morning. Never in all history has there been such steadfast loyalty in the doing of dangerous duty, such a devotion to country, such splendor of service and of sacrifice. And great shall be her reward; for she has saved the soul of the world.

All Should Eat Heartily of the Perishable Foods

Washington, Dec. 11.—The food administration is encouraging free sale for perishable foods and consumption of perishable foods and has placed the ban on only such foodstuffs as wheat, meat, fats and sugar, which must be saved for exportation.

"Foods of the perishable products group," says the Food Administration in a statement issued to-day, "are essential to nutrition and their continued production, distribution and consumption are vital in view of national and international necessities. The Food Administration desires to emphasize these facts and to assure all producers and handlers of milk and dairy products, poultry and eggs, fish, fruits, potatoes and vegetables that no restrictions have been placed on such food materials, or are liable to be."

REPAIR BOILERS

Unable to get enough heat for the Courthouse by steam, the County Commissioners have started repairs on the boilers in the basement of the building. One of these has been fired and is now in use, while the other will probably be started in a day or two. Commissioner H. C. Wells is in charge of the work. Both of the boilers had not been used for about nineteen years, but are still in good condition, and can be used in case of other cold waves during the winter.
