JOKE COSTS BOY ISSUE TRIAL LIST

Mechanicsburg, Pa., March 19.—
This evening Miss Corelli Martin, member of the class of 1918, Harrisburg Conservatory of Music, will give a violin recital for graduation in the auditorium of the Conservatory in North Second street. Miss Martin, who is a musician of ability and rare talent, has won a well-merited reputation in this locality. She was a private pupil of Madame Lucelle Du Pre, of the Du Pre Violin School at Denver, Col. In addition to her work at the Conservatory, Miss Martin has been taking private lessons from Madame Von Bereghy. Miss Martin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Martin, South Market, street, Mechanicsburg.

Contest For Superintendent of Cumberland Co. Schools Carlisle, Pa., March 19.—J. Kelso Green, of Carlisle, county superintendent of Cumberland schools for nearly lifteen years will face opposition when the directors meet here early in April to elect an official for the next four years. Prof. Green, who is widely known in educational circles through the state from his activity in school affairs, is a candidate for re-election.

Announcement was made to-day with at T. Ralph Jacoby, supervising principal of the Mechanicsburg schools, will also be an applicant for the post. Jacoby was a candidate in 1914, but was defeated. The general impression here is that the contest will be close, but that Prof. Green will be returned. The assistant superintendency, now held by W. G. Rice, of Carlisle, an appointive of fice, also hinges on the outcome.

laws," they informed Tony, when he had committed some trifling misde meanor. Evidently, the Polish boy had seen enough of military discipling to believe this, and so one bitter cold night he stole away from camp. All one Sunday night he struggled through the snow, for the snow was deep then. When his feet began to freeze, he took off one shoe and hobbled along as best he could. Not until Tuesday evening was he seen again, making his foriorn appearance at a farmhouse.

"The Army was going to shoot me," The Army was going to shoot me," The Army was going to shoot me," This situation alarmed the farm people, and instead of giving the wanderer protection it was suggested that he return to camp right away. The certainty for death there and his intense suffering, drove Tony temporarily insane, and he seized an ax, brandishing it after a group of me who had gathered. A platoon of soldiers eventually came and "captured" Tony, and every effort was made to save his frost-bitten feet, all in vain. Infection set in, and amputation was necessary. Poor Tony!
