THE COQUETTISH AND THE PRACTICAL.

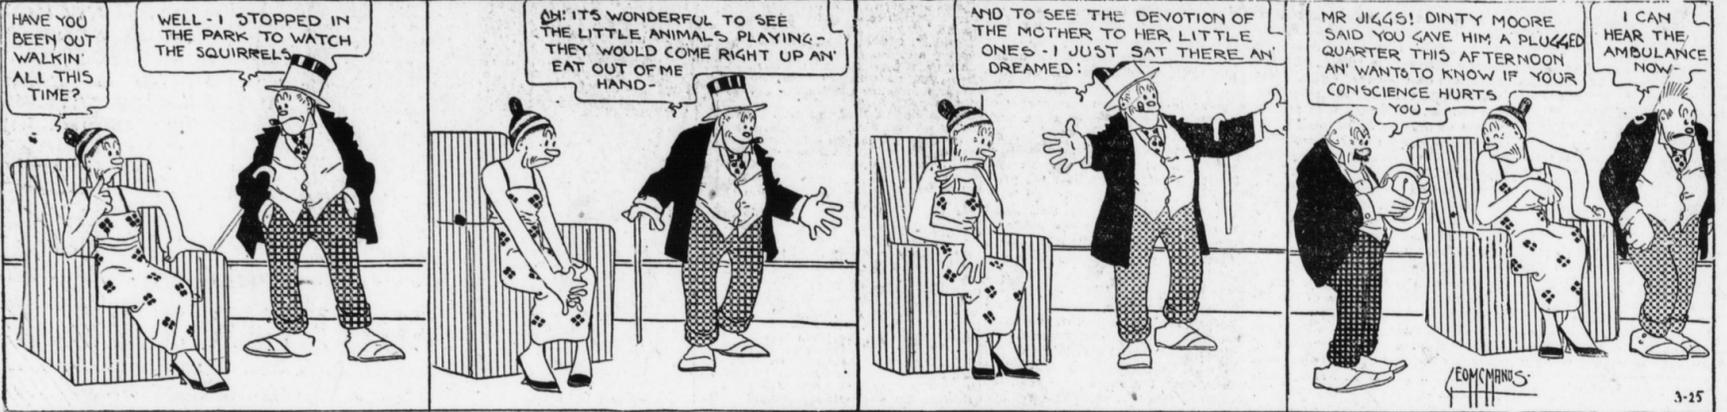

The bustle frocks hold their own despite the insistence of straight-line frocks. Here is shown a charming effect in printed organdy trimmed with very narrow bands of taffeta ribbon. The skirt is caught up at the back and worn with an overwaist of self-material under which is a blouse of plain lawn with deep sailor collar. The sleeves match the skirt. In medium size the model requires 5 yards 36-inch organdy, with 1 1/2 yard lawn for the blouse and 2 1/4 yards lining for the upper part of foundation skirt.

The tailor is one of the successful models for early spring, being liked well for its simplicity and wearable lines. Blue serge is utilized in its development, the coat falling in points at the front. It has a deep shawl collar of plain satin and sleeves trimmed with buttons. Medium size requires 4 1/2 yards 54-inch material.

Bringing Up Father

THE FOUR OF HEARTS

A SERIAL OF YOUTH AND ROMANCE
By VIRGINIA VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER XXXIII

"Love is too sacred a thing to be taken up lightly, and handled heedlessly!"

The sentence rang in Cynthia Long's ears as she walked homeward through the gathering dusk of the March day.

Edward Van Saun had spoken the words in such a manner that the girl felt as if there was a grave significance about them. To her receptive mind they seemed to be directed at her.

What her aunt had said a little over an hour ago recurred to her now. She had voiced the opinion that Cynthia did not appreciate what she had meant in the lonely life of Gerald Stewart. Surely there could be no truth in that statement.

The puzzled girl tried to think out the situation clearly and sanely. Gerald Stewart had always been kind to her, but he had shown her no particular attention. Until last night there had seemed to be no particular attraction between them. To be sure, he had assisted her into the house on the night of the automobile accident, just as Milton had carried her from the cab to the Livingstone's car.

She had let Gerald help her, for she had fancied that Dora looked uncomfortable when Milton offered his services. If so, then Dora was jealous. But there was no cause for her to be jealous. Surely Gerald had not felt jealousy, too!

Mrs. Livingstone had suggested that Milton ought not to cause his friend unhappiness by his attentions to Cynthia. The phrase of the subject had never occurred to Cynthia before. Perhaps it was all a figment of her aunt's imagination. Yet even Mrs. Livingstone would hardly make such a charge as that unless it had some foundation. It was all very perplexing.

A thought struck her with such suddenness that she stopped short in the middle of the sidewalk until a passerby, looking at her curiously, brought her back to a realization of her surroundings, and she hurried on, the astounding idea still possessing her.

