

URGING HELP OF ALL, SCHWAB IS DOWN TO WORK

Great Burden of Getting Results Rests With the People

Washington, April 19.—Charles M. Schwab is on the job as director general of shipbuilding, reaching here yesterday from New York. It is understood he will establish his main headquarters in Philadelphia.

"Everything that is in me I'm going to give to this thing," he said in the office of Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the shipping board. "It is everyone's duty to help. I am not talking the flippant patriotism that so many talk, I mean it. I don't know what I can do, but I am filled with pep and optimism and I'm going to build ships. I'm not a politician and I don't know diplomacy, but I'm going to do the work."

"Charles" Schwab, a former laborer and a man who came up from the ranks, is going to carry the gospel of praise and encouragement to the workers in every shipyard in the country. He believes that this doctrine will "put over" the shipbuilding program and for this reason he has designed himself an "outsider man."

Great Believer in Facts "I'm a bold man," he said. "I told Mr. Hurley and the board that was my only value, and that's all I pretend to be. I'm a great believer in the fact that a leader's chief province is to get enthusiasm, optimism and push into the people working for him. One of the first things I will do is to tour the shipyards of the Atlantic coast. My real usefulness will be at the yards, for only with his own people in his own way, can a man give his best efforts. After all a man can only help. The great burden rests on the people at the yards—the ones who do the work. They are the ones who have the responsibilities in this matter. Much good can be accomplished by encouraging rather than criticizing and the newspapers can help wonderfully. A real man can do his best work under praise. Approval and encouragement is what is needed from the public at large for the success of this great undertaking."

Enthusiastic Over Achievements Mr. Schwab was enthusiastic about the work already accomplished by Mr. Hurley and Charles Piez.

"Their success," he said, "has been prodigious. They have laid the foundation and the preliminary work has been well done. We should remember that new enterprises started by new people necessarily must go slow until they learn."

Mr. Schwab, according to Mr. Hurley, has made suggestions to the shipping board which will be carried into effect as soon as possible. While the nature of these was not revealed by the chairman, it is believed they concern policies regarding the construction of vessels so that they may be adaptable for passenger service after the war and also provide means for producing additional tonnage.

Mr. Schwab will center all of his efforts on steel construction and therefore will have little, if anything to do with the concrete construction.

It will not be surprising for him, Mr. Hurley said, to sever his connection with the Bethlehem Steel Company.

"I certainly won't give it any attention," said Mr. Schwab. "I'll leave everything in the hands of Mr. Grace, the president. You know I'm only a sort of figurehead around here now, anyway." He laughed when he said this.

Mr. Schwab is vested with unlimited power to do whatever he wants to do to aid the shipping program.

"The man who is given great authority rarely takes it," he said. "It's the fellow who fears his ability that is the one to want it. Of course, in this position I will have to want it, but I won't have to use it."

CHAIRMAN HAYS STIRS PARTY TO RENEWED ZEAL

Organization on Scientific Methods Is Proceeding From Coast to Coast

Washington, April 19.—Quietly, but with unprecedented thoroughness, organization on scientific methods of the Republican party from coast to coast is in progress. Not since the days of the McKinley campaigns has there been such a Republican awakening according to reports coming into headquarters of the Republican national committee and the Republican Congressional committee.

Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, is making the final trips on a remarkable swing around the circle of Western and Southern states. The brilliant victory of Senator Lenroot over the administration forces, secured in the first feather in the cap of Chairman Hays. According to those who participated in that battle, it is only the beginning of a remarkable upsurge for the brilliant young leader.

To Open Offices in New York He will open New York offices of the Republican national committee on May 1 in the Knox Building, Fortieth street and Fifth avenue. Temporary headquarters in Chicago are now occupied by Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the national committee.

