CUMBERLAND VALLEY DRAFT BOARDS CLASSIFY MEN

Entertains Sleighting Party at Parks-Souders Home

Carlisle, Pa., Jan. 22.—County draft boards have begun the task of classifying men eligible under the selective service law for army duty. So far about 400 notices have been sent out by each board and the remainder will be disposed of at the rate of from 75 to 100 per day. The percentage of men in Class 1 so far is small; it being from the first 400 that the original quotas were sent. Officials believe that in the final analysis the number of men in the first division will be slightly over 10 per cent, of the total enrollment for active service, although there have been a number assigned to non-combatative duty who were previously disqualified.

PERRY COUNTY SHORT OF QUOTA

Drive For Red Cross Members Will Be Continued To Reach Goal

Marysville, Pa., Jan. 22.—Dues largely to the fall down of Duncan and Marysville in the recent drive for members to the American Red Cross Society, Perry county failed to realize its quota of memberships by 761. Duncan secured 689 members less than she was asked and Marysville, 689. Chairman L. W. Brimmer, of Newport, says that much of this was due to the particularly cold and unfavorable weather, which prevented the workers from performing their work as thoroughly as they might have done. The campaign will be continued for a short time.

Following are the districts, with their assigned quotas, and the total memberships turned in:

Table with 2 columns: District Name and Quota Secured. Includes entries for Liverpool, New Germantown, Center, Marketville, etc.

There Is Not a Food Expert Who Will Not Approve "Purity" Margarine. INGREDIENTS: "The ingredients used in the manufacture of oleomargarine, when properly made, are all wholesome and digestible materials such as are consumed in eating various food products. It does not appear, therefore, that any valid objection can be made against the use of oleomargarine from a physiological or hygienic standpoint." COLOR: "The whiteness of oleomargarine, contrary to general opinion, is the best indication of its freedom from artificial color, for practically all butter is artificially colored. Standing on its own feet, good oleomargarine is worthy of more general use. As a cheaper spread for our daily bread, it has a sure place in our diet, and no one to whom the high cost of food is a problem should allow the old prejudice to prevent him from giving it a fair trial."
