

SEARCH HILLS IN VAIN FOR INVALID WHO LEFT HOME

Sick Man Escaped When His Wife Relaxed Vigilance For First Time

A. S. NEAL

A search of the hills north of the city by state police and others today has revealed no clue to the whereabouts of A. S. Neal, the invalid who disappeared from his home, 1728 Logan street, after four years' illness during which he never left his house, and seldom his bed.

His wife, Mrs. Catherine Neal, sustained a serious nervous shock by her husband's disappearance, reiterating this morning to the reporter: "It's a terrible, terrible shock to me, after four years' of constant devotion, to have this thing happen. For the last two years I have never left his bedside at night, always watching over him from a chair at his bedside."

The story of his disappearance was told by Mrs. Neal herself this morning, who has nearly recovered her composure and is waiting anxiously for the reports of the searchers. Her story was interrupted repeatedly by the arrival of messengers who reported the progress of the search, but bore no news of his discovery.

First Time Asleep

"I don't know why it was, but about 4 o'clock in the morning," said the little woman, "my eyes felt so heavy I could not sit up. It is the first in two years that I have ever fallen asleep during the night. I have always sat at his bedside watching over him. But this time I could not keep my eyes open, and I lay down on the edge of the bed and must have fallen into a sound sleep. Soon after, when I awakened, he was gone. The shock was so great I searched the entire neighborhood, but we could find no sign of him."

Mrs. Neal affirmed that her husband had been melancholy about his condition for some time. She said that every time the report of a death reached his ears he lamented the fact that his existence dragged on. Mrs. Neal said her husband had always been fond of going into the woods alone, and that he had probably made his way there. He always enjoyed talking about a hut in the mountains, and it is becoming increasingly certain in the minds of his friends that he wandered into the mountains and died of exposure.

TONALL HEALTH TALKS

BILOUSNESS Makes Life a Burden — Tonall gives the needed relief. Biliousness is caused by the natural sewers of the body getting clogged up and the bile is ever falling, being denied its natural channel, is turned into the blood.

Life is a burden to the bilious person. The sufferer may have an abnormal appetite, yet has no desire for action. He is troubled in his sleep, has pains, a bitter taste in the mouth. The tongue is coated and he has dizzy spells. All this may lead to dangerous forms of disease as the body is more susceptible than to the judgment of disease than when in its normal healthy condition.

Tonall is a foe to biliousness and all kindred ailments. The Roots, Herbs and Barks being nature's aids when taken in Tonall, as a medicine, brings the system back to health again.

Tonall is sold at Gorgas' Drug Store, Harrisburg, Pa., where the Tonall chemist will explain its merits.

SONG FESTIVAL TO HAVE BIG CLIMAX

It is expected that the audience will be the largest of the festival events. Reception at Luncheon The Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce at noon to-day gave Dr. Freund the warmest reception he had in the city, which is saying a good deal. Introduced by President Patterson, the champion of singing completely won the audience with his first words: "I deny that the American businessman is cold and without ideals. It took mighty ideas and ideals to build skyscrapers, and all the other marvels of this nation. If there is a true idealist in the world it is the businessman and that's why I am here asking you to support this great cause in Harrisburg."

Dr. Freund kept the Chamber of Commerce men in a tensely of interest and they applauded him to say again. He announced that something very important would very likely soon come from Governor Brumbaugh with the bishopric of whom this morning. "This will probably be an edict creating a singing day throughout the state. If it goes through," he predicted, "it will run up the whole nation." He told how his mission was to bring back music to the people and reminded them of the mighty influence of one great song, "The Marseilles," which over turned a nation. He was voted a most emphatic thanks and many were anxious to introduce him to that it was the most inspiring talk they had ever heard. Bishop Darlington took the meeting, made open house with the bishopric of whom this morning's guest and several scores others viewed the bishop's splendid collection of musical instruments.

