

"Outwitting the Hun"

By Lieutenant Pat O'Brien (Copyright, 1918, by Pat Alva O'Brien.)

Another dive similar to this one is known as just the plain dive. Assume, for instance, that a pilot flying at a height of several thousand feet is shot, loses control of his machine, and the nose of the plane starts down with the motor full on. He is going at a tremendous speed and in many instances is going so straight and swiftly that the speed is too great for the machine, because it was never constructed to withstand the enormous pressure forced against the wings, and they consequently crumple up.

If too, in an effort to straighten the machine, the elevators should be affected, as often happens in trying to bring a machine out of a dive, the strain is again too great on the wings, and there is the same disastrous result. Oftentimes, when the patrol tank is punctured by a tracer bullet from another machine in the air, the plane that is hit catches on fire and either gets into a spin or a strait where the head for the earth, hundreds of miles an hour, a mass of flame, looking like a brilliant comet in the sky.

The spinning nose dive is used to greater advantage by the Germans than by our own pilots for the reason that when a fight gets too hot for the German, he will put his machine in a spin, and as the chances are nine out of ten that we are fighting over German territory, he simply spins down out of our range, straightens out before he reaches the ground, and gets on home to his aerodrome. It is useless to follow him down inside the German lines, for you would in all probability be shot down before you can attain sufficient altitude to cross the line again.

Often happens that a pilot will be chasing another machine when suddenly he sees it start to spin. Perhaps they are fifteen or eighteen thousand feet in the air, and the hostile machine spins down for thousands of feet. He thinks he has hit the other machine and goes home.

Private Moltz Home; Tells of Life in Camp

JOHN AND GEORGE MOLTZ

Private George W. Moltz, Company E, 110th Infantry, stationed at Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga., is seen in the above picture with his brother, Corporal John M. Moltz, Company S, Ordinance Training Camp. The former is now on a ten-day furlough and is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Moltz, 18 Evergreen street.

John M. Moltz, together with three other privates of ordnance men was transferred from Camp Dodge, Iowa, to Camp Hancock, a few weeks ago. Private George Moltz is in the best of health and speaks of the fine treatment the boys receive in camp. They are all eager to get at the Hun and the Keystone division is anxiously waiting the command "forward."

"I don't know what fee I will receive," he declared. "I don't know what fee I will receive."

Asked how he figured costs in the case of a traffic violator, he said: "You'll have to ask the Mayor."

"I have already asked the Mayor, and he referred me to you."

"Well, good-by, then," was the way the alderman excused himself from further explanation.

Another alderman who has conducted police court hearings for several months, gave a better explanation of the methods of imposing costs. He declared without hesitation that the "costs" constitute the alderman's fee, and that in the case where a man is brought into court without a warrant, the case can only amount in costs to $2. In case a warrant is necessary, an additional cost of $1 to go to the city, is added for the officer's services.

MEADE GIVES TO HANCOCK Camp Meade, Md., April 9.—Eight hundred men, mostly Pennsylvanians who have been pronounced sufficiently advanced to be fit for the service, have been transferred to Camp Hancock, Md., and are now a part of the 28th Division, composed largely of Pennsylvania National Guardsmen.

West Shore Firemen Adopt Telephone Alarm New Cumberland, Pa., April 9.—Uniform telephone system for West Shore fire companies was accepted by the West Shore Firemen's Union in session here last evening.

LEONARD JAMISON BURIED West Fairview, Pa., April 9.—Funeral services of Leonard Jamison, who died on Thursday, were held on Sunday afternoon at the home of his mother, the Rev. William Heiss, of York Haven, officiating. Burial was made in the Enola Cemetery.

BOOSTER CLUB TO MEET New Cumberland, Pa., April 9.—The Booster club will hold a meeting in the social room of Baughman Memorial Methodist church tomorrow night.

duct the hearings himself, but set no date at which he will begin. The failure of the City Solicitor's office, he said, to prepare papers necessary to the Mayor acting as police magistrate until "two or three weeks ago," was his reason.

The Mayor, since his advent into office, wants a police magistrate. He said, this some time ago, declaring that the duties of police court consume a half of every day, and that the duties of his office require this time elsewhere. A committing magistrate, he said this morning, would have to be paid a very considerable salary, as such a magistrate is required by law to have a "knowledge of the law."

Wants Council to Act "Action will be taken in Council shortly toward providing for a committing magistrate," declared the Mayor this morning. The Mayor added that Commissioner Burnett, who was arrested about two days ago, during the recent illness of the Mayor, is likewise in favor of a committing magistrate to handle police court.

The Mayor could make no explanation regarding the so-called "costs" of two cases yesterday in police court, wherein two persons arrested were fined $5 each, with costs of $5 each added. Lawyers declared last night that an even cost of $5 is very unusual.

"I don't think the alderman has ever done this before," he said today. "I think, maybe, the alderman intended to impose $10 fines."

Alderman Hagen, who imposed the fines, thought differently when interviewed this morning.

"The costs go to the Mayor's of-

British Lost 3,500 Men of the 13,000,000 Carried Overseas During War

Washington, April 9.—"We have carried 13,000,000 men across the seas from one part of the world to another, and of those 13,000,000, despite the submarine activity of the Germans, we have lost only 3,500 men, and of these 550 were lost on hospital ships."

This was the significant statement made in an impassioned speech by the Earl of Reading, British ambassador, before the national conference of American lecturers at Memorial Continental Hall.

In a speech which aroused considerable applause, which was preceded by the conference singing "God Save the King" and "America," England's ambassador stated in trenchant terms that the "allies were in the fight to defeat Germany and promote the democracy of the world."

"It will be your function," he said, "to go through the country in your own way to tell the reasons of this great war. This great war was intended by Germany. She knew that her ultimatum upon Serbia meant war."

"Why, it seems ages ago, yet it is but three and one-half years since Austria launched her ultimatum to Serbia. It is a far cry to the United States of America—nevertheless it was the first step in the number of steps that led up to my country going into the war and the United States entering it. Thank heavens for it, be it said."
