

“MAKE THE HOE PENNSYLVANIA’S EMBLEM OF 1918”

Food Administrator Heinz Appeals Increased Production This Year

“Let us make the hoe the 1918 emblem of Pennsylvania’s patriotism.”

This was the keynote and appeal to the citizens of the Commonwealth issued today by Howard Heinz, United States Food Administrator for Pennsylvania, at the beginning of the season when home and war garden activities are opening up.

“The influence of the war garden on the food situation is three-fold. It is a potent help to the general food supply, it reduces living cost, and it saves transportation, by encouraging the consumption of perishable food at point of origin.”

“While it is true that the average home garden produces only sufficient for the family that maintains it, furnishing little or no surplus for distribution, the aggregate of a million such gardens in our urban communities is a material addition to our food resources and every encouragement should be given to the planting of every foot of tillable soil available.”

Plenty of Vacant Land “There are many large vacant tracts in our towns and cities, the soil of which will grow vegetables successfully, these should be prepared and allotted to the use of families having no space for home gardens. Community associations should be formed to supply seed, fertilizer, and proper supervision of culture methods.”

“A still larger opportunity for growth exists in connection with open land in the vicinity of industrial plants, which can be prepared and farmed on a co-operative basis by employees, under the jurisdiction and supervision of owners; and as the food demand will be greater and the shortages more acute in 1918 than a year ago, none of these opportunities should be neglected.”

“In all this, we should profit by the mistakes of a year ago, in attempting to cultivate land that is unsuitable and in parceling out community tracts to irresponsible persons, whose enthusiasm is on the surface and who, after the first planting, neglect the work and not only obtain no result but cause a waste of valuable seed and fertilizing material. Remember, that three or four inches of top soil, superimposed on bricks or ashes, may, if well-watered, maintain a garden, but it will not grow corn, beans and potatoes. The digging up of back door yards and vacant tracts of this kind of soil is worse than wasted effort.”

Grow Root Crops “In planting war gardens, the raising of the less perishable crops should be encouraged, rather than the devotion of too much space to lettuce, tomatoes, etc., of small food value and poor keeping qualities. The labor involved in cultivating a garden will be better repaid if the planting is more largely of beets, carrots, turnips, onions, and where soil is suitable, potatoes with corn, peas and beans on surface crops.”

“The daylight saving plan now in effect makes it possible for every man and many women to devote the necessary time to operate a garden plot successfully and the army of home gardeners should be large.”

“Let us make the hoe the 1918 emblem of Pennsylvania patriotism.”

Officials Decline to Say Marines Were Sent to Aid

Washington, April 12.—No word of the landing of American marines at Vladivostok to aid British and Japanese forces already there as reported in press dispatches has reached the State or Navy Departments early today.

The addition of American forces is expected to reassure Russian government officials, who a time after the Japanese landed appeared inclined to believe Japan planned an invasion of Siberia. It was believed this would emphasize the action taken is purely of a local character. Press dispatches from Moscow have said Bolshevik officials were not so fearful now as at first, which incident would lead to an advance in Siberia.

Officials declined today to say whether instructions had been issued to the commander of the American Asiatic fleet to land marines in cooperation with the Japanese and British if American interests were endangered.
