Go Away With

It would be folly to send to a distant city for water when it is here in abund-ance; it would be unwise to suffer delay and inconven-ience in an effort to pro-cure any commodity that is yours by the simple reaching out and taking hold. From a slightly differing view-point it is also true that you invite delay and disappointment, with no saving in money-value by going out of town with your printing. It has been proved so often that wise
