URGES OPENING OF TO SAVE FLOUR SCHOOL GARDENS

stitute Tells of Great

So imperative is the need to save wheat that Howard Heinz, the Pennsylvania Food Administrator, to-day notified flour dealers that they are forbidden to sell-high-class flour to paperhangers. "We can get along a great deal better without the paste han we can without the flour," he says.

Second-class or low-grade flour may be sold to paperhangers, but it is doubtful if these grades are in the market now, as under the new method, milling there is only five per cent. Attraction.

He also warns in the matter of labels. "Wheat Flour" or "War Quality" means on the face of it nothing more than than that the flour has been milled in accordance with regulations, and that it may contain seventy-four per cent. of the entire wheat and must be sold with substitutes. But if the flour is a mixed one, the label should specify the ingredients and the percentage of substitutes contained. The flour may then be sold with enough additional substitutes to bring it up to the fifty-fifty requirement. As to "entire wheat flour" or "graham flour," these may be sold to bakers without substitutes, but to the consumer they must be sold with substitutes in the proportion of six pounds of substitutes to teach ten peculas of flour.

Instead of serving bread free, hotels, restaurants and clubs are now to serve potatoes free and charge for bread. "Potatoes are cheap and plentiful," says Heinz, "and there is urgent need to save more wheat. We are the starting a vigorous cam-

Halifax Soldier Writes Home Fro mRailroad Train

Halifax, Pa., March 9.—G. L. Wert, Sr., received a letter from his son, George, on Wednesday morning, stating that he had just been awakened, finding himself in Harrisburg, at five o'clock in the morning on a train, not knowing where they were bound for. He had left the cantonment at Dayton, Offio, with the Two Hundred and Eleventh Aviation Corps Unit. The next day he wrote his parents from Philadelphia, where they were treated by the Red Cross to candies, oranges and numerous delicacies. On Monday he wrote from Hempstead, Long Island, where he is now stationed. Mr. Wert is twenty years old and enlisted on the 10th day of last April. He was the first one in Halifax to enlist, after the United States declared a state of war with Germany.—Mrs. William E.
