A SERIAL OF YOUTH AND ROMANCE

By VIRGINIA VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER XLII

"Come in!" Stephen Livingstone called so impatiently that the maid obeying his summons hesitated on the threshold. "What is it?" he asked. "If you please, sir, there's a gentleman on the telephone who would like to speak to Miss Long," the girl announced.

"Both the telephone?" Mr. Livingstone exclaimed. "Can't you take the message, Marie?"

"No, she cannot, Stephen," the mistress interferred. "That's all right, Marie. Miss Long will come at once. Ask the gentleman to hold the wire."

When the maid had left the room, Mrs. Livingstone explained. "It is doubtless Gerald, Stephen. It would hardly do for to serve to convey his message to his betrothed."

She smiled, but there was no more warmth in the smile than in the sunshine on a clear winter day when the thermometer is below zero. "Run on to the telephone, Cynthia," she added. "I know your sweetheart is waiting impatiently."

Cynthia hurried from the room without replying. For the moment she actually wanted to be alone with Gerald, not because she loved him, but that she might tell him of her present predicament and ask his advice.

"What is it?" she called into the telephone. "Is that you, Gerald?"

It was not Gerald's voice that answered. Instead it was the voice of her father's lawyer and old friend, Darius Blake.

"I am in town for to-day," he told her. "I would like to have a chat with you. Can you meet me this afternoon at the Waldorf and take a cup of tea with me? And might I suggest that you say nothing to anyone about it? I received your uncle's letter and have replied to it. I said nothing of coming to New York, but as I have to be here on business of my own I thought you might arrange to see me."

"Oh, yes, indeed, I would love to!" Cynthia assured him.

Then, after telling Cynthia just where to meet him, he rang off.

Cynthia stood uncertain as to what to do. She was determined to meet Mr. Blake and to have a frank talk with him. But what excuse could she make should her uncle and aunt question her? They would not like her evasions of direct questions. An inspiration seized her, and she called

"Outwitting the Hun"

By Lieutenant Pat O'Brien

(Copyright, 1918, by Pat Alva O'Brien.)

My condition improved during the next two days, and on the fourth day of my captivity I was well enough to write a brief message to my squadron, reporting that I was a prisoner of war and "feeling fine," although as a matter of fact I was never so depressed in my life. I realized, however, that if the message reached my comrades it would be relayed to my mother in Mombasa, Ill., and I did not want to worry her more than was absolutely necessary. It was guarded all through my subsequent adventures and finally turned it over to his father and mother when I visited them in Toronto.

You go out with your "flight" and get into a muck. You get scattered, and when your formation is broken up you finally wing your way home alone.

"Yes, thank you," Cynthia responded. "I am to meet him downtown late this afternoon, and he is to bring me up home."

"Would you mind—mean would it displease you—if I wait to give you my decision about the double wedding until I have a little talk with you tonight after this afternoon?" she questioned timidly.

Her uncle shook his head. "No, I want to make it easy for you, my dear, so I will wait until you and Gerald have your little talk. I have no doubt that, being a sensible fellow, Gerald will see the sense of my proposition."

"If so, we will begin to-morrow to order your trousseau," Mrs. Livingstone remarked. "It will be a happy and exciting time for both you and me."

Dora had slipped unnoticed from the room, and her mother's joyous prediction passed unchallenged.

Paris, April 13.—The letter written by Emperor Charles to Prince Sixtus of Bourbon, outlining the means by which France might attain peace, was upon its receipt immediately communicated to all of France's allies, says the Epit Parisien. It was unanimously decided, the paper adds, at an inter-Allied conference which was held shortly after that there was no occasion to act on the Emperor's suggestion.

Amsterdam, April 13.—A dispatch from Vienna to the Frankfurter Zeitung, referring to the disclosures made by Premier Clemenceau in respect to Austrian peace proposals, says, assuming the existence of the Emperor's letter, it was written before the breakdown of Russia, at a time "when the war outlook was quite different from to-day and when the young, peace-loving monarch might have taken steps which, today, under altered conditions, must appear in another light."

Chicago, April 13.—Abolition of the bars in all hotels in the United States and Canada was forecast in an announcement made yesterday by the executive council of the American Hotel Association.

Declaring that the interests of the hotel business are paramount to those of the saloon, the council strongly advocated that the sale of liquor be confined to light wines and beer.

This would mean the closing of all bars in connection with hotels and a ban on the sale of whiskey, gin and other strong liquors. (Signed) Miss Emily Morris, Carmichael, Pa., August 27, 1917.

