NEW PLAN FOR R. R. INSURANCE

Similar to That For Soldiers Now in Army; Pennsy Liabilities

Officials of the Pennsylvania and Reading Railroads are taking measures to ascertain the provisions of the Government's plan to establish a national insurance fund to cover property and other losses sustained by railroads.

As contained in announcements from Washington, the plan originated in the department of the economic for Government operation of a national fund for railroad insurance similar to that for insuring soldiers is being given consideration. Indications that this purpose has reached a definite point were recently contained in Mr. McAdoo's notice to all lines that they refrain from renewing insurance contracts with commercial companies to run longer than one year.

So far as Pennsylvania and Reading lines are concerned, each of these roads has maintained its own insurance department for a number of years. The Pennsylvania started a fund in 1879. In the meantime this fund has grown to $9,000,000. The Reading's fund approximates $1,000,000.

The question the railroads are seeking to settle is what the disposition of this fund is to be in the event of the Government including all roads in the national plan. Should these roads be taken into the Federal program, the money, it is contended, should revert to the general fund of the Government. On the other hand, belief is expressed that an exception may be made where roads do their own insuring.

Pennsylvania's Liability
The Pennsylvania carries a liability of 1,000,000,000, divided into $400,000,000 for physical damage to property, $600,000,000 for the risk of injury to passengers and employees. The insurance fund applies to lines where the Pennsylvania system, and the liability entirely covers the property of lines owned completely. In cases where the company has only a part ownership the insurance carried is in proportion to the degree of ownership.

For the year 1917 the Pennsylvania deducted $5,375,000 from operating receipts for that insurance fund. The company's payments aggregated $6,067,285, of which $2,028,848 was paid for passenger injuries and others and $2,302,448 for loss and damage of freight.

In contrast to the Pennsylvania's method of carrying all its own insurance, the Reading divides its responsibility by maintaining a fund of $1,000,000 and using commercial companies to carry about $4,700,000.

Railroad Notes
George W. Fisher, retired yardmaster of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Philadelphia, died yesterday.

J. B. Freid, conductor, and J. K. Farcht, brakeman, for the Pennsylvania who have been on the sick list, have resumed their duties.

The freight handlers at the Reading Railway freight station, at Reading, have been granted an increase of three cents and a decrease of two cents. The new scale calls for 28 cents.

Peter Schrenker, and P. K. Bentz, Pennsylvania yardmaster and brakemen, are on the sick list.

Work on the five new Pacific type passenger locomotives at the Reading shop is progressing rapidly. One of them is nearing completion and the others are under way. It is said that they will all be finished in about seven weeks and will be used on the Atlantic City Railroad during the summer.

What? You Can't Afford to Save? How Do You Get That Way, Brother?

In a Harrisburg store two voluntary Liberty Loan workers approached a clerk who makes $32 a week.

"How many Liberty Bonds are you going to buy, Jack?" they asked him.

"On the level, fellow," he replied. "I simply can't afford to buy a bond this time."

"What? You can't put a dollar a week into a Liberty bond?"

"Boys, on the level—I can't afford even a dollar a week."

"You can't afford to save! How do you get that way, brother?"

"What 'dye mean—save?" the clerk asked the two salesmen.

"You're not being asked to give your money away," they told him. "We're simply asking you to save $1 a week for yourself—that's all. At the end of five weeks you'll have a $50 bond that will be worth $55 or $60 in five years. And in the meantime you are getting 4 1/2 per cent interest. And you tell us—you have the audacity to stand there and look us in the eye as you tell us—that you 'can't afford' to save money."

"I never thought of it that way," said the clerk. "I'd been looking at this Liberty Loan from the wrong angle. I see now where I'm not only helping the Government, but helping myself. Put me down for $100 worth of bond."

And they did.

TO CONFER ON HOSPITAL PLANS

City and County Officials Will Discuss Improvement Soon

Commissioner S. F. Hassler to-day said he will confer in the near future with the county commissioners and other officials on the proposed plan to erect a county contagious disease hospital. While under present conditions with the government in the way of labor and supplies it is not likely a permanent structure will be built, at the same time more adequate quarters may be provided than are at present available.

The county commissioners several days ago decided to look for a site and make tentative plans for the improvement at the same time favoring a conference with city officials. Dr. Hassler sanctioned the move and said he is anxious to have something more definite decided upon.

AMUSEMENTS

MANY LAUGHS ON MAJESTIC BILL

Plenty of Comedy and Music; Sensational Target Act a Feature

Comedy, music and a sensational target act round out the program at the Majestic for the first half of the week, furnishing plenty of laughter and a general good time for the audience.

