QUAL SURVEY NOW UNDER WAY Dr. Kalbfus Aims to See How the Birds Survived the Winter in State "We are going to have data gathered on the way the quail in Pennsylvania stood the winter and then contrast the condition with Ohio where they made the quail a song bird, as was tried when the last Legislature of our state was in session," said Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, Secretary of the State Game Commission, in talking over the game situation. "It is my opinion that the game in Pennsylvania stood the very severe winter better than any other State. I imagine because sportsmen and game lovers and in some communities, farmers who realized the value of the quail as insect destroyers, scattered feed for the birds. Our own wardens did considerable of this work using funds provided by the State. The game has been found in good shape since the coming of spring to be in fair shape. The state's plans for propagation are working out as the pheasants which have been held in captivity during the winter are being sent out and more are due from other states. A large number of wild turkeys are being distributed in southern counties. The Mexican quail will be here before long. Many requests have come for them. "Just as an illustration of the interest being taken in Pennsylvania in the proposition to close the counties to the shooting of ruffed grouse for a year or two in one of the counties which that game bird is found, received a petition, in some cases ten, and they are being circulated. It is expected that every county except Philadelphia will petition the Game Commission to close the county for two years. In some counties where sportsmen say there are only half a dozen grouse, petitions have been asked because the writers say they want to keep what they have. The idea is to group the petitions and have the Commission act some time in April. "According to what has been heard here as soon as counties are formally closed by the Commission, which will be done after hearings are given and formalities in the act complied with, a number of sportsmen propose to secure ruffed grouse and propagate them so there will be hunting about 1920 or 1921. The State Game authorities have been conducting an industrious search for grouse in various states, but everywhere the men in charge seem desirous of holding on to what they have. "One of the things which has attracted comment here is that so few stories of big bucks or bear shot have come to Harrisburg. Generally there are all kinds of hunting stories, but this year, probably due to the early coming of severely cold winter weather and deep snows the usual crop of hunting stories was not told and the hunting history of Pennsylvania remains unmetched. "A fruitful source of discussion is whether more bucks were not killed than reported. The returns of wardens showed 1,723 deer killed, but it is thought that close to 1,800 were shot. After the lists were made up some Forestry Department reports showed better shooting. The number of bear killed has been a surprise to people in other states, who have written here remarking upon the fact that over 250 were shot. "Comparatively little criticism has come here about the operation of the new game code and the impression seems to be that it should be permitted to stand the test of at least four years.

Writes Home of Training Work in Santo Domingo, Where Life Is Strange Harrisburg men in service and out of it will envy the situation of Albert H. Maguire, a newspaperman and son of Mrs. Mary Gottschall, 3105 North Second street, who was one of the first to reach his station being on the island of Santo Domingo. This spot is one of the quaintest and most interesting in any of the Seven Seas and now being under American rule, all this told of it becomes important. Writing on January 20, he says: "We have returned from the ride range, where it was like living on a floating island. The food was the best of food, and I never felt better, happier or more contented in all my life. The other members of the United and Thirteenth Companies have now had time to get well acquainted, and it is certain a fine time is being had here. There are chaps from Boston, a Harvard man, and fellows from the back hills of Texas. They are all of them should bear them when they talk their various dialects. Our leisure is a continuous routine of sun-bathing in the Caribbean sea every day on a wonderful beach across from the fort. To-day the stormy and just now a sailing ship was driven on the rocks right near us. The crew all perished, after a desperate struggle, and the ship is now being slashed into kindling wood against the rocks. Yesterday there was a religious parade, looked like every nation in the parade, following the banners and candles. The streets were choked with people and incense was burned everywhere. The night before we heard music everywhere in the streets, when there were fandangos going on. "They are a merry, happy, pleasure-loving people here, and life in the city is quite gay, as in Spain, although there is an uncommon change when they get into the interior. There the people are black, very ignorant and live almost as primitively as Indians. "We have to but company an Episcopal minister, who is not afraid to fight, comes from the Middle West and does a good deal of preaching between duties. I found here a little colony of Spanish and English-speaking negroes, and from the Virgin Islands. They are the only Protestants on the island; Moravians and Methodists, a branch of the A. M. E. in the States. "A second letter is written from the village of Aquia, of the province, on February 9, after a long, tedious trip over the mountains of the island. The trip was a "series" of detours, and drives from one water hole to another, through steaming heat with plenty of cactus and wild geese, palm and sugar cane. The company will likely stay in this province for some time, as business is being done and run down a famous bandit, the last one in Santo Domingo.

O'NEILL RESIGNS CAMP COMMAND Allentown Officer; Physically Unable to Stand Strain Leaves Hancock

Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga., March 25.—The resignation of Brigadier General Christopher T. O'Neill, commander of the Fifty-fifth infantry brigade, was announced from division headquarters at Camp Hancock yesterday. He is to leave at once for his home in Allentown. While no cause for the general's resignation has been ascribed, either officially or by General O'Neill himself, officers are of the opinion that he is leaving the service because he realizes that with his years he would be unable to withstand the hardships of a vigorous war campaign overseas. General O'Neill is the second commander of the Fifty-fifth brigade to resign since the reorganization. It is composed of the One Hundred and Ninth regiments, the men mainly being Philadelphians, and the One Hundred and Tenth regiments, men from the middle sections of Pennsylvania. Until a successor to General O'Neill is appointed, the brigade will be commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Wallace W. Fetter. The most likely successor to General O'Neill, so far as could be learned to-day, is Colonel Edward L. King, chief of staff. Although Colonel King is from Massachusetts, he has won the high regard of all the Pennsylvania officers. He is a regular army officer, having risen from the ranks and has an experience of twenty-five years in the service. Other resignations and honorable discharges for the week at Camp Hancock were announced yesterday as follows: Captain William T. Earl, One Hundred and Third supply train. It is announced that his resignation was accepted "for the good of the service." Captain Earl is from Morristown. Lieutenant Harry I. Seiber, Lancaster, One Hundred and Third supply train, resigned. Lieutenant Irwin E. Beaman, Reading, One Hundred and Eighth machine gun battalion, honorable discharge. Lieutenant Harry E. Robb, Huntingdon, One Hundred and Twelfth infantry, resigned. Lieutenant William S. Houser, Philadelphia, One Hundred and Tenth infantry, resigned. Lieutenant Houser was formerly attached to the Third infantry brigade.