As the schools are to be the main basis for establishing community singing, Technical High this morning volunteered, in the person of William Watson, a senior, to sing the great movement immediately upon Dr. Freund's splendid address. Judging by this school boy's success, community singing will find no obstacle here. Watson first sang the Marseilles, so impressively to the crowded auditorium that a perfect storm of applause followed, and he came back for the encore. "Come on, boys," he invited, "I'll sing a verse of 'Home Fires' and then we'll start the community singing off with a bang. And away it went, the mighty chorus from smiling enthusiastic boys, moving the 70-year old pioneer almost to tears. He said it was the finest reception and results he ever experienced. From the Technical High Dr. Freund was motored in the Troup car, and accompanied by Mrs. Sanders and others of the committee, to Central High, and there too, the wave of cheering music rolled high. "If this school does not turn out a Million before many years I shall be vastly disappointed," commented the veteran educator.

The addresses to-day were not identical wherever spoken. Dr. Freund is such a genial spirit, taking the audience into his confidence and making an amusing incident, that Harrisburg could listen to him every day in the year. His personal influence and amazing enthusiasm will not soon be forgotten. "I am nothing but an old newspaper man," was his opening remark at Technical school. "But I am proud of that. Those men live a life of struggle, and self-denial, but they are practical, too. I can see by your expressions that you are wondering why this old fellow is talking about the country and why he left his happy home." With this the Tech students fairly cured up in their extreme mirth, and the musical prophet told them what America is doing with $100,000,000 spent every year on music, more than all the rest of the world together. He asked them to do their bit toward establishing American independence in music, telling how the day has passed when Molly Jenkins must change her name to Madame Olga Emperevitch in order to be recognized as a real singer. He promised that America would lead the world in music before long, producing the best composers, singers and musicians. He ridiculed the modern popular song with such titles as "Won't You Kiss Me in the Spring Time Before I Go to Bed." He told both the High school audience that music is a physical tonic and gave illustrations. He emphasized that practically all great singers, including Caruso, came from the poor families and explained that the field offered uncommon opportunities for girls and boys to be received in the most exclusive society.

More Music in Parks Enthusiasm ran riot last evening in the House of Representatives when Dr. Freund advocated more music in the parks during the summer and in the public schools during their sessions. "Let Harrisburg's massed bands and massed singers get together, well as like combinations throughout the state, and let Pennsylvania lead in the movement, for musical freedom in America," he urged. "We see the country aflame with the power of singing and marching men and women, and it's up to Harrisburg to be among the leaders in helping it along," were the other quotations from his talk.

Dr. Freund called attention to mind that the noblest music has not come from the great masters, wonderful as their music is. "The noblest music is the expression in song of massed souls. Music was not started as an art but came as simple folk and dance songs. And music will return to the people in this movement for the people but to have the people make music for themselves," he stated.

"The American ideal," he said, "is not 'who is your music master?' but 'what is your merit?'" The Star Spangled Banner is the highest expression of massed souls of over one hundred million people and from that point of view transcends the music of any composer, living or dead.

Sing Old Songs Abner W. Hartman was inspiring as a leader of the community sing, the song sheets given by the Harrisburg Telegraph for the entire music festival, containing "America," "Star Spangled Banner," "Swanee River," "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and Allen Sangree's "Your Old Uncle Sam," all of which were sung with a right good-will by the vast audience. William Jennings, chairman of the Dauphin County Committee of Public Safety, presided, introducing Governor Brumbaugh, who wished to be enrolled as one of the ardent supporters of Community Singing, and the Rev. Dr. Robert Bagnell, who made a most forceful patriotic address. The Christian Endeavor Choral Union, directed by Frank A. McCarrell, Mrs. Lentz at the piano, and a fine orchestra accompanying, sang two numbers with excellent effect. The program closed with the "Star Spangled Banner" and the benediction by Dr. Bagnell.

