

HARRISBURG BOYS PLEASED WITH WORK AT CAMP

Twenty-Eighth Division Is Ready For Active Service "Over There"

(Special to the Telegraph) Augusta, Ga., March 11.—Of all the cities of the country it is a question whether any has a finer representation in the great new Army of Uncle Sam than Harrisburg, almost a thousand of the boys from that city being in the several branches of the service at Camp Hancock. And every one of the thousands is anxious to join General Pershing and their comrades in France.

An engine that runs with softness, due to the now noted "Hot-Spot" and "Ram's-Horn" Manifold—Chalmers features

In the days of yesterday, "roar" and "wallop" were the terms used to define an engine's power. Today, it is the softness of power, the controllability of it that fascinates. It is a new kind of power to many, brought to public attention through the famous "Hot-Spot" and "Ram's-Horn" Manifold of the Chalmers. For here the gas is heated, and "cracked-up" at the throat of the carburetor by the "Hot-Spot" and then rushed quickly via the "Ram's-Horn" Manifold into the combustion chambers. It is "toasted" so nicely, "pulverized" so fine, that the instant after sparking there is well-nigh no waste of gas. Little of power comes out of the exhaust. All the power comes out of the rear wheels—and such pleasing, well-harnessed power, that your enthusiasm for driving reaches a new peak.

cannot help being impressed with the approach of a momentous day. Not a minute is being wasted. From the general commanding to the humblest private there is the most earnest attention to every detail. Harrisburg people have reason especially to be proud of their men in the field. Many of the boys have been given responsible posts and the best traditions of the home town in previous wars will be upheld.

Captain Edward J. Stackpole, Jr., since 1916 a member of the U. S. Reserve Officers' Corps, this week signed in a letter to the War Department his willingness to accept a similar commission in the National Guard of the United States and he is now captain of Company M, One Hundred and Tenth Infantry, but under general orders was detached and directed to continue as division officer in charge of bayonet practice. He has been associated with Captain Ryan, of the British Army, in this work, for several months, having first been assigned to the One Hundred and Ninth Machine Gun Battalion. The assignment to the One Hundred and Tenth Regiment (the old Tenth Pennsylvania) will keep him with the state division. Another Reserve Officer, Captain Hugh R. Doane, also accepted a N. G. U. S. commission and has been assigned to the One Hundred and Twelfth Regiment, which contains many of the Harrisburg boys. He is a fine soldier and has been assisting in the bayonet practice as well as directing the physical instruction of the division.

Reviews Division Brenton Wallace, formerly with the Harrisburg Academy faculty, is here with the Field Artillery. He came to Camp Hancock with the First City Troop which suffered the fate of the Governor's Troop and other cavalry organizations. It is reported here that David R. Shotwell, who has been doing Y. M. C. A. work in India, is on the way home to enter active service. Many Y. M. C. A. men are going into the various branches for service at the front.

Secretary of State Lansing was given a review of the division and other demonstrations of the fitness of the Pennsylvania troops. Perhaps the most spectacular of the events arranged in his honor was a thrilling exhibition of going over the top, realistic bayonet work in force against dummy Germans, rifle fire after a charge through a smoke screen and hand-to-hand bayonet attack and defense. Little was left to the imagination save the actual killing of the enemy. This remarkable demonstration was staged in the dry basin of a great reservoir on the edge of Camp Hancock which resembles the Yale bow which is in the Princeton stadium. In this place are conducted the class drills, the spectators looking on from the rim of the arena.

Nothing was more inspiring than the massing of the bands for a great concert by some hundreds of soldiers. Accompanied by the instruments these men sang "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Keep the Home Fires Burning," "Over There" and similar selections. That great wave of harmony sweeping up from the red-sloped bowl will not soon be forgotten by Secretary Lansing and the hundreds of enthusiastic spectators. Camp Hancock is said to be the most healthful of all the camps and the boys certainly seem ready for anything. They agree that the actual training is the best of them and the sentiment of all is expressed in the language of the ex-baseball player who insisted that all he wanted was a high ball, a bullet, a gun and directions to Berlin.

