

CULL IN BATTLE WOULD GIVE U. S. CHANCE TO HELP

Nation Learns Lesson and Soldiers Are Hurrying to Render Accounting

Washington, April 22.—If the Germans are effectually checked in the present great battle, so that they will require a few weeks' time to recover from their losses and to reorganize their forces, the United States will be ready to render assistance in hurrying back any further offensives they may attempt.

The failure of this nation to play more than an insignificant part in the great defense of civilization and liberty which has been made by the British and French ever since March 21 has given a valuable lesson to the United States.

The government is fully awake at last to the importance of the task devolving upon it and despite blunders and delays, organization for effective fighting has passed the preparatory stage, and the forces of the nation are now being hurried forward to render an account of themselves against the menace of German victory.

The number of men in France already constitutes a formidable army. Reinforcements are being sent forward at a rate which exceeds all former estimates, and if another German drive is inaugurated, an American force capable of holding any sector that may be assigned to it, or of strengthening either the British or French armies, will be at the front ready for service.

There is no longer any speculation about this assertion. The certainty of War has renewed his request that the newspapers refrain from publishing figures showing either the number of men in France now or the estimated number that will be there in the next few weeks.

It is possible to say, however, that the War Department is fully confident that the next few weeks will prove that the United States is an important factor in the war, and that American forces from then on

THOUSAND STEEL WORKERS BOOST LIBERTY BONDS

Parade Does Much to Increase Interest in Third Loan

No more impressive spectacle in the way of a parade has ever been seen in Harrisburg than the demonstration by the employees of the Central Iron and Steel Company on Saturday afternoon. It was the climax of a splendid patriotic effort upon the part of the men themselves in cooperation with the officials of the company to make the great plant a one hundred per cent. organization in the subscription to the Third Liberty Loan.

Over a long route the men marched with banners and flags and the music of bands. It was a joyous procession because the men felt they had achieved something worth while, and they had. Harrisburg has done admirably in all the war activities, but none of the many parades and demonstrations has ever surpassed in import or impressiveness the march of the Central men.

Men by the thousands who watched the marching hosts were persuaded by the example of the men who would have a tremendous influence upon all others who had not yet come across in the subscription to the Third Liberty Loan. The great downtown plant has set an example that will have a wonderful effect upon the other industrial workers of the city who have not up to this time done their full part in the matter of the loan. The parade was the result of an appeal of Robert L. Irons, the active head of the plant, who urged the men to make the big organization one hundred per cent. subscription. "If we do," shouted one of the husky steel workers, "we're going to have a parade!" "And I'll furnish the music," was the response of Mr. Irons, so the parade.

Addressed by Mayor As the big procession of more than 1,000 men, reached the end of the route, Mayor Royer, in a brief speech, complimented the force for their patriotic interest in the loan and congratulated them on the appearance of the parade. It was a great success and has left its influence for good on the community. Our industrial workers are standing shoulder to shoulder with the government and they are not only giving of their labor, they are giving of their earnings.

HEALTH DEPT. HAS VERY FINE RECORD

236 Officials and Attaches Enter Military Service, Most of Them Officers

The Department of Health of Pennsylvania has just completed a tabulation of the number of its officers who have been commissioned in the Medical Officers' Reserve Corps, together with a list of those who have entered the various branches of the Federal Service since the United States entered the present world-wide war. The record is one of which Pennsylvania has good reason to be proud. With Pennsylvania for more than a hundred years leading all other states in medical education and for twelve years under the leadership of Dr. Samuel G. Dixon far in advance of any other state in sanitary work, it might have been expected in a great national crisis that Pennsylvania with many men well-trained in public health work would stand first in response to the urgent general's call for medical men.

The honor roll from the State Department of Health begins with seven medical officers who have been commissioned in the Federal Reserve Corps, together with twenty-eight medical officers and eight sanitary engineers who have been commissioned as captains, one hundred sixty-eight medical officers, two sanitary engineers and two sanitary officers as first lieutenants, five state officers to various special branches of the service, and thirteen nurses to the Nursing Corps of the Army.

It is doubtful if any state organization in America could have sent to the Federal Army in this great crisis such a number of persons trained to serve as officers.

