How to Avoid Those Pains and Suffered Which so Many Mothers Have Experienced

Too much cannot be said for a wonderful preparation, familiar to every woman as Mother's Friend.

It is more effective in its action than all the health rules ever laid down for the guidance of expectant mothers. It is an external application that spreads its influence upon the cords, tendons and muscles of the abdomen, rendering them pliant, and they expand gracefully without that peculiar wrenching strain.

The occasion is, therefore, one of unbounded joy and anticipation, and much stress cannot be laid upon the remarkable difference which a mother's happy mental disposition has upon the health and fortunes of the generations to come.

The pain at the crisis is infinitely less when Mother's Friend is used during the period of expectancy for the muscles expand easier and with less strain when baby is born.

Mother's Friend is for external use only, is entirely safe and may be used of your druggist. It is prepared by the Bradford Institute, Care of Dr. S. Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Write them to mail you their interesting "Motherhood Book." They will send it at once, without charge, and you will find it very helpful. Do not neglect for a single night and morning to apply Mother's Friend according to directions around the bottle, and thus fortify yourself against pain and discomfort.

ALSACE-LORRAINE IS CLAIMED BY GERMANS

in a negative way, however. The German chancellor stated specifically that Germany agreed with the first four points in President Wilson's world peace program, which cover the abolition of secret diplomacy, freedom of the seas, equality of trade, traditions and reduction of national armaments. The chancellor thought some difficulties would be met regarding the fifth point, which treated with colonial adjustments and asserted the principle that the interests of the population concerned must have equal weight with the claims of the government whose title was to be determined.

Sees Trouble Ahead

Austria was primarily concerned with points nine, ten and eleven in President Wilson's peace program. The German chancellor pointed out, but Germany's interests would be defended energetically where the interests of the Italian touch upon the readjustment of the Italian frontiers along clearly recognizable lines of nationality, free opportunity for the autonomous development of the peoples of Austria-Hungary, and with the Balkans question including demands for the evacuation of Russia, Serbia and Macedonia with free access to the sea for Serbia.

The chancellor was notably specific in his treatment of the Alsace-Lorraine question, declaring that it was originally German, that it had been taken by force from German possession and that the cessation of 1871 was merely a technicality.

Premier Lloyd George more conciliatory in his recent speech than formerly, showing more of an inclination for negotiations, he did not consider him yet as giving due consideration to Germany's "political, economic and cultural position," while he was found "charging her with being guilty of all possible crimes."

League of Peace

As to the question of a League of Peace, the chancellor said Germany would be ready to discuss that after all the other questions had been settled.

Count Czernin, Austria's spokesman, in his address dealt at some length with the Russian question. He declared Austria-Hungary did not desire a meter at territory nor a centime of indemnity from Russia, and thought there were not sufficient differences in the Russian and the German viewpoints of self-determination to justify an abandonment of the negotiations now in progress at Brest-Litovsk. The Polish question, he declared, must not delay the bringing about of peace by a single day.

Austria and Germany were in virtual agreement as to principles to govern conditions after the war, Count Czernin stated.

As contrasted with the declaration by Chancellors Von Hertling and Count Czernin before the legislative bodies of their respective nations, there were today a statement by Leon Trotsky, Russia's foreign minister, before the Brest-Litovsk peace conference.

In his practical working out, he said, the Austro-German position had made it clear that Austria and Germany were giving the doctrine of self-determination an illusory character by their refusal to evacuate occupied territory. "Practically," said the Russian spokesman, "it means that the governments of Austria and Germany take into their own hands the destiny of these nations."

Smileage Book For Every American Soldier

Monday a national campaign begins for the sale of Smileage Books. Harrisburg has two committees to work in conjunction in selling some 85,000 worth of the books here. The women of the National War Aid yesterday selected for the direction of the work a committee headed by Mrs. Herman Astrich, chairman.

Smileage Books are books of coupons which may be used by soldiers for admission to the Liberty Theaters and chautauqua tents and National Guard encampments. Their friends and relatives at home are to be given the opportunity to bring smileage to the front by the soldier by sending them the book. The Telegraph will have more to tell of the plan to-morrow.

The executive committee of the National War Aid yesterday appointed the following committee to direct a sale of the books: Mrs. Herman Astrich, chairman; Mrs. Homer Black, Mrs. Rosa Ross, Mrs. George E. Etter and Mrs. Peter Phillips.

WAS MISERABLE FOR MONTHS

"Had Pains in Back and Head,"

says Mrs. C. Polston, 139 1/2 Adams St., Steelton, Pa. "For months I was miserable with nervousness, had pains in my back and head, my stomach was bad, and my food did not seem to nourish me."

"I could hardly do any work, my back gave me so much trouble that I could hardly get any rest at night, so I was worn out."

"After reading a Sanpan testimonial, I thought it might help me, and in a short time I noticed an improvement, and now am entirely well. Nerves are fine, headache and pain in back are gone, stomach is working fine and am fine."

