Mr. and Mrs. James B. Carruthers, of State street, spent the weekend with their son, the Rev. John F. Carruthers, in Washington, and had the pleasure of attending morning service in the Church of the Covenant of which he is an assistant pastor. The exercises were all for the Liberty Loan and the great Bible class, the Rev. Mr. Carruthers has organized recently, was in charge of a drive of $100,000 all of which was secured Sunday morning, augmented by $10,000 secured the night before at an informal reception held for the soldiers who are in Washington, most of whom attend this church.

Another feature was a memorial service yesterday for all who went down with the Tuscania. This church has also a home for girls who are away from their own homes and engaged in government work.

Any Broken Lens Accurately Replaced

If you have broken your glasses — either one or both lenses — bring some of the broken parts to me and I can accurately replace them in a few hours broken parts to me and I can few hours.

It makes no difference where you were fitted—whether in Harrisburg or any other city in the United States, if you have from one-third to one-half of the lens left I can determine the prescription to a certainty. I am provided with scientific instruments so delicate and so accurate that they will register any curvature or plane, and by simply measuring a part of a broken lens it is easy to make another exactly like it. There will be absolutely no difference between the one I replace and the original. Remember, if you break a lens it is not necessary to send them away, perhaps to some distant point, to have them fixed—you can save time, trouble and extra expense by bringing them to me.

All this week and for many ensuing weeks our natural daylight Drapery Department will be the center of attraction to all who are interested in attractive home furnishings.

For suggestions we have made up a number of model draperies, showing how the various drapery materials are combined for true effectiveness.

THIS room demands soft, creamy toned laces of fine texture, of interesting design or soft, bright silks in a harmonizing tone. The essentials are beauty and restfulness. For the Living Room we are showing a particularly splendid assortment of
