BALLAD DESIGNATING

AMERICAN TRIUMPH

Musical Effort of an Original Conception

A vocal composition which is founded upon patriotic sentiment and which is written in a facile manner with no high notes is a new waltaballad recently issued. It contains a tribute to American triumph and conquest. The chorus, which has a range of only one octave, is of a waltz rhythm. A part of the melody runs thus:

*After The War Is Over

Sacred Music Excerpts By PROF. J. H. KURZENKNABE

After-reading the proclamation of Governor Brumbaugh on Community Singing," so ably presented in the recent music festival by John Creund, of New York, Professor J. H. Kurzenknabe, the veteran music there is frequent neglect in the dealing upon the power of music occunteract what is commonly called "the blues." It is doubtful if the greater boon to humanity, than its ability to drive away "the blues." Paise is an important factor in the power to prevent. If any member of the family gets down in the mouth over his or her work, or the cares of life, or the peculiar situations that confront one periodically tending to depression, then the prescription is music—and lots of it. If one desires to guard against the feelings the sure way is to endorse the confidence.

BRINGING MUSIC TO THE MASSES

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink will sing at Chambersburg next Friday evening. The great contratio is sure to be greeted by hundreds of Wilson College and Penn Hall students, as well as music lovers from towns in the beautiful Cumberland Valley.

In a recent interview, Reginald De Koven said that the greatest good any musicidan can accomplish is to make music a pleasurable and helpful part of the lives of the masses. For that reason he is inclined to consider the popular song a definite and important feature in musicidal can be considered.
