

CHAS. E. FRITCHER IS DEAD AT 71

State Statute Clerk Widely Known Through Long Service

Charles E. Fritcher, aged 71, died at his home, 110 Walnut street, Saturday afternoon after a brief illness. For fifteen years he compiled the laws of the state, and he has been in the service of the state for twenty years or more. He has been state statute clerk in the State Department since the office was created about fifteen years ago. He was formerly on the staff of the Gazette and Bulletin, Williamsport, and was a well-known newspaperman. It is thought that his illness was brought on by injuries received when he slipped on the ice near his home, last December. He is survived by his wife and a son, Louis K. Fritcher, of Detroit, Michigan.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock at the funeral parlors of Rudolph K. Spicer, corner, 511 North Second street, and burial will be made at New Brunswick, New Jersey.

His public service brought him into contact with many prominent men and he was widely known.

neighbors of this county and by representative citizens from any other sections of the state.

This beautiful and quaint college community made a record with the largest turnout of men and women to honor a candidate for office, ever witnessed in this commonwealth.

Automobiles blocked the roads for miles in every direction and thousands who came by railroad or special trolley cars or busses joined in a demonstration as unprecedented in its enthusiasm, as it was unique in many of its features.

There was a conspicuous absence of the conventional political atmosphere.

It was more like a social function following the graduation day exercises at Swarthmore College, whose president, Dr. Joseph Swain, presided at the informal meeting which came after a preliminary reception at which Senator Sproul had an opportunity to greet the early comers.

Many men and women in evening dress assembled in Sirath Haven Inn.

While the voters were grasping the hand of the Senator in one room a committee of women was directing a special reception in honor of Mrs. Sproul in another.

Prominent Men Speak Both men and women took part in the meeting, at which Senator Sproul announced his platform and where speeches in support of his nomination for governor and telling of his special fitness of the office were made by Samuel W. Vauclain, chairman of the board of National Defense and head of the Baldwin Locomotive Works; Frank B. McClain of Lancaster, Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania, and Rev. Russell H. Conwell, president of Temple University.

The reading of a letter from former Governor Edwin N. Stuart, cordially supporting Senator Sproul, was received with applause.

Senator Sproul's platform is given in another column. He was cheered repeatedly as he spoke.

The committee which directed the reception to Mrs. Sproul, the members included Mrs. Martin B. Young, chairman; Mrs. William P. Potter, wife of Supreme Court Justice Potter; Mrs. Joseph Swain, wife of the president of Swarthmore College; Mrs. Edward Temple, Mrs. John A. Miller, Mrs. Charles D. Jayce, Mrs. Thomas S. Safford, Mrs. Joseph E. Haines, William W. Matos, Mrs. Casper Sharpless and Mrs. Charles Parker, acted as the hostesses for the function. During the time of the two receptions an orchestra, rendered a classical concert program.

The demonstration was organized by a non-partisan citizens committee of one hundred, of which Charles D. Jayce was chairman and William W. Matos, secretary. Edward E. Temple, chief engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was chairman of the reception committee.

President Swain greets Candidate Dr. Joseph Swain, president of Swarthmore College, in his open address, spoke as follows:

"In 1906, Dr. Edward H. Magill, then the venerable president emeritus of Swarthmore College, in a bulletin in which he published a brief statement concerning all the alumni of the college of the first twenty classes, wrote the following paragraph:

"William Cameron Sproul, B. S. Born at Gettysburg, Lancaster county, Pa., September 16, 1870. Prepared for college at Negaunee (Mich.) High School and Chester, Pa., High School. After graduation purchased one-half interest in the Chester Daily Times. Elected to Senate of Pennsylvania, 1894; re-elected, 1900 and 1904, and elected president pro tempore of the Senate 1903; re-elected 1905. Became vice president of Roach's shipyard, 1898; president of Seaboard Steel Casting Company and Chester Shipping Company, 1900; president Coal River Railway of West Virginia, 1905; director in several banks, railroads and other corporations. Married, 1892, Emeline Wallace Roach, of Chester. Two children; Dorothy Wallace, b. 1893; and John Roach, b. 1895. Address Chester, Pa.; business address, 418 Market street, Chester, Pa."

"In the thirteen years since Dr. Magill wrote the above, Senator Sproul has continued to grow in power and service to his country and state so that no one is able even to summarize his career and the scope of his labor and achievements in a single paragraph, or in many paragraphs.

A Versatile Candidate "The Governor of Pennsylvania should be familiar with the complex business interests of the state. Senator Sproul is pre-eminently a business man of great diversity of interests. He is a publicist and journalist, a manufacturer and farmer, and has organized and conducted many lines of industry, being a large factor in the promotion of the business welfare of Pennsylvania. He has at the present time, various lines of industry which he owns in whole or in part in twenty counties of this state. He was a prime mover in the establishment of the shipyards and other industrial developments for several miles above and below Chester on the Delaware river front.

"In a word then, with ripe experience and still in the prime of life, with unswerving patriotism, illustrated by his approval of the desires of his only son to go 'over there' and who is now in France as a first lieutenant of the regular army, with an unusual combination of attainments and qualities for leadership and an abiding love for his native state, I believe Senator Sproul is not only the type of man, but THE man for Governor; not only to lead his own party, but to be the chief executive in this trying period of the whole people of the state of Pennsylvania."