Advice to the Lovorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Does He Ask You to Wait?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going about with a young man, five years younger than I am, for the past year. Now this young man is in the Army. Do you think I ought to wait until he comes or not, as I love him dearly? And the difference in our ages is what keeps me back, as I think when he comes out I will be too old. He is 25 and I am 30. Now, would you kindly give me your advice in this matter?

E. H.

What does the young man say? Does he want you to wait? And if you didn't "wait" for him, is there any other suitor clamoring for your attentions? A woman of 30 may easily be young enough in spirit and ideas for a man of 25. When this lad comes home from the war his experience will be aged him greatly and you will not be too old for him at all if your heart itself is young. You don't actually tell me whether he wants you to marry him or not. I have an idea that you wrote just because of a romantic desire to make something out of nothing, and yet your letter contains the suggestion of a real problem. The girl who loves a soldier will gladly make her little sacrifice of waiting for him to come back. He is taking chances with his life—why should not she risk her happiness?

ANOTHER SHOT AT THE HUN THROUGH OLD PICTURES

American Protective League Wants Enemy Scenes For Government Use

At the request of the War Department, the local organization of the American Protective League, operating under the direction of the United States Department of Justice, Bureau of Investigation, has undertaken to procure for intelligence purposes photographs, drawings and descriptions of bridges, buildings, towns and localities now occupied by the German forces in France, Belgium and Luxembourg and that portion of Germany lying west of a line running north and south through Hamburg.

Word has been given out that any material of this sort is immediately desired and that, no matter how old or in what condition, it should be wrapped up and marked for the American Protective League, Government Information, and mailed to the American Protective League, this city, or a postcard addressed to the American Protective League, this city, and stating that such material is ready at your home will result in a man being sent to get it.

The American Protective League is an organization with national headquarters in Washington, D. C., with A. M. Briggs, Charles Daniel Frey and Victor Zitting as national directors.

From there it stretches out into every city and town in the country, with its chiefs and through the offices of hundreds of executives. The personnel of the organization is not known and each operative only knows that he reports to a certain man—and he keeps his mouth shut about that—so it is said no one really knows whether his next-door neighbor or the man next to him in the streetcar or restaurant is a member of the League, and important work has and is being done by these "citizen secret service men" in forwarding valuable information through the organization lines to the Department of Justice and in the aiding of the selective draft authorities in the various cities towards the apprehension of slackers.

Aside from this "watchful eye" duty, the League has aided the Department of Justice in many other ways. It has now undertaken to obtain photographs and drawings of localities abroad which undoubtedly, it has been pointed out, are in the hands of many good Americans who would be very glad to donate them in this way for Government use.

Cast-off Garments Needed For Hospital Rummage Sale

Red Cross workers request that persons with castoff garments which they desired to contribute to the Belgian and French refugees, keep these garments for the Hospital Rummage Sale, inasmuch as the garments for the war sufferers have already been shipped.

The officials of the local chapter are highly pleased with the large amount of clothing received in answer to their pleas. The clothing is being shipped to Philadelphia.

A number of interesting contributions were received. Among them was a beautiful coverlet given by a woman and cleaned free of charge by a local laundry. A pair of worn blankets was also received. The blankets were spotted and were cleaned without charge by a local dyehouse.

TWO FIRES IN PARK

A fire Saturday, and another yesterday, which destroyed grass and shrubbery in Wildwood park, were extinguished before any property with the assistance of several boys damage had been done. A blaze in the Camp Curtin chemical truck close to the pavilion Saturday was extinguished by John Gunderman, to extinguish a similar fire in the janitor of the Foose school building, park.

Ruth Mell Tells of Mother's Recovery

Wants Others to Know of Miraculous Change Tanlac Promptly Brought About

"My mother's health has shown such a wonderful improvement since she has been taking Tanlac that I feel it my duty to let others know so that they may profit by her experience," says Ruth Mell, an attractive young woman of Monticello, near Reading, Pa.

"Mother had a torpid liver and as a result she was tormented with stomach trouble. She started in on Tanlac on the advice of a friend. The results have been really miraculous, for now she has a wonderful appetite and can hardly wait for meal times, she feels brighter and stronger and rests beautifully at night.

"My sister has been taking Tanlac, too, and they are both enthusiastic over it for the help it has been to them."

Tanlac is now being introduced here at Gorge's Drug Store.