Red Cross Knitter Believed Victim of German Sympathizers

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Mary Barere, a French maid in the home of Miss Emily Brundage, is mysteriously poisoned and it is believed that yarn she used in knitting for the soldier boys was poisoned by German agents or sympathizers. Red Cross authorities are much alarmed over the case and have sent some of the yarn she was using to the national organization for inspection. The physician attending Miss Barere declares he is unable to tell whether she was poisoned from the dyes or whether poison was purposely placed upon it. No other cases have been reported, but Red Cross officials are keeping a sharp lookout.

DRAW PLANS FOR U. S. WAREHOUSES

Some Changes Made in Specifications of Marsh Run Depots

Some changes in plans for the construction of the Quartermaster's Depot at Marsh Run will be necessary before work starts next week. Major William B. Gray with Major Maloney were at Marsh Run yesterday afternoon. To-day Captain Harrie A. Douglas with other engineers from Major Gray's department spent some time on the big site. Surveyors have marked off lines for the railroad tracks and other preliminary work. It is understood that the Pennsylvania Railroad will be asked to handle the track work at Marsh Run. There will be at least twenty-one tracks put down, including sidings, yard tracks and those running into the big warehouses. Connections will be made with both the Pennsylvania low grade and Baltimore division tracks. In all probability the Pennsylvania will erect a large signal tower and government business will be handled under the direction of a special yard force which will be stationed there when the warehouses are completed.

Wells Brothers, the contractors on the new warehouses and buildings at the Aviation Corps headquarters near Middletown have nearly completed two buildings, each 40 by 140 feet in dimensions. They will be used for soldier quarters. One of the buildings will be two stories in height and similar to those at the cantonment camps. On the Keystone Fair site the work is going on with very little interruption. The construction of the railroads and track facilities have moved slowly because of lack of material. At the Philadelphia division offices to-day it was said the railroad track forces would jump in and help in the work so that supplies may be handled more rapidly.

Ruddy, Fourth Lackawanna, filed for renomination. Other petitions filed for the House included W. C. Lebo, Republican, Perry; A. E. Gobble and Peter Boltz, Democrat, Lebanon.

Routine Business Takes Up Time of School Board

Routine business was disposed of at the meeting of the city school board this afternoon, the most important of which were reports with recommendations by Dr. F. E. Downes, school superintendent, and a resolution directing H. F. Oves to bring suit against delinquent taxpayers who do not settle 1916 and 1917 school tax accounts before May 1. Included in the recommendations from Dr. Downes was one advising a change of the school hours at the Camp Curtin building. It is reported this is necessary because of building operations started there by the contractor who is erecting the big addition to the school. A number of resignations were received and accepted upon and other teachers appointed. Estimates in favor of contractors for the Junior High Schools were received from the architects.

KEYSTONE MEN'S MORALE IS HIGH

Adj. General Beary Warmly Praises Pennsylvania Soldiers at Camp Hancock

"The morale of the Keystone division, as the former National Guardsmen of Pennsylvania are now officially known, is of the highest, the men are trained to the minute and will acquire themselves when the time comes in accord with the traditions of Pennsylvania soldiers," declared Adjutant General F. D. Beary on his return from a visit to Camp Hancock. "I made a careful inspection of the camp and watched the men closely. Their health is good and the training is showing. The spirit of the division is high, while they are now marching at 136 steps to the minute and showing marked proficiency with the new rifle."

General Beary said that the keystone was being placed on all vehicles of the division with the appropriate markings for the various branches of service. "What impressed me most, and it has impressed everyone that has been at the camp, is the splendid training the men have had with the bayonet," continued the general. This work is directed by Captain E. J. Stackpole, Jr., a Harrisburger, who is the assistant to Captain Ryan, the British officer. The exercise they had for me was in the 'box' as the reservist used for such training is called, and consisted of 'going over' with rifles loaded and then firing. I admired the 'pep' Captain Stackpole put into the men, his thoroughness and the efficiency displayed. If the men go in France the way I saw them do it under his guidance in Camp Hancock there will be nothing to it."

When arraigned Miss Butterworth told the court of intimate relations with the dead man. "Everybody knows why I did it," she asserted. She said she did not mean to kill Elliott.
