KNITS RAPIDLY WITH ONE HAND

Broken Wrist Does Not Prevent Young Woman From Knitting For Red Cross

MISS ADA C. BEAUTER

Stories are told throughout the country of all sorts and conditions of people knitting for the Red Cross, little tots, the aged and even the blind, but the first tale of a one-handed knitter comes right from this city.

Just a week ago as Miss Ada C. Beauter, of the State Department of Health was tripping along on the ice one evening, she suddenly slipped and fell, breaking a small bone of the left wrist, which will incapacitate her for office duties for some time. The break had hardly been set when she decided that she wasn't going to be idle for weeks, and being fond of knitting, planned for a way to continue her help in the Red Cross.

Various experiments were tried, and finally a carpenter's vise was fastened to the arm of a chair, to firmly hold one knitting needle while the right hand skillfully manipulates the other. A khaki scarf was "cast on" at the Red Cross rooms and Miss Beauter finds she can work as evenly and rapidly as ever. Some of the idle folks who have the use of both hands ought to be stirred by Miss Beauter's example and "get busy" themselves.

Central Student Wins Honor David Vernon Widdar, a Central graduate, class of '16, who was one of the commencement speakers, is on the honor roll of the State College. Postmaster Sites Speaks at Central In chapel Friday, Postmaster Sites gave a short talk on the Baby Bond campaign which is to be staged at Central next week. In his address he said that central had always done its share in the various campaigns for war funds and mentioned the Liberty Bond campaign. He suggested that students buy six or twenty-five cent stamps and with the addition of twelve cents turn them over to the post office and then they will receive a five-dollar Baby Bond. He pointed out that this is an unusual profitable investment. The stamps mature January 1, 1923, and bear five per cent interest. They may be withdrawn at any time the holder desires.

Every person must make sacrifices, and this is the chance for the school children to do their share. Parents are urged to purchase Liberty Bonds, but it is expected that every student can purchase at least one Baby Bond. Mr. Sites read an appeal from Secretary of Treasurer McCauley on the necessity for thrift as it applies to school children. Self-denial, the spirit of '76, is what must be brought to the fore these days. Superintendent Downes explained the method which is to be used during this campaign. In order that it may be uniform in all city and county schools, he requested that the deposit in the new Liberty Bond Savings fund and when $4.12 has been deposited the money be withdrawn and a Baby Bond purchased. Daughters are expected to subscribe three million dollars in this campaign and Mr. Downes stated that a large amount of it must come through the public schools. A campaign for the next Liberty Bond sale will not be put into force at Central. However students are requested to buy as many bonds as possible.

MAYOR KEISTER'S SON HOME FROM CAMP HANCOCK

Rheumatism Contracted in Country's Service Cause For Honorable Discharge

With tears in his eyes because he could not accompany his comrades "over there" when they go, Charles M. Keister, son of Mayor Daniel L. Keister, walked into his father's office yesterday after being honorably discharged from the United States Army. Young Keister was a first class private in Company I, One Hundred and Twelfth United States Infantry, stationed at Camp Hancock, Georgia, and his discharge was due to physical disability, caused by rheumatism which he contracted while camping on Island Park, this city, last summer.

When President Wilson issued his call to arms for service on the Mexican border, Private Keister was one of the first to shoulder a gun. He enlisted that time in Company I, Eighth Pennsylvania National Guard, under command of Captain Ziegler, now a lieutenant colonel. Last July, after war had been declared on Germany, Young Keister again offered his services to his country. With members of Company I, he went to the Mexican border, Island Park, and during a severe wet spell, which was the first hardship the soldiers had to experience, he was taken ill. His condition improved and he then accompanied his fellow guardsmen to Camp Hancock, where materiam developed while stationed at this camp and his commanding officer, Captain Robert Jenkins, found it necessary to give him an honorable discharge from service.

There has been no break in the motion on the western front, the British portion of which is now a sea of mud, the snow having disappeared.

Peace Negotiations Move Toward Final Rapture, Declares Correspondent London, Jan. 19.—Further dispatches from both the German and Russian sides regarding the negotiations at Brest-Litovsk indicate the discussion on Wednesday turned largely on the question of the conditions to be recognized in disposing of Poland, Lithuania and Courland. Von Kuhlmann, the German foreign secretary, said in effect that his government was willing to permit the peoples of the territories occupied by German and Austro-Hungarian troops to vote in regard to their political future, such vote to be taken not later than one year after the conclusion of a general peace. According to the Russian version, Leon Trotsky, Bolshevik foreign minister, attempted to obtain a clear statement whether the voting would be preceded by evacuation of those territories by the German armies. BARS FROM WAR COUNCIL BAKER AND DANIELS

Senate Committee Revises Bill to Provide For Munitions Director

Washington, Jan. 19.—For the second time within twenty-four hours the sounds of battle between the executive and legislative branches of the federal government were heard yesterday when the Senate Military Affairs committee voted to report to the Senate on Monday the Chamberlain bill, proposing the establishment of a new war council.

The committee reduced the membership of the council from five to three, defeating the proposal to name the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy as members of the body. The last named action was regarded as service of notice that, if the bill passes and President Wilson names Secretaries Baker and Daniels as members of the council, there will be strenuous opposition to their confirmation on the floor of the Senate.

The Senate committee reported today the "ministry of munitions" bill, but in such radically amended form that it provides for the creation of a director of munitions instead of the creation of a new cabinet post. Slightly more than 400 members attended. Of these the Bolsheviks and the Social Revolutionists of the Left, who are working together, have about 150 votes, and the Social Revolutionists of the Center and Right the remainder.

Injunctions restraining the International News Service from that practice were granted by the lower courts, and appeal was taken. The Court was asked today to fix April 15 for hearing arguments. The motion to have the case called for early hearing was concurred in by The Associated Press.