The feature of the target offering, which is the first one given, is the "bullet-proof lady," introduced by Captain Frank Lefel. After giving an amazing exhibition of marksmanship, Captain Lefel uses an Army rifle and shoots at close range directly at his assistant. The result is startling and mystifying and the feat must be seen to be enjoyed. Those who are interested in magic may find some logical explanation of the trick.

Mack and Lee, in "Milk and Melody," are good variety entertainers and sure of applause. Arthur Williams, Leigh Delacy and C. Blanche Rice have one of the ordinary comedy sketches, billed as "Excess Baggage." While some of the situations are sure to amuse the audience, the playlet is similar to others which have been presented in the city.

Lew Platel and O. H. Cushing are the boys who start things. Billed as "The Stranded Minstrel," these two comedians have one of the most laughable offerings seen at the Majestic in some time. The introductory, "So it's come this way," is both original and farcical and the antics and jokes of this pair keep the audience in a constant uproar.

"The Stranded Minstrel" is another of those fine musical acts which are being featured this season. Harrisburgers have had the opportunity during the last few months of enjoying some real musical treats and this is even better than some companies appearing earlier in the season.

The feature is singing by Miss Dawn Claire, said to have three distinct voices. Her demonstration by using the "Quartet" from "Rigoletto" is fine. Other numbers include a violin solo, saxophone quartet and a brass quartet of cornets and trombones. Others in the act are Gus King and Misses Hazel Griffin, Hilda Seymour, Paula Melba and Lenora Brownlee.

MOVIE TREASURER ROBBED
New York, April 16.—While on his way to work, a big bag containing $2,000, Edward Goodman, a moving picture theater treasurer, was held up by daylight robbers who relieved him of the money and escaped in an automobile here to-day. The robbery occurred in Broadway at Seventy-fourth street.

his hotel and put the thought in operation, and when the "Darktown Follies" comes to the Orpheum Theatre it is said there will be an innovation of giving the finale of the show at the start, which is only one of the novelties offered by this attraction. It is bright with delightful music, a clever company, originality of theme and has numerous side-splitting situations. Mr. Miller has for his first support Miss Esther Rigoo, his clever soubrette, and Henry Jones, one of the best-known colored comedians. An unusual chorus of duks, singees, will be seen and heard in the latest of song and dance.

Seats go on sale at the Orpheum to-morrow for the engagement here. Friday and Saturday, of the much-talked-of dramatic piece, "A Girl No Man Should Marry," by Amy Neiland. Lead the complete interest of the story be spoiled for those who will see the play, it is perhaps best that too much will not be said about the plot. It is sufficient to say that the theme deals with one of the most grave social problems of the day, and that what is said to be the true experience of a girl of to-day in one of the larger cities.

Miss Neiland is credited with having written a thrilling story of a human interest, depicting in a realistic manner the situation in which almost any girl is liable to find herself.

The producers have provided a picked cast of New York players, including John Conroy, Robert Craig, Felix Hagen, Nicholas Roche, Robert Norton, Jean Wardley, Amy Mortimer and Wanda Knowlton, who are said to give a truly finished and artistic performance.

A pleasing vaudeville show opened at the Majestic yesterday with Tom Brown's Musical Revue as the headliner. This is an excellent singing, dancing and instrumental musical offering and is very popular. The musical numbers are lively and their dancing is artistic. Pieta and Cushing, billed as a popular Stranded Minstrel, are a regular number on the bill. Their clean, wholesome, joyous picture of a human nature, as nature exhibits herself in the colored race, is one of the best features in modern vaudeville.

The "Slow of Wonders," said to be the most pretentious New York Winter Garden production, is scheduled to come to the Orpheum Saturday. Max and fifteen colleagues, is said to be truly regal in its magnificent costumes and fine musical comedy casts ever assembled in one company has been secured by this theater. It is said to handle the principal roles of the spectacle. And this cast is most capably supported by a chorus of exceptional beauty and ability.

It was selected from the very pick of the Winter Garden corps to help make this attraction a real wonder show. And this is not without winter garden spectacle would not be complete. This time it is "Over the Top," a time when a scene showing an attack upon a German trench by a fleet of American airplanes and a company of Yankee soldiers. It is said to end with a scene that never fails to make the audience go wild with patriotic enthusiasm.

During the filming of this picture, Frederick made her debut as a daredevil, when she made a sensational fall of thirty feet from a parapet of the fort into the water, in the death scene. The settings for this picture were copied from the costumes of the buildings, including the castle of St. Angelo, the interior of the church at San Spirito and the interior of the fort, those used on the operatic stage, being extremely well adapted to Miss Frederick.