McClain Approves Record Lieutenant Governor McClain said:

"The man you honor to-night deserves your unstinted praise. For a quarter of a century he has gone about among the people of this community doing all the good he could and making no fuss about it. He has helped upbuild and make great the industrial enterprises that have added to the fame of his home town and furnished employment to thousands of its people. Ever looking forward and never a 'pull-back,' he has given enthusiastic encouragement and support to every civil movement and betterment that has carried the city of Chester and the town of Delaware county forward."

"I make no exaggeration when I say that there has been no member of either branch of the Assembly who has displayed greater capacity, and but very few equal capacity, than the guest of the evening in dealing with subjects vital to the welfare of the people of the Keystone State.

"During the more than twenty years of his service as a legislator he has done nothing for which he need apologize, and his record in that respect stands out almost unique in Pennsylvania history. In public life the same high conception of duty which has marked his course that has marked his course in private life."

"From time to time statements have appeared in the newspapers that he had an ambition to be governor of Pennsylvania, but as yet no official declaration to that effect has come from him, and his friends whose number is legion, throughout the Commonwealth are hoping and waiting to hear him express himself unambiguously and in the affirmative. The need of the time in Pennsylvania is for a governor of the type of William C. Sproul.

ARCHBISHOP OF YORK LEAVES A LASTING IMPRESSION HERE

The time for the Primate's reception and address was short; everybody was disappointed in not hearing a longer message from him, and yet he said the gist of what he thought, namely that "What Abraham Lincoln settled for the American people must now settle for the world." He, thus, brought the huge and scattered war of to-day down to a concrete view-point for most every American understands what Lincoln did, not only for this nation but for the whole world in emancipating the slaves.

When the primate spoke of the battle, then and now progressing, he was plainly agitated, several times trembling with emotion. That the crisis is affecting men of authority in England far more than in America was made evident to observing ones.

The fact that devastation is everywhere and that there was no military demonstration was of no consequence to this man of profound thought. He carried away the conviction that Harrisburg was responsive to his appeal and it may be added that no theme could have appealed so strongly as Abraham Lincoln.

PLAN ENTERTAINMENTS The Young Men's Hebrew Association held a meeting in their hall last evening for the purpose of planning a series of entertainment, for which special committees will be appointed this week.

Philadelphia, March 25.—The fact that invitations had been sent out for a lecture at the Ardmore home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund C. Evans to-night by Scott Nearing, under arrest on a disloyalty charge, was discovered yesterday by Captain Donaghy chief of police of Lower Merion township, and various expressions of indignation and threats have been voiced to the chief. So he sent word to the Evans home that he would stop the meeting, if an effort be made to carry out the plan.

"The meeting cannot take place in Philadelphia, and the chief of police, Captain Donaghy said, 'Nearing's coming here at his time, after his recent arrest, and since he has attracted much attention by his utterances, would be like waving a red rag before a herd of bulls. I have been told in no uncertain terms by the members of the local communities that if Nearing is permitted to carry out his plan and speak, even to an audience at the Evans home, they will take up arms and take other steps to establish a reign of terror which will have no parallel. As a police measure I will prevent the meeting.'

War Cross Is Spiked to Coffin of Soldier Who Stuck to His Post

By Associated Press France, Thursday, March 21.—The French commander of a division with which American troops are being trained to-day awarded the Cross of War to an American infantryman who two nights ago gave his life rather than abandon his post, on the War Cross was spiked to the coffin before burial.

Two infantrymen entered an abandoned trench to establish a snipers post when they observed Germans in the wire before the American trenches. Other Germans arrived. They began an exchange of rifle fire which resulted in a barrage from both sides. At the end of an hour the enemy gave up the attempt to enter the American lines and withdrew. Then it was discovered that one of the two Americans had been killed. There was plenty of cover within a few yards, but he remained at his post throughout the artillery battle.

The distinguished service cross has been awarded to Corporal Charles H. Burke, infantry. His citation reads: "Severely wounded while patrolling, he refused to leave his platoon commander, who also was severely wounded, at the side of the trench during an intense bombardment and insisted on driving off an enemy patrol."

Lieutenant who, as previously recorded, took a prisoner in a line of duty in the trench at the side of the trench in Charleston, S. C. He and all the men in the patrol have been given ten days leave in recognition of their services.

NEW CLASSICAL SONG Quaint Ballad on the Order of "A Perfect Day"

It is a relief on looking over new songs to note that a better grade style is coming into vogue and that classical works are being preferred to the cheap popular grade. One of these is a composition by just out on the order of Nevins' "Rosary" and "The Sunshine of Your Smile," called "Sometime You'll Remember Me." Here is a part of the music cut from a copy just received. The harmony, of course, is omitted:

Sometime You'll Remember RAYMOND WALLACE. MAURICE HEAD. Sometime you'll remember, Tho' the skies are blue, Some-one's sad - ly pin - ing all the time for you; Somewhere we shall meet, dear, When the years have down, Someday you will tell 'me, You are mine Somewhere, Somewhere, Somewhere, The song is quite a novelty in its way. It possesses a simple melody running up to a strong climax with accompaniment of many odd harmonies, aimed at developing the voice. The song is published in six different keys.