The present trip of Chairman Hays is solely for the purpose of studying at close range the state Republican committees and ascertaining the method or lack of method in hitching state and county committees. He has found slackness, indifference and incompetence in many places, but almost invariably he has found for these conditions enthusiasm and efficiency. California is a shining example of the transformation wrought. There he has brought together the Republican factions that have been at each other's throats for a decade, has shown leaders of factions the folly of their jealousies and has actually created friendships where a few weeks ago there were bitter enemies.

His trip up to date has included Kansas, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakota, Michigan, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Nevada and California, and he is still going strong.

Loyal Support to the War Although this is merely a preliminary center, as it were, for Mr. Hays, the reports indicate amazing results. There appears to be a general re-awakening of the party, and in the campaign. In brief, that includes unwavering support of President Wilson in the conduct of the war, but insistence upon the right of constructive criticism.

Democrats Fighting Protection Another vital reason for the systematic organization that is being perfected by Chairman Hays is the insidious but none the less determined efforts that are being made by the Democratic Administration and the Democratic national Congressional committee for the destruction of the protective tariff system upon which this country has grown so great. The plans are going forward under the guidance of the highest authorities in the Democratic party and in the government.

It makes no difference to the Democratic leaders, both in and out of office, that the French government is scientifically studying the advisability of establishing a complete protective tariff system after the war. It makes no difference that the German government's plans for a tariff war are known to the entire world and that Russia will probably take its place with the powers committed to protective tariff theories. Free trade doctrine lies at the base of the Democratic Administration and they permeate every office, from the White

Liberty Editorial THE CRISIS

Never before in the history of our nation have we been confronted by such a crisis as now stares us in the face. We must win this war, and shall win, but we must support the government if we wish to win. To support the government we must give our money to them in the form of buying Liberty Bonds. Let us see what the government does for us, and of what importance it is to the Government enables us to be independent of foreign countries.

No individual could protect property against attacks of foreign peoples, for they could not support an army or navy individually. 2. Government protects our property from criminals. If it were not for the sheriffs, constables, and policemen, persons who carry money would be in constant danger of being robbed. Furthermore, every night one would retire with the dread of being murdered for a few pieces of silver in the house. 3. Government maintains peace and order. 4. Government performs functions which would be unprofitable as private ventures. (A) Protection to health. (B) Protection to life. (C) Care of poor and helpless. (D) Protection to public morals. (E) The census. (F) Aids to commerce. (G) Aids to agriculture. 5. Government performs functions in the interest of the many which as private ventures would be performed in the interest of the few.

Now seeing what government does for us, we see that without it we could not exist. So as good American citizens, it is our duty to uphold the stars and stripes and make the world free for democracy. Besides being a duty to the state, it is a duty we owe to the boys who have left. Each one holds a cherished place in our hearts. They are giving their all, what should we give? We must send them away, telling them we shall stand by them 'till the last. Let us do our best and act quickly. Buy Liberty Bonds not only because we feel it our duty, but because we as American citizens wish to do the very best we can by America and Old Glory.

House to the smallest bureau of the government. Woman Suffrage an Assure There is another angle to the political situation, attracting the attention of Chairman Hays and his associates. That is the attitude of the President and the Democratic party toward woman suffrage. Inside information as to the intentions of the leaders, including the President, is to the effect that the bill enabling the states to vote upon the Susan B. Anthony amendment is to suffer a painful and, so far as the Administration can manage it, an unnoted death in the Senate committee. More than thirty-fourth of the Republican Senators are committed to its passage, a record that equals that made by the Republican members of the House, but the Bourbonism of the South are standing like rocks against the measure.

Mr. Hays is planning to place before women voters in states where there is equal suffrage this condition and the responsibility of the Administration for it. With that end in view, he is considering the addition to his national organization of a woman's division to be officered and run by women of administrative experience and ability. The work of this division will not be confined to suffrage states, but will extend to states where suffrage sentiment is marching toward victory.

Democratic Realization The Democratic national committee now realizes that it is facing a master tactician and one who is putting in at the base of his own energy and of the energy of his associates into the national campaign.
