

YANKS WITHOUT TOBACCO FEEL WANT KEENLY

Men in Trenches Constantly Asking For Supply From Home

If you see a complexion that's peaches and cream. Remember things always are n't just what they seem: Just take a good look and come out of your dream.— It's camouflage.

If the opposite player leans back in his chair. Looks happy and whistles a popular air. Why, just ask the dealer for all he can spare.— It's camouflage.

The reason the Kaiser, the silly old ass is steadily losing is simply, alas, He never got out of the primary class.— In camouflage.

There's too much camouflage; that's the fact. "Brainless Bates," the shifty poet from Poetsville, might have continued a little longer and said something about the folks who are paning the smokers-for-soldiers fund. Is that a camouflage, or what is it? Do they mean what they say and write? If so how can they overlook the sentiments and opinions of a great and good man such as Charles Kingsley. Here is what this distinguished scholar and ecclesiastic said on one occasion:

"For when all things were made none was made better than tobacco — to be a lone man's companion, a bachelor's friend, a hungry man's food, a sad man's cordial, a wakeful man's sleep and a chilly man's fire."

No camouflage about Charles Kingsley. He meant that and was not afraid to say it. So do the soldiers mean it when they write so constantly telling how impossible the foreign tobacco is to an American and what a comfort it is to lean back in the rare idle moment and breathe in the aroma from some good old Virginia weed. Don't let any one hand out camouflage to you, the kind that pretends to prove that tobacco is killing off the poor Sammys by hundreds. You take Sammys word and then respond with cheer, for you will have your reward.

Farmer Dragged Several Miles by Runaway Team

Liverpool, Jan. 16.—Merle Sarver, of Perry valley, while driving to town on Sunday, met with an accident which may prove fatal. His horses becoming frightened they started on a run, throwing the sleigh over and dragging Mr. Sarver several miles before help came. Dr. W. G. Morris was called at once and found his condition very serious. Though no bones are broken, other injuries are such that little hopes are entertained for his recovery.

MISS LEMER TO PLAY Miss Sara Lemer, violinist, will play several solos at the Y. M. C. A. men's mass meeting Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Robert B. Reeves, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has announced that Walter M. Chandler, Congressman from New York, will also be a feature of the Sunday meeting. He will speak on "The Trial of Christ From a Lawyer's Standpoint."

Enola School Children Become Red Cross Members

Enola, Pa., Jan. 16.—Pupils of the Adams street school showed their patriotism by taking up subscriptions to join the Red Cross. The money raised was given to S. G. Hendford, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who had charge of the drive here. The faculty of the school which made up of Mrs. Russel, principal; Miss Mable Myers, first grade; Miss Edith Myers, first and second grades; Miss Edna Porter, third and fourth grades and Mrs. Apple, fifth grade, had charge of soliciting the money from the children. As the parents of most of the children are members of the Red Cross, Mr. Hendford will endeavor to secure Red Cross buttons for each child.

HEADQUARTERS IS HIVE OF INDUSTRY

"You notice there is no bickering, no trifling disputes, no gossiping, no idling, no trifling with the work, we are inspired with a great cause. We work, work, work, and we talk little. We turn out what the Red Cross headquarters orders. That is to say we do the best we can, and the only demand made that has not been entirely filled is that for 29,000 knitted orders which were to be delivered within three months. We have now about two thousand people knitting for us in this district which includes Harrisburg, part of Dauphin county and parts of Cumberland and Perry counties. But they have not been able to dispose of this very considerable demand."

The Task One hundred women are working every day at the Walnut street factory under a strict system which is maintained without rebuke or discord by "bosses" who never before had experience in handling industry. Many a masculine overseer might learn things from these efficient women who direct and manufacture an incredible amount of things.

To say that in the month of November the local Red Cross completed 24,878 surgical dressings conveys much information to the reader because he does not know what care and incessant labor is required to make the gauze work alone is a stupendous proposition. Under the direction of Mrs. Chandler Hale, Mrs. Whitney and Miss Mary Pearson 408 surgical dressings were made including almost every technical sort of a bandage used by surgeons. This task was so big that Mrs. Gilbert cast about for some swift method of cutting this gauze and she now has secured a remarkable electric cutter which snips through a bundle of this tricky goods, saving much labor. The surgical dressings department was really the foundation of the development of the Harrisburg Chapter. Due to the leadership of Miss Anna McCormick this branch has increased its weekly output from one box 10 days ago.

Much Help Needed The knitting feature of Red Cross work is an interesting one for it calls out help from all sorts of unexpected places. The committee handling this was organized under Mrs. George Matson and is now directed by Mrs. Hoar. It is estimated that about 2,000 persons are contributing their time and skill to knit sweaters, socks, mufflers, wristlets, helmets and other woollen necessities. Among them is Mrs. Jennie Gold, totally blind, who never fails to turn in several pairs of bed sox every day. Another unique workman is Mr. Febrer, nearly ninety years old, whose work is second to none.

A great amount of the knitting is done at the chapter's workshop on the second floor where electric machines turn out woollen socks at a rapid rate and they are firmly, strongly made. The ladies sew in this room also, and have the advantage of electricity in running their machines. An idea of the bulk of this business may be had from the fact that in one day Mrs. Mercer B. Tate, chairman of the purchasing committee, bought and gave out five hundred pounds of yarn. It costs about $3 for the wool in one sweater. The new materials for the most part is bought in Harrisburg, to the end of patronizing home stores.

Much Raw Material Estimating on the basis of money contributed and spent Mrs. Herbert yesterday reckoned that probably about $30,000 had been spent in the last year for raw materials, and, adding to this the value of the labor, $15,000, she arrives at a total of $45,000 as the value of the output of the Harrisburg Chapter in twelve months.

Another feature of this great industry that is being developed more each day is the civilian relief which was organized under Mrs. William Laubenstein. "We aim now," explained Mrs. Gilbert in speaking of this department, "to show that the Red Cross is the friend of the soldier's family. War friends would be a more appropriate name than civilian relief. We began by giving Thursday afternoon to hearing complaints from mothers, wives and other relatives concerning the wage earner at the front. On Thursdays now there are as many as a hundred in waiting. The Red Cross makes a point of keeping in touch with the men at the camps and so we are able to adjust many a trouble that threatens to break up a family. We even advance money in cases where the family is destitute and the pay has not arrived from the Government. To show how intimately this system works the other day we supplied two Harrisburg soldiers at a southern camp with all comforts and arrangement. As men from our home town were permitted to make this special gift, and it is the purpose of this chapter to look after Harrisburg men especially until the end of the war."

Suburban Towns Help The total production of the local chapter is of course only possible with the aid of the auxiliaries who comprise a membership of 5,000 people all over nearby. Under the direction of Mrs. Lew Palmer this vast aid contributed 29,096 surgical dressings, 1,343 garments, 2,124 knitted articles, a total of 32,563 articles. Following is a complete list of the auxiliary towns and their chairmen: Berksburg, Mrs. L. V. Hoover; Dauphin, Mrs. Clara Bergstesser; Duncannon, Mrs. B. Stiles Duncan; Elizabethville, Mrs. H. H.
