Paintings at Their Best When Treating on Another

Land" by Albert Starling in the Walker Art Gallery, Liverpool.

The lyre and harp are hushed and neglected in Arthur Hacker's "By the Rivers of Babylon." The pathetic figure of "The Blind Girl," by Sir John Everett Millais shows her unable to see the beauty of the Rainbow and the colors of nature, though on her lap is an accordeon and the resigned and contented look on her beautiful face bespeak the power of music to human life.

Perhaps the best-known painting whose theme is music, is "Hope" in which picture a sightless maiden with her fingers lingering on a harp, all but one of whose strings are broken. Just as long as this one string holds out and she can draw from it sweet melodies, there is still hope in life for her.

Other musical pictures that bear close study are "The End of the Song," by G. C. Wilmhurst; "A Violin Concerto" by John Percival Guilch; "The Moonlight Sonata" by Ernst Oppler; "The Minstrel" by H. Stacy Marks; "A Music Lesson" by the French artist Simon Marmoin; "The Music Master" by Jan Steen; "The Music Moore, and "The Music of the Pines" by G. H. Broughton.

Writing in the Canadian Windsor

Writing in the Canadian Windsor Writing in the Canadian Windsor magazine some years ago, Austin Chester said: "Music which occupies an intercalary portion of our lives, and song, which is music with the subtle weft of thought woven into the woof of sound, touch the highest point of the artistic ideal when they are allied to paint, for then each of the several arts of music and poetry are blended in unity."

Anything in Demand; Phono graph With Broken Spring Is Kept Going With the Finger

Extracts from recent letters received from a college man who has been carrying "blesses" (wounded in his ambulance for the past year, give an inkling as to the large part music is playing in making the perious routine of the ambulance drivers lives endurable.

"I have heard my first band since coming to this town, for a regiment of pollus stationed here march for exercise every other day, headed by a wonderful big band. Can't begin to tell you what a treat it was to us all.

"We also have for entertainment a talking-machire, a small one which some wretched soul wound too tight and broke the spring, so now it will only work by pushing the turntable around with the tip of the finger. Of course that makes the pitch vary according to the speed with which we whirl the turntable.

"After supper last night, I nearly worked three fingers off, playing "Havanola" through once, while the file warded to the file and camed.

(In Paris we heard Irving Berlin's songs played at the Follies.)

We certainly had a great musical evening and the boys sat down on the concrete floor of the little room while I sang Just a Wearyin' For You, "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag' and all the other old favorites.

With Choir and Organist

There are many settings of the poem, "In Heavenly Love Abiding," a hymn used in many Episcopal churches and appearing in nearly all church hymnals. St. Stephen's Episcopal choir will to-morrow even ming sing Henry Parker's setting. Farker became famous through his most effective composition, "Jerusalem," sung at the beginning of Passion Week and known and regarded as an excellent counterpart of Faure's "Les Rameaux," better known as "The Palms." At Bethles hem Lutheran Church the quartet choir is to sing Langdale's setting of "In Heavenly Love Abiding." "He Shall Come Down Like Rain," opening with beautifully completed duet for treble and contralto, will be sung by the quartet choir of Bethlehem Lutheran Church at the service with a voice of sweetness and pranos of Fifth Street Methodist choir, has been giving excellent the service with a voice of sweetness and pranos of Fifth Street Methodist choir, has been giving excellent the service with a voice of sweetness and pranos of Fifth Street Methodist choir, has been giving excellent the service with a voice of sweetness and service with a voice of sweetness and pranos of Fifth Street Methodist choir, has been giving excellent the service with a voice of sweetness and service with a voice of sweetness and pranos of Fifth Street Methodist choir, has been giving excellent the service with a voice of sweetness and spranos of Fifth Street Methodist choir, has been giving excellent the service with a voice of sweetness and power.
