Mercer going through a series of tumbing feats. The pair deserve credit for the marked ease of performance, none of the tricks seeming difficult for them.

Bonair and Ward have a rapid-fire line of talk and a song about Broadway and the farm. The town gossib dialog is good and the repertee in the comedy patter is laughable.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde and daughter give an enjoyable variety offering, giving some amusing views in silhouette. Mr. Wilde's shadow pictures of George Washington, President Wilson and other statesmen formed with his hands, are remarkable.

Burns and Frabito, in a clever comedy skit, are real entertainers and for variety give mandolin and guitar duets.

Billy Bouncer's Circus is given by a company of seven, Billy Bouncer and partner, and five "volunteers" from the audience. The fun in this offering depends upon the attempts of the five to duplicate Bouncer's bouncing feats.
