Braves Death as House Collapses to Save Aged Mistress

London, March 13.—The death of its. Lena Gullbert Ford, the Ameran woman who wrote "Keep the ome Fires Burning," one of the ost popular marching songs of the ritish Army, and her crippled son, falter, was a pathetic incident of the German air raid on London, hey died under the wreckage of their home, the first Americans to see their lives in a London air tid.

Annie Coxall, an English maid, by remarkable display of courage, wed the life of Mrs. Ford's mother, rs. Brown, 86 years old, although e aged woman was injured seri-isly. The King and Queen sought

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for Carbonic constipation and torpid livers. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets, They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

It was evident the whole weight of the walls and upper floors would soon crash into the cellar, and the maid placed her charge on the floor close to the wall, pulling a cot over her as a protection and placing upon this two heavy oak doors in a slanting position, which she hoped would deflect the falling debris.

Surprised When King Calls.
Failing to reach the upper part of the house again in answer to the cries of Mrs. Ford and her son, the maid had barely time to crawl under the bed beside Mrs. Brown when the final collapse occurred. The iron bed and the oak doors served their purpose. Mrs. Brown and the maid were almost suffocated, but two hours later they were rescued.

Mrs. Ford and her son had lived in England for more than twenty years. The words of many of the most successful English popular songs in recent years are from her pen. Shortly before her death she wrote what she called an Anglo-American song—"We Are Coming, Mother England," which has been adapted to the tune of "Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching."

To Conserve Food

"If Mr. Cash and Carry does not make up on other articles for those he sells at cost why don't he sell all his goods at cost? A grocer who will practice deception will beat his customers when he has a chance. When a grocer sells an article at cost he loses money on it because he does not get back his cost of doing business. An hororable grocer who prizes the condence of his matrons and expects to serve them in the years to come will not resort to that kind of filmfam.

"It is most commendable, it is particit, it is our duty and our pleasure to conserve food even to the point of privation in order to feed well those who now lie in the trenches on foreign soil to protect our comfort and safety at home, and no class of businessmen are doing their bit more loyally nor more cheerfully than the grocers—those same grocers who served you before the advent of the cut price schemers, most of whom send their profits away from Harrisburg to maintain their estates in the fashionable suburb of some large city, where they live in luxury.

"It is honorable and legitimate for any grocer to fix a decent living profit on every article he sells and he will not undertake to deceive his customers by, offering them sensational prices on a few articles used as bait to conceal the sharp point of a crooked hook he expects to customers by, offering them sensational prices on a few articles used as bait to conceal the sharp point of a crooked hook he expects to catch them on. The legitimate grocers of Harrisburg are doing business on dangerously small profits now. Several grocers have failed within the last year, five in one neighborhood, and others who could not live out of the profits of their stores have gone to work for wages. "It is not the object nor the desire of any grocer to oppose the Food Administrator nor to retard the progress of his most commendable efforts to effect lower prices, but it is their desire to co-operate in every way and to give such aid and advice as only a practical grocer who has actual knowledge of the details of the business is able to give.

Not the Solution

"He knows that the solution of the problem does not lie in the cash and carry plan, but he also knows that much can be accomplished indirectly through the grocers by beginning with the manufacturer. For instance, suppose the Heinz Coming and the propose of the details of the business is able to give.

cer who has actual knowledge of the details of the business is able to give.

Not the Solution

"He knows that the solution of the problem does not lie in the cash and carry plan, but he also knows that much can be accomplished indirectly through the grocers by beginning with the manufacturer. For instance, suppose the Heinz Company, who carry a stock of their goods in Harrisburg adopt the cash and carry plan and give reduced prices to the grocers, who cart their own goods, then the grocers could pass it along and give the benefit to their customers without impairing their already too small profits. Why not Heinz sell all his pickles in bulk and save the cost of expensive bottles, labels, etc., then the consumer could get twice as many pickles for the same money (for the packages actually cost more than the pickles) and it would not rob the grocer of his small profit. There are many packages in a grocery store, where the package and advertising cost more than, the contents of the package and in the use of such goods the censumers throw away more than they eat. Why not supply the same goods in cheaper carrons without advertising and thus give the consumer the benefit of lower prices without any attempt to beat the grocer out of his small profits.

"Why not give the bakerles no flour at all for six months and let the government pay them their customary dividends, then the house-keepers would have to bake their own bread, but would have as much bread for four cents as they now get for ten cents and thus save six cents a loaf, and every family that uses three loaves of bread a day could save enough to pay for a fifty dollar Liberty Bond every year. Does any sane person imagine anything like this can ever be accomplished by the cash and carry plan.

"Why not suspend the taxes and licenses on the manufacture and sale of butterine and give the consumer the benefit instead of understaking the impossibility of cutting more out of the grocer.

"Why not have a few beerless days, say six or seven a week, use the barley to fatten the hogs and save the corn so the boys in the camps and in the trenches can have a little good Johnnie cake occasionally. The barley so diverted would furnish a good substitute for six million loaves of bread a day.
"We are enlisted for our best coperation with the Food Administ ration and subject to its call to duty any time.
