RED CROSS NEEDS AS A LITTLE GIRL SEES THEM

GROWN folks are not the only ones who realize the needs of the Red Cross. The other day William F. Bilzer, of Bowman & Co., received from his young daughter in Buffalo, N. Y., an article on Red Cross necessities that will bear the study of older people. The little girl wrote it as a school essay, sent it to her father for his approval, and it fell quite accidentally into the hands of the Telegraph's Red Cross reporter. Here is the little Miss Bilzer sizes up the situation: "The American Red Cross needs, at this time, more than it ever needed before, the comprehending support of the American people and to the facilities which could be placed at its disposal to perform its tasks. It will be our duty of mercy for this struggle."

Bulk of Meade Men to Go January 3

Indications are that the 1,400 men needed to make up Philadelphia's shortage of drafted men for Camp Meade will not go to the cantonment until January 3, although men in other counties tributary to the Maryland camp will be sent on regular trains in small numbers between now and the first of the year. Camp Meade is the only one which has men due it under shortages in earlier movements and to replace rejected men. Nothing has been determined regarding the remainder of the men to fill the first quota for Camp Meade or Lee. All of the bids received to-day at the State Army Board for the rental of the Pottstown Armory have been rejected. The bids will be asked by units and probably be opened in January.
