"Unwritten Law" Will Be Defense in Case of Lakewood Oil Operator

Cleveland, Jan. 11.—The "unwritten law" is expected to be invoked in the defense of Elmer Hupp, oil and gas operator, who was being held in the county jail to-day on a charge of fire degree murder after having confessed to police that he shot and killed Charles L. Joyce in the Hupp home in Lakewood last night.

According to Hupp's statement to Lakewood police he shot and killed Joyce when he found him in his home last night and because of attentions Joyce had evidenced toward Hupp's wife.

"It was because of my love for my wife that I shot Joyce," said Hupp. Hupp is a partner in the Rushville Drilling and Producing Company with extensive oil and gas holdings in Western States.

Philadelphia Industries Feel the Lack of Coal

Philadelphia, Jan. 11.—Philadelphia was within forty-eight hours of going lightless, trolleyless and trainless yesterday because of a coal shortage revealed by the Philadelphia Electric Company...

The company, which furnishes electric lighting for the city and power for the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and the electrified portion of the Pennsylvania Railroad from Broad Street Station to Paoli, was down to two days' fuel supply.

The company had two coal barges tied up in the ice at Horseshoe Bend in the Delaware river. When it sent word of its predicament to City Hall two ice-breaking tugs were dispatched in a hurry.