It is distressing to reflect that much, if not all, of this suffering might have been prevented by using Cuticura Soap, and no other, for every-day toilet purposes with a little Cuticura Ointment now and then as needed to soothe and heal the first signs of skin or scalp troubles. ## Haig's Loss of Guns More Than Made Up

Ottawa, April 13.—The British Army in France is as well equipped to-day as when the German offensive in Picardy began, England having replaced all the lost guns and increased the quantity of machine guns, according to Frederick George Kellaway, British Parliamentary Secretary of the Ministry of Munitions. A Reuter dispatch, received yesterday from London, quotes from a speech which Mr. Kellaway made at Bedford, England.

The tanks the Germans captured were being replaced by ones of superior model, the Secretary stated, and the ammunition consumed had more than been made good, while men were being replaced steadily to fill the gaps occasioned by loss of man power. In the air Britain continued as strong, if not stronger, he said.

40,000 More Officers Needed, Says Gen. Wood

Kansas City, April 13.—Forty thousand more officers for drafts yet to come are needed urgently, Major General Leonard Wood, commander of the Eighty-ninth division, National Army, Camp Funston, Kan., declared here to-day while en route to Camp Funston. He said:

"I am in favor of opening new officers training camps at once and making the course one of six months instead of three. Then, too, we must have older men, say from 35 to 40, for our officer material."

He deprecated the idea that the war might be a short one, and added: "We are facing a people who are all-efficient, all-powerful in the art of war. Until we can face them on equal terms we cannot turn the tide. The drafts in the future will be larger and larger."

American Merchantmen to Guard Against U-Boats

Washington, April 13.—All American merchant vessels will be equipped immediately with double the number of bulkheads now carried for protection against torpedoes and mines. The Shipping Board approved the plan yesterday as the most practical of all the "non-stinkable" schemes, and James C. Stewart, of New York, as asked to undertake supervision of the work.

Daily Dot Puzzle

House Would Have Air Dictator Named by Wilson

Washington, April 13.—The first of what is expected to be a flood of bills to follow the Senate Military Affairs Committee's exposure of the aircraft disappointments appeared in the House yesterday in the shape of a measure designed to create an aircraft administrator and to abolish the present aircraft production board.

It would take all authority over aircraft out of the realm of the Army Signal Corps. Twenty-five million dollars is proposed to be appropriated to give a start to the aircraft administration.

The Gould bill provides that the aircraft administrator shall be appointed by the President and receive a salary of $75,000 a year.

Activity at Naval Bases Points to Teuton Raid

Geneva, Switzerland, April 13.—Greatest activity reigns at German naval bases, especially at Kiel. Coal and ammunition is being shipped to the fleet in large quantities, according to information received here this morning from a reliable neutral source. German naval contingents, with heavy guns, were recently recalled from the western front to join the fleets and were replaced by Austrian artillery manned by land forces.

Indications are that a naval raid of great magnitude is about to be attempted.

WOMAN VICTIM IN BREAD RIOT

Amsterdam, April 13.—Military forces called out to protect bakers' shops in Haaren fired on a crowd which attacked them with stones, killing one woman and wounding several others. The troops also charged with drawn swords on crowds in different parts of the town and many people were injured.

Thirty Boys Fire Victims in Oklahoma Hospital

Norman, Okla., April 13.—Fire early to-day destroyed a ward at the state hospital for idiotic children. Thirty boys were burned to death. Dr. D. W. Griffin, superintendent of the hospital, said the death toll might be greater than thirty. Three wards and the dining rooms of the state institution were destroyed.

Panic prevailed among the children and it was with the greatest difficulty that any were carried to safety.

UNITED STATES SENATOR DIES

New Iberia, La., April 13.—Robert F. Broussard, Jr., United States Senator from Louisiana, died at his home here after an illness of several weeks from a complication of diseases. Senator Broussard was known in every parish of Louisiana as "Cousin Bob." He was 54 years old.

War Department's Plan For Draft Wins House

Washington, April 13.—The War Department's plan for basing draft quotas on the number of registrants in Class 1, instead of upon population, was sustained in the House last night after an all-day fight over a resolution passed by the Senate authorizing the change. Opponents of the plan championed an amendment which would base the quotas on territory, to base the quotas on territory, and registration and liability to military service, which was defeated, 244 to 118.

Another amendment by the Nebraska member, directing that credits on quotas be given for all volunteers in the military or naval service since April 1, 1917, was adopted, 292 to 63.

When a final vote on the resolution was about to be taken, Representative Harrison, of Virginia, proposed an amendment specifically to exempt farm labor, and action went over until to-day.
