"Democracy is on trial. Autocracy, monarchial boastfulness, the brute force of military despots, have challenged civilization; they have torn loose their gigantic engines of destruction; they have strewn the land with mangled bodies of brave men and made the landscape a vast area of wreckage and ruin.

"This country has taken up the gauntlet. We have accepted the challenge in defiance of the war lords, that 'the world must be made safe for democracy."

that 'the world must be made safe for democracy.'

"Therefore, the issue that presents itself is, Shall the people rule, or must they continue to bow before the autocratic rule of military despects? The answer is not far to seek. The people are growing more enlightened; they are beginning to resist the autocratic rule of despotic rulers; higher and nobler ideals are slowly taking the place of imperialism; democracy is growing stronger than autocracy; the rule, by and for the people is surely supplanting the rule by divine right of kings. The ambitions and bloodthirsty war lords of Europe have recognized the onrushing tide of democracy and for the last fifty years have been preparing to meet it, and to-day the whole civilized world stands aghast at their bloody deeds. They have launched our whole civilized structure into a sea of blood and murder, unprecedented in all the annals of history. In their thirst for increased power, empire supremacy, territorial conquest and imperialistic rule, they have challenged the combined forces of democracy. "Slowly the people have advanced

"Slowly the people have advanced their ideals, through fire and sword, through the most abominable persecutions and frightfulness, the peasant class have slowly fought their way and are now surely approaching the goal of democracy and freedom, atriumph of civilization.

"If the central powers are victorious, democracy will have received its death blow, the progress of centuries will count for naught, and civilization's countless heroes and martyrs will have died in vain.

"In the name of God, is all the blood that has been shed by valient men, women and children, is all the blood that France has poured out on her battlefields, are all the sacrifices or Britain, Italy and Russia to be wasted? I love peace as much as any man on this earth, and I pray for peace, that we will make peace,—when?

"When the army of the German empire is rolled back to Berlin; when the fields and homes of France and Italy arises the cloud of battle and we hear the shout of victory; when bleeding Belgium arises from her desolation and cries, 'Glory! Glory!'; when we hear the voice of Poland shouting independence, when we hear by the right of self-determination, Siberia, Montenegro and all the races crying, Liberty! Liberty through the wrath and the combined efforts of the forces of civilization."
