

BEEF SURPLUS THREATENS CUT IN PRICE LIST

Elimination of Meatless Tuesday Is Now Under Consideration

Washington, March 14.—Through a curious economic freak the American housewife is about to obtain steaks and rib roasts at a much lower price than war conditions ordinarily would warrant, and serious consideration is being given by the food administrator to the elimination of meatless Tuesdays from their kitchen calendar.

The only thing to prevent such an unexpected benefit from war meat is the ability of delegations of cattlemen and packers who came to Washington yesterday to find a solution of the difficulties arising from an unprecedented surplus of meat in the United States.

Fears of a general collapse in beef prices, resulting in cheaper meat to the consumer but causing heavy losses to the farmer and cattle raiser and probably injuring seriously next year's production, were expressed by representatives of the industry.

Meatless Tuesday May Go
It was learned yesterday that Herbert C. Hoover, food administrator, is giving consideration to the proposal of the elimination of meatless Tuesday during a temporary period affected by surplus supplies on the market. It was stated, however, there were many questions to be considered in connection with such a step and one of the chief points was observance by the food administration of the effects of the elimination of porkless Saturday and the daily meatless meals from the food conservation program in conditions in some cities are not favorable to suspension of the meatless Tuesday, it is believed.

Representatives of the meat industry are agreed the present prices cannot be maintained unless the government acts. Packers have all they can handle with the present refrigerating facilities and beef is backing up on the farms.

Impossible to Maintain Prices
Mr. Hoover is working to maintain prices, and the farmers and cattlemen have been unable to obtain much encouragement from members of Congress in their efforts to have a minimum market price fixed.

The situation really is serious. It is understood the meat surplus, which resulted in the abandonment for the present of porkless Saturdays and meatless meals except on Tuesdays, is such that the food administration was able to offer to the Allies six months' meat supplies on the scale agreed upon in the current program. This offer was made, it was stated yesterday, to dispose of a part of the surplus in the manner to do the greatest good, as the swamping the meat market now may mean a severe scarcity later, especially if the cattle raiser is forced to take a low price for his present stock.

Allies Unable to Store Supply
It is patent the Allies could not handle six months' supplies, as they could not obtain refrigeration facilities in this country to handle such an abundance of beef and shipping to carry it to Europe is not to be had. It also is understood there was the difficulty of doing so on their part in this country to such a great extent.

Scores of cattlemen are urging Mr. Hoover to fix a minimum beef price, but he is without legal authority to do so. A price has been fixed on hogs, but that was possible only through voluntary agreement between the industry last fall, and it is being maintained only through the strongest pressure upon the packers by the food administration.

Higher Prices Seen Next Fall
Congress could fix such a price by legislation, but scarcely in time to accomplish the purpose sought. The transportation situation prevented the early marketing of animals, and those held on the farms and ranches until recently were fed soft corn, which farmers were unable to get to the driers, due also to traffic congestion in the grain centers. Added to this was the decreased consumption due to the meatless days of the food administration.

The situation, while indicating cheaper meat for the consumer at this time, means, according to cattlemen, high prices and short stocks may prevail next fall.

Farm Bureau Directors Endorse Food Plans

The endorsement of all efforts to increase the production of crops, fruits or animals, and plans for a boys' camp in the southern part of the county, were the result of a meeting of the executive committee of the Dauphin county farm bureau last night. The boys' camp would be for the purpose of aiding the farmers in tending and harvesting their crops.

C. P. Longenecker, of Middletown, was chosen to fill the vacancy in the executive committee caused by the death of A. L. Erb, also of Middletown.

Bolshevik Crew Attempts to Seize Ship at Norfolk; Repelled by Port Guard

Norfolk, Va., March 14.—Members of the crew of the Russian steamer Omsk, removed yesterday by Collector of Customs Hamilton at the request of Captain Edmond Yanvosky because of their Bolshevik tendencies, on being paroled by federal authorities, armed themselves and made an effort to take the ship.

The American armed port guard in charge of the vessel refused to allow the men aboard and police reserves were sent to arrest them. Investigation by Collector Hamilton revealed that the Russians had sought to put the principles of the Bolshevik into operation on the ship, demanding that the vessel be operated by a committee of the crew.
