PHILADELPHIA PRODUCE

the U-boat's range and fired four shells in quick succession, causing the submarine to "come broadside and keel over." It then disappeared just as it was in position to discharge its destroying shot at the ship. The submarine, Groves said, in his report, "did not quit from choice, but from necessity." The Navy's commendation announcement savs:

"The promptness with which the periscope was picked up and the ac-curacy of fire denotes an efficiency on the part of the armed guard for which Groves, as commanding of-ficer, was responsible."
