which pleased the audience. Features of the second part were a Hindu serpent dance by Roshanara: "After the War" another creation by her, Marionettes Expression of Music by Itow, who was called for an encore, and the closing number "Tragedy of the Festival Lights."

Straight from its recordbreaking run of fifty-seven weeks at the Playhouse in New York, "The Man Who Came Back," William A. Brady's big success, will come to the Orpheum, where it will run for two days, Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee.

This play, which is by Jules Eckert Goodman and founded on the story of the orchestra accompaniment was that the majority of the music was in a plaintive minor key, which with some of the special scenic effects mad a pleasing impression on those in the audience who could appreciate the artistic ideas of Roshanara.
