AMUSEMENTS This Man Told the Truth For 24 Hours; A Scene From "Nothing But the Truth"

MONDAY EVENING,

"Nothing But the Truth" comes to the Orpheum for a return engagement to-morrow, matinee and night. There is a saying that "Truth is mighty and shall prevail." We will have an exemplification of this in the above-named farce, for it was written for the sole purpose of creating laughter, and has prevailed, for it is claimed no play in stage history has been the moving cause of more clean, wholesome mirth than this farce, which set all New York laughing to such an extent that it had to be played an entire year in that city to care for the crowds that flocked to the Longacre Theater. We are promised that our local stage will see not only the play, but a clever interpretation of it by the pick of farceurs, each one having been selected to fully emphasize the author's idea.

It is said the hilarious farce that will be seen at the Orpheum to-morrow, matinee and night, had better been the Truth" christened "Nothing But Laughter," but play a name that most fittingly covers the theme of it, he was possibly a better better the theme of it, he was possibly a better loss of his play a name that most fittingly covers the theme of it, he was possibly a better judge than the New York critics, who sat in judgment upon it during its year of joyous success at the Long-acre Theater. It was the consensus of critical opinion that it was the best farce seen in years. It is a play built upon a simple idea of its hero speaking nothing but the absolute truth for a stated period. He bet a friend $10,000 he can do it, and boldly tackles truth to win the money. For a very short time the task is placidly easy, but truth routs out old man Trouble, and then things begin to happen. Trouble doesn't seem very large and aggressive, when he first pokes his nose into the noble resolve of our hero, but he grows rapidly that fits her like the proverbial glove. The story is that of a young and beautiful French girl, who comes to America just before the war breaks out. hoping for better things. Things go from bad to worse, however, and if it hadn't been for the compassion of a woman friend, she would have gone back to her native land without knowing of the great love in store for her. Mae Marsh, in the role of the little French girl, is adorable, and, as always, her acting is full of human appeal.

Jewish Feast of Purim to Be Celebrated in City

The Jewish feast of I urim, one of the minor festivals in the religious the minor festivals in the religious calendar, will be celebrated to-morrow. Purim, according to the scriptural book of Esther, wherein the tale is narrated, means "lots," lots having been cast before Haman, vizier of Persia, for the purpose of determining the day most auspicious for the consummation of his plan of exterminating all the Jews dwelling in the land. But the day was fatal only to Haman's plans and to Haman himself, for through a chain of remarkable happenings the Jews were delivered from their imminent peril and the doom he had decreed for them fell on their enemy himself. From that year to the present time, Jews all over the world have celebrated the anniversary of the day on which the wondrous deliverance had occurred.

Strange to say, Purim is hardly a religious feast. Religious features added in comparatively recent times only accenture the essentially secular character of the day. Being in the nature of a thanksgiving festical, an expression of a people's gratitude for their ancestors' providential redemption from an awful death, it has been from time immemorial a day of "feasting and gladness, and of sending portions to one another and gifts to the poor." in the medianeval ghettos it was celebrated with all manner of merry-making, while in modern times it has come to be one of the days to which the children of the Jews which the children of the Jews which the children of the Jews was a state of the religious schools most eagerly look forward.

A special synapogue service will be held in the synagogue service calendar, will be celebrated to-mor

Major Garrett Says U. S Faces Great Task in Winning

The discourse of Major W. A Garrett, general manager of the Remington Arms Company, at the Remington Arms Company, at the Chamber of Commerce smoker on Saturday night, was a forerunner of the appearance of Howard Heinz, who is to tell Harrisburg about food saving. Major Garrett was a member of the commission of railroad executives sent abroad to study conditions and he gave it as his opinion that America must wake up and put on more speed. The French, he said, have made every sacrifice in the way of travel, and the roads are practically devoted entirely to carrying troops and ammunition. Vast numbers of women help on the transportation. He told of severe methods used for forcing food conservation, the like of which may be enforced here if the nation does not respond more generously.

The Major sounded a warning note as to what might be expected with the conclusion of a German-Russian peace, when he said that it would mean the release of 1,600,000 prisoners. He foretold that with this added strength Germany would become a greater menace and heavier burdens would fall upon the

Victory Bread Makes Its Appearance on Tables of All Homes in the City

Household consumers are using Victory bread to-day, if they get their bread supply from city bakers. A careful canvass of the situation this morning showed that all the bread being sold in the city is made of a mixture of wheat flour and twenty per cent. of other cereal substitutes.

of a mixture of wheat flour and twenty per cent. of other cereal substitutes.

Household consumers ought not notice any difference in the bread to-day and the bread of a week ago. Pricker's new bakery has been using the full twenty per cent. substitution for ten days. Oats and cornflour is the substitute used. The Standard bakeries have been using corn flour with eighty per cent. of wheat flour for a week, thus conforming to the regulations a week ahead of time. The Schmidt bakeries use a substitute flour of corn, rice and barley, having found by experience, Mr. Schmidt said, that this substitute mixture makes the best Victory loaf.

The supply of substitute flours for the Schmidt and Bricker bakeries is low, it was said at these bakeries this morning, and can not last beyond Wednesday. Mr. Schmidt has appealed to Food Administrator McCormick to try to expedite cereal shipments now in transit so that they arrive in time to avoid shutdewn. Mr. Bricker is likewise taking steps to prevent a shutdown by hurrying shipments of his substitutes to the city.

Governor Due in Harrisburg Soon

Governor Brumbaugh is expected back in Harrisburg either late to-night or to-morrow and a statement clearing up the talk about an extra session is expected from him. The Governor was at Washington yesterday, according to what was learned here to-day.

Secretary Ball has gone to meet him and will present what has been learned as the result of the "sounding of sentiment" in regard to the proposed extra session. Nothing has been done at the Capitol in the way of preparation for a session and much would have to be done even on a sixty-day notice.

Early action in regard to the Perry-Juniata judgeship vacancy and the York prothonotaryship is expected.