WALLOWER HALL NAME OF AUDITORIUM

during the last few months. One of the most important developments of this dinner was the decision to include the assembly or banquet hall which was eliminated in the revision of the plans last spring.

Some time ago President Wallower addressed a letter to the stockholders and others interested in which he presented the great need for some such hall at the big hotel. Harrisburg is a great convention city and it is highly necessary to provide adequate facilities for the almost daily conferences and conventions held here. It was stated by the architect that this large banquet room could be more economically constructed during the building of the hotel proper than later, inasmuch as there would be considerable saving not only in material but in labor which would be lost should the hotel be finished on the revised lines and later remodelled.

This assembly room will occupy the upper floor of the wing extending southward toward Strawberry street. It will be forty-two feet wide and eighty feet long and will easily accommodate several hundred people.

There will be a gallery for the public and for an orchestra. There will also be provisions for moving pictures and illustrated lectures. A segmental arch ceiling without columns and an oak floor will be features.

Several of the directors at once subscribed some thousands of dollars necessary to authorize this important feature of the hotel and other stockholders have also indicated their purpose to subscribe to the additional funds necessary.

The assembly room will be approached from the second or parlor floor. On this floor will also be a large and two small private dining rooms and one small assembly hall with accommodations for fifty or more people. Upon the second floor will also be a bedroom and bath suits, fronting Walnut and Third streets.

During the dinner Mr. Wallower called upon his guests, one after another, and there were many interesting after-dinner speeches, each having something to say of the long and hopeful struggle for the big hotel and the interesting little incidents leading up to the accomplished fact.

As a compliment to the president and in appreciation of his energy and public spirit, it was decided that the convention and banquet room shall be known as Wallower Hall.

Frank A. Dudley, president of the United Hotels Company, and Frederick W. Rockwell, of Albany, vice-president of the same company, told in detail of the various steps which have been taken preliminary to the decoration and furnishing of the hotel and also of certain features of the management. Both these officials strongly recommended the banquet and convention hall as a necessary feature.

Many compliments were paid those who have directly borne the burden of the big enterprise and there was general satisfaction expressed with the progress of the great structure in the midst of the most severe winter of a generation.

Those present who were called upon by the president were: ex-Mayor J. William Bowman, Henderson Gilbert, Edwin S. Herman, William T. Hildrup, Jr., William Jennings, E. J. Stackpole, A. C. Stamm, David E. Tracy, William P. Starkey, Warwick M. Oelszky, W.

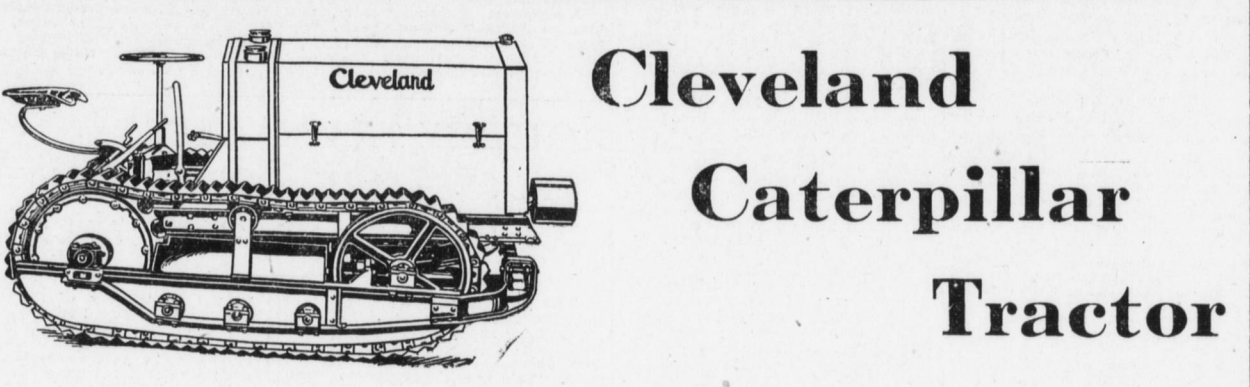

L. Stoddart, Frank A. Dudley and Frederick W. Rockwell.

Mr. Dudley explained the plans for the southern automobile tour which is being organized and which will start at Harrisburg and run through Birmingham, New Orleans and Florida points.

Contractors of the Penn-Harris said to-day that they had been held up considerably by the severe weather conditions, but that much of their important material was on the ground and with a moderation of the cold wave they hope to quickly get the building under foot.

DEALERS FINED $100

Samuel Smeltzer, second-hand dealer, 515 Walnut street, and Al Brenner, who conduct a second-hand store at 1315 North Third street, were given a hearing this afternoon in police court on the charge of violating a city ordinance requiring every pawnbroker or second-hand dealer to make a daily report and description of the articles he buys, and the person from whom he buys them. It is through this city ordinance that many thefts are discovered, and the police are stringent in their enforcement of the act. The men were fined $100 each.
