CITY BANKERS AT STATE HEARING

Donald McCormick and Geo. W. Reilly Discuss the State's Banking Law System

Donald McCormick, president of the Dauphin Deposit Trust Company, and George W. Reilly, vice-president of the Harrisburg Trust Company, were among the bankers who discussed the state banking law system with the state commission to revise and codify the banking laws at the public hearing in the hall of the House of Representatives to-day.

They made some suggestions and were thanked by the commissioners for their ideas. The two Harrisburg men were also asked many questions as to the situation in this district by Chairman Edwards and other members of the committee.

Suggestions for radical changes in the state's banking laws and a declaration by State Banking Commissioner Daniel F. Lefcan that there should be more effort on the part of the National Government to cooperate with the state-chartered banking institutions marked the hearing. Mr. Lefcan said that he meant that there should be more effort on the part of the National Government to cooperate with the state-chartered banking institutions marked the hearing. Mr. Lefcan said that he meant that there should be more effort on the part of the National Government to cooperate with the state-chartered banking institutions marked the hearing.

One of the suggestions was that there should be power to refuse bank or trust company charters and a state board to consider appeals from rulings by the Commissioner on new charters.

Representatives of state institutions asked the privilege of discounting commercial paper so that they could discount it with the federal reserve bank without any question and a suggestion was made that the reserve bank should be made available for the reserve bank, thus avoiding making of other records. The question was brought out whether or not four mills tax on money at interest should not be changed so as to exempt checking accounts and members of the bank.

In addition to Mr. Lefcan, Deputy Commissioner John W. Morrison, Frank M. Eastman, in charge of escheat matters; F. H. Lehman, of the Auditor General's Department; Paul Littlefield, of the State Chamber of Commerce; Representative M. R. Hoffman and J. Brandt, of Lancaster, spoke on banking problems.

The commission will meet tomorrow in Pittsburgh.
