ranks and completely smashed them. Further fighting occurred to-day at Hangard wood, which has been the scene of much cruel fighting in the last few days. The British, in the early hours, delivered counterattacks, by which they forced the enemy back somewhat and took a few prisoners. According to the latest reports, the British are holding on to the western edge of this road. In this connection it is noted that the German prisoners have stated that the enemy planned a strong attack at Hangard wood to-day.

In Nasty Position

The German efforts to-day at Bucquoy and yesterday near Serre were continuations of their strenuous attempts to get themselves out of a rasty position in which they find themselves in this region.

At this point the Germans are holding a very sharp salient, which bulges out into British territory along a line roughly represented by Bucquoy, Hebuterne, Colincamps, Auchonvillers and Hamel. This salient is somewhat saucer-shaped, the outer edge being on high ground. Upon these elevations the British sat down at the end of their retirement and since then have successfully defied the enemy to dislodge them.

Within the salient is an inhospitable zone which formed a part of No Man's Land in the first battle of the Somme. It is shell-torn and altogether it is an unpleasant place over which to conduct operations. Not only is the ground bad, but the whole sector is dominated by British machine guns, which send never-ending streams of bullets swirling down into the enemy camps, which present excellent targets.

If the Germans were to start the second phase of their grand offensive satisfactory communications across the desert which lies just back of their front line. They need the high ground on the edge of their saucer before they can begin a big attack so that they can get their guns forward, for otherwise the artillery would be outdistanced and everything would depend upon the infantry.

ould depend upon the infantry. Attack Is a Fallure

Attack Is a Failure

It was because of this situation that attacks were made last Friday by the Germans. Four more or less fresh divisions were brought up for this operation and a huge number or guns were brought into olay, especially over the back areas. Considerable quantities of gas also were thrown into the vicinity of Fonquevillers, indicating that the Germans did not intend to try to advance to a great depth.

At Bucquoy the Germans had some success and got a footing in some places, but their attack as a whole was a failure. The enemy casualties were very heavy because of the dominating positions held by British machine gunners and riflemen.

Rossignol wood was found filled with German dead and the low-lying ground in front of the ridges told an awful story. It seemed certain the Germans will try again to capture the heights, for they cannot sit where they are.

The British counterattacks at Aveluy wood, south of Mesnil, yesterday were an entire success and the old positions were returned. The men who went through this fight declare the Germans lost three killed to one for the British storued the wood after battling forward with machine guns and rifles and then continued the battle with hand grenades and hombs. The Germans clung desperately to their positions, but were gradually forced to fall back, leaving many dead.

Aaron, Atherton, Burke and Mitchell Will Be the Four to Be Endorsed. It's Said

According to what is being said

O'Neil petitions, which were turned in by Capitol Hill attaches last week, are being scanned and the number of signers added up. They will be filed in a few days. Hurry calls for those circuated about the state have been made. August Hoff, the Harrisburg carpenter who left a Capitol job, to-day declared that instead of presenting a petition for O'Neil with six signers he refused to circulate any at all and "beat them to it" by resigning.

Governor Brumbaugh to-day refused to make any comment upon stories printed in Philadelphia regarding the German-American Alliance in the campaign of 1914.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.