Strive To Have Healthy Skin

Next time you are in a gathering of women note the different conditions apparent in complexion. You will see some filled with blackheads, some dry and rough, some smooth and greasy, some smeared with rouge, some streaked with heavy metallic powders and once in a while you will see one that is a demonstration of intelligence from every point of view. The color is rosy, the skin is clear and smooth, the pores are small and open, the powder does not show on the firm vigorous skin. Every woman can have a good complexion if she will only use a little discretion. If you would acquire real beauty, the beauty of perfect health, you must replenish your worn-out nerves with lecithin. Nature's own nerve restorer, and put into your blood the invigorating iron which Nature intended it to have for health. In most of the modern foods these and other vitalizing elements have been largely eliminated. Yet to be healthy and beautiful the system must have them. They are found in Bio-feron, not only in proper proportions to restore weakened vitality but in such form as the system can best assimilate them.

A treatment of lecithin and iron peptonate as combined in Bio-feron increases the appetite, aids nutrition and invigorates the patient.

And Bio-feron in its pellet form is easy and palatable to take—no liquid

Government Completes Plans to Train Men For Service With Air Fleet

Washington, March 25.—Preliminary to the establishment of the first general government school for training men for state corps duty have been completed, Provost Marshal General Crowder announced today in calling 4,509 draft registrants to equip themselves to assist in the maintenance of America's air fleet.

The call was made on Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa and Indiana, and men will be given a thorough training course in wood working and gas engine operation and repair at fourteen educational institutions selected by the government throughout the country.

The voluntary induction system will be tried, the announcement said, but where the state fails to produce quota, local boards will be directed to conscript enough men to complete it. It is specified that the registrant must at least have had a grammar school education. Assignment to duty will be made according to ability shown.

The schools and quotas which Minnesota is directed to send include 300 men to Carnegie School of Technology, Pittsburgh; 180 to Pennsylvania College; 320 to University of Pittsburgh.

WRITING TO SOLDIERS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been corresponding with a soldier whom I do not know. These letters are interesting and not at all personal. My parents, however, do not wish me to write to him, but I think that by writing it is at least keeping up one soldier's spirits. What can you suggest?

PATRIOTIC.

I understand both your point of view and that of your parents. Naturally they do not want their daughter to write to a man of whom she knows absolutely nothing. They fear a romantic attachment, possible danger, undesirable friendship. You, on the other hand, long to do something to help a boy in the uniform of his country, and you idealize him because he wears that uniform. Now, if you can keep your letters impersonal and think that it would be well not to give a soldier the hurt of breaking off a correspondence once begun. Suppose you settle the question this way: Show your letters to your parents, and should they object, show them to me if you were writing to your brother. Then, if you still enjoy the correspondence under their guidance, it will be safe to go on.

AMERICAN GUNS INFLECT HEAVY DAMAGE ON ENEMY

By Associated Press

With the American Army in France, March 25.—On the Toul front there was considerable artillery activity during the night. American guns heavily shelled the German front line positions. Enemy batteries replied, using many gas shells. Later, photographs of the damage inflicted by the Americans were taken from air planes.

Lieut. "Smiling" Pat O'Brien, of the British Royal Flying Corps, born in Momence, Ill., and a veteran American aviator, is the hero of war's most astounding air and land adventure.

In August 1917, after bringing down one of four Hun battle planes which he was fighting singly, he himself was shot down and fell from a height of 8,000 feet back of the enemy lines.

He "came to" a prisoner in a German hospital, sound in body, but with a German bullet in the roof of his mouth.

From the moment of his recovery he planned his escape and his revenge. Weeks later, when eighty-five miles into German territory and on a German prison train, speeding at thirty-five miles an hour, he jumped through an open window.

With the wounds in his mouth re-opened, his face mutilated, his eye closed and his ankle sprained by the fall, he began his "crawl" through Germany, Luxemburg and Belgium to safety.

He endured unspeakable agony, outguessed and outwitted the Hun at every turn, and after seventy-two days dug under the 10,000 volt wire at the border and passed emaciated and three-fourths starved into Holland and to freedom.

DON'T MARRY HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am going to marry with a young man in the Marine Corps. I know nothing of his people, whether he is a soldier or a splendid man, or anything on what he says. He is anxious to marry, but I hardly know what to do. I have a splendid position, and feel as though by marrying him I would have to do without a great many things which I have been used to getting.

Now, Miss Fairfax, I am only 17, and have no mother or anyone to whom to go for advice.

"I had poor blood and from that I began to get sore eruptions on my face. My face was of a reddish color, and I had pimples. My face itched which caused me to scratch and I could not sleep because the eruption hurt very much. This trouble lasted about two months.

"Then I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It helped me very much, and it took two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and four cakes of Cuticura Soap to heal me." (Signed) Samuel Loppinson, 423 Toxer St., Philadelphia, Pa., July 31, 1917.

Keep your skin clear by daily use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Sample Each Free by Mail. Address postcard: "Cuticura, Dept. H, Boston." Sold everywhere. Soap 5c. Ointment 25c and 5c.

There will be other great deeds of valor before the war is finished but none will excel this heroic adventure of the ever-smiling American aviator.