NEAR DEATH ON FRENCH FRONT

Harrisburg Boy Has Exciting Time Facing Boches "Over There"

Gordon L. Werner, who was graduated from the Technical High School in the class of 1917, is now "with the colors." He is a son of George A. Werner, 2143 North Fifth street. He tells vividly of life in the trenches, and of his experiences, in a recent letter to his brother, Leo A. Werner, 514 Mahontongo street. His letter follows: "Feb. 13, 1918. "Dear Leo: "Haven't written you as yet, though, I've received quite a few from you since landing on this side. A person doesn't feel like writing much here, because the things of real information and interest are 'tabooed' by censor regulations. I've been asked in some of my letters to do a paper for you, well, soon mattering to this camp, I was placed in the camp surgeon's office as orderly, which job I've held ever since. I am dispatch bearer to the different headquarters in the district, and these errands quite frequently require the use of a horse. My knowledge of French has been very useful to me, as it is frequently necessary to visit various French outfits. I believe I have been fairly successful, as the Major put in my recommendation for the chief surgeon. This will increase my pay by three dollars, but I stand in line I am told, for further promotion. However, the opportunity lately to be assigned for temporary sanitary duty at (censored) and on the front. Was absent from camp about three weeks. My experience while there was such that it won't be forgotten in a hurry. I feel sure I missed death on two occasions, once, during an attack on Paris on the night of (censored) and again, when a French ammunition train was blown up, killing twenty-six and injuring two hundred. Now don't think I'm lying or exaggerating, for I'm not. One of our officers here at the hospital, was there also. In the case of the air raid, we happened to be in the village of (censored) bombed area. In our immediate vicinity, twenty people or more were killed outright. The affair was very exciting, without doubt. I may say here that the boys taken out here maximum amount of insurance (ten thousand dollars). I do not know, but that I may be disabled for life, I don't mention the fact, as I have a few cents, I'd have a monthly income to depend upon. I've made a fifteen dollar allotment to George, for twelve months. Guess he's received the first allotment of it by this time. Savages

An interesting incident, indicative of one kind of people fighting, occurred at the village of (censored) on the front. An English Sanitary Officer on his daily inspections was conscious of a peculiar odor in the hut of a Borneo soldier. He did not mention the fact till a few days later, when the odor became positively sickening. He made a search of the place, and what do you think he found? He found a few German heads done up in a blanket. Well that savage put up an awful fight before the cause of the trouble was finally removed. He seemed to be keeping those heads as souvenirs for the folks back home. These people and the Zulus of South Africa are more trouble than they're worth. One day they fight the French and the next day Germans. As near as I can tell, this war will never be decided by fighting. It is all very well for the people back home to say the Dutch are licked, but just the same they held everything from Antwerp to the Dardanelles. If they are starving, the healthy robbers pick them up and take, show no ill effects from it. I think the Allies would do well to try "starvation" if it would give them the physical appearance of these Germans. I see every day. They don't worship the Kaiser like our newspapers back home say they do. All they think of, is von Hindenburg and von Ludendorff. I have talked a great deal with them,—that is, as far as my limited knowledge of the language would permit. I find that quite a few of them have relatives in the U. S. Recently, however, orders have been enforced forbidding us to have any intercourse with prisoners of war. They regret this a lot, because of the tobacco and food we used to give them. These fellows are alright, but they're fighting for a bad cause. Well, I'll close for to-night, but will write soon again. Sincerely, Gordon."

BRITISH AVIATORS DROP BOMBS ON BELGIAN TOWNS By Associated Press London, March 11.—British aviators of the naval air service yesterday made a raid over Belgium, dropping bombs on the airfield and ammunition dump at Engel, the admiralty announced. Two fires were started. In aerial combats three enemy airplanes were destroyed and four others driven down out of control. All the British planes returned safely.

Senator Hitchcock Is Impressed by Spirit of Augusta Camp Soldiers Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga., March 11.—"If Uncle Sam had thirty-two divisions equal to the one at Camp Hancock, the American Army would now be the finest in the world," said Senator G. M. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, before leaving for Washington. He has been here a week. Senator Hitchcock has great confidence in the American soldier, and in the United States, in his opinion is rapidly getting on a war footing. The Senator said that to see 30,000 husky men, every inch a soldier, and possessing such remarkable spirit, was a revelation to him. He had not before realized that a division is an army, and that the Pennsylvania National Guard alone constituted a formidable fighting force. The Nebraska thinks the shaking up of the War Department has already worked wonders. It was not conditions in camps like Hancock that caused the senatorial investigation, according to Hitchcock. "There will be no need for an investigation of camp conditions next winter," the Senator said, "as we have now gotten out of the rut. Much red tape has been eliminated and we are prepared to wage war in earnest."

Eat Less Wheat

If the decision of victory or defeat of our Allies rests upon the kernel of wheat—or rather 90,000,000 bushels of it—that must be shipped within a couple of months, it would seem better to deprive oneself of as much as possible now, rather than compel the Government to take it later. When Uncle Sam sees he must take it he will. Then it may not be possible to even secure it in moderate quantities. Better divide with him now voluntarily by using substitutes whenever possible. There are so many other substantial foods and delightful combinations, it would seem that it would be no hardship to comply with the request of the National Food Commissioner to—Have More Wheatless Meals each day, and More Wheatless Days each week.
