Grocers Sell Other Cereals to Save Wheat on 50-50

Plan

Simultaneous with the announce ment from the Washington food ad-ministration that wholesale and retail grocers must sell flour only in equal amounts with cereal substitutes, local flour and feed dealers announced this morning that the flour supply in the city may become flour supply in the city may become wholly inadequate to care for the city needs.

Wholesale grocers and flour dealers expressed themselves extremely gratified with the Washington ruling that makes it necessary for consumers to go easy on the flour supply. Every wholesale flour dealer announced emphatically this morning that he is selling flour on a fifty-fifty basis, and simultaneously retailers announced that they have no alternative but to follow suit.

Substitute Cercals

Substitute Cereals

Substitutes being supplied in the y by wholesalers and retailers tocity by wholesalers and retailers to-day include corn flour, cornmeal, white and yellow; cornflakes, rolled oats, oatmeal and oat flake, tapicca and rice, potato flour, farikna kiln, dried corn and even oats, along with numerous other substitutes. Some of these substitutes are scarce, others, the dealers have in sufficient quantities to supply the city. Corn-meal is the cereal flour that is sold to nine out of ten customers, retail-ers declare.

Philadelphia, Feb. 4. — With "Mike" Sweeney, Penn's right forward, scoring 18 points, Penn won a close basketball battle from Swarthmore with a 22 to 19 reckoning in Weightman Hall Saturday evening. The Garnet and White sprung a surprise upon the inter-collegiate leaders with its ability to break up Penn's offensive and shoot field goals from all angles of the floor.

Where Penn was weak, namely, field shooting, Swarthmore was strong, the Garnet netting 12 of its 19 points from the field. The first half ended with Swarthmore leading, 13 to 12.

Coal Situation Becomes

Worse With Cold Weather

Coal dealers reported this morning that the cold weather has brought on a great demand for fuel and that there is none to be furnished the consumers. Detweller Brothers this morning reported that one car of bituminous coal had been received and was sold in a few hours. W. E. Abercrombie, manager of the Steelton Store Company, said this morning that he did not hear of much suffering. He said that the company had not received any fuel and that the reserve supply held for bushel sales had been exhausted. The official was of the opinion that some fuel would arrive in the next twenty-four hours.
