Life's Problems Are Discussed

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

Ceturies ago, not quite four years in reality, the old strange world with its old, strange gods, was taking its last maddest, merriest fling. It danc-ed night and day! There was someed night and day! There was some-where an old superstition that a dancing craze had always preceded a great war. But nobody heeded it, nobody heeded anything. Nobody cared for anything—but to dance. And the king of the revels was a famous dancer, and its queen was his lovely wife—Vernon and Irene Castle.

Broadway had crowned them, and the designers are turning out a number of attractive, yet conservative frocks for spring and summer. The long loose tunic that is greatly in evidence is featured on the model to the left. It is in blue cashmere trimmed with plaid silk, 2½ yards 40-inch silk and 4 yards 44-inch cashmere being required for medium size.

White challis makes up the second girdle frock most appealingly. The skirt is gathered to the waist, sans girdle, and has the side drapery incorporated with the pockets. Double collars, one of silk, trim the neck, while the sleeves are gathered into suffs of silk. Medium size requires 5 yards 44-inch challis and 1 yard 27-inch silk.

THEIR MARRIED LIFE

"Warren, that man is beckoning to you!"

"Nonsense! He's trying to attract that girl's attention," as a girl hurried by them.

"No, he isn't dear; he wants you; you'd better stop."

Helen was certainly right and the man did seem to be trying to attract their attention. Warren, after a second's hesitation, walked over to the machine, whereupon the driver stopped the car and threw attract their attention. Warren, atter a second's hesitation, walked over to the machine, whereupon the driver stopped the car and threw open the door. The inside offered a cozy shelter from the bitter wind, for it was thoroughly warmed and comfortable.

"Going my way?" queried a jolly voice. "If so, won't you get in and let me give you a lift?"

He spoke in an easy, well-bred manner, yet Helen noticed that he wore a chauffeur's uniform. She had stepped into the car and settled herself on the cushioned seat before she noticed that Warren looked, blacker than ever as he complied. She wondered what made him so unappreciative, but as the intimacy of the closed car prevented her asking him, she stuck to generalities and remarked.

ner asking him, she stuck to generalities and remarked.

"It was a good bill, wasn't it, dear?" The entire incident seemed an exciting adventure to Helen; she couldn't imagine such a thing hap-