Dr. Royer, the Acting Commissioner, was commissioned a lieutenant in 1911, a captain in April 1917, and in addition to his public health duties has served as chairman of the examining board at Harrisburg. In this capacity he has passed upon the professional and physical qualifications of those entering the Medical and Sanitary Officers' Reserve Corps, and on the physical qualifications of those entering the Veterinary Officers' Reserve Corps.

Throughout the series of meetings at the great iron and steel plant the men heartily co-operated with the management. They labored each with the other and wherever the slightest indifference was shown the men presented the cause and the hesitating one lined up. It may be known to all of Harrisburg but it is interesting to note here that this great plant is making plates for ships, boilers and other equipment to carry the food and ammunition to the boys across the seas and with justifiable pride that the workers celebrated the achievement of their purpose Saturday afternoon.

There is a large number of employees at the Central Iron and Steel plant in other lands and these would talk to their fellow employees in their native tongue, urging them to purchase bonds. There are thirty-one nationalities represented at the plant including Austrians, Bohemians, Bosnians, Brazilians, Bulgarians, Croats, Danes, English, Germans, Hungarians, Irish, Italians, Macedonians, Mexicans, Montenegrins, Norwegians, Porto Ricans, Portuguese, Rumanians, Russians, Scotch, Serbians, Spanish, Swedes, Turks, West Indians and others.

Alens Buy Heavily During the canvass an Austrian, who has been in the employ of the company for about eleven years and has taken the first two loans, but who had not yet been reached by the committee, called at the office of the company and said: "I want another one hundred dollar bond; get others, take every time; we want to help." This is the spirit among the foreign born employees.

In an auto preceding the first division were four employes who had been in continual service of the company for fifty years. They were George W. Amptrester, Aaron S. Payne, Amos Eck, Joseph P. Adams. Other automobiles carried employes who had been with the company thirty or forty years.

The parade committee comprised W. H. Pinkwater, William R. Holt, Ashton D. Peace, H. S. Evans, Guy Rupert and George R. Souder.

The Liberty Loan committee of the plant included D. B. Simons, H. S. Evans, Frank Anderson, Roy Eckert, D. Rodgers, C. C. Adams, C. A. Waite, H. P. Kreppe, George A. Snyder, George C. King, William Brown, Thomas P. W. Quinn, C. A. Orr, Guy Rupert, W. J. Drinkwater, S. E. Moore, Harry Snyder, Howard Munna, F. D. Zeigler, William B. Robbins, Earl Thompson, G. L. Flisk, S. D. Sansom.

The formation of the parade was as follows: Sergeant and platoon of city police; marshal, William Roberts; chief of staff, Ashton D. Peace; Liberty Loan committee acting as aids of first division, Municipal Band, Central Iron and Steel Company's police force, officers of the company, main office force marshaled by F. C. Kichey.

Then followed in order the employees of mill one and two, the versal mill, the transportation department and the testing department.

Many Slogans The second division aids were F. J. Pearson, Charles Phillips, George Melosh, A. E. Eck, Harry Adams, Dale W. Worley, Nelson Adams, George Snyder, H. Keim, George Brooking. Then came the Steelton Bend and the employees of the following departments in order: Engineering, open hearth, blast furnace, hanging, mechanical and general labor.

Some of the slogans carried on banners by the men were as follows: "Don't be a slacker. Buy a Third Liberty Bond." "If you are too old for the trenches, buy a bond." "Buy bonds for bullets."

"Our boys are counting on you. Buy bonds." "If you can't pitch in chip in, buy bonds." "Our boys want backers not slackers." "Keep the home fires burning. Buy bonds."

"Stop. Look and Listen." "No miser can lick the Kaiser. Buy bonds." "The boys are giving their lives. What are you giving?" "Soldiers give their lives. Others lend money."

"It's line double time. Buy bonds." "If you can't go across, come across. Buy bonds." "If you don't come across the Kaiser will."

The majority of employers are doing the same thing. Many employers are permitting their men and women to buy bonds totaling ten times the weekly wage—and they are holding out two per cent. of the purchase price each week. That's fair.

Payments Are Easy "In fact there are half a dozen ways in which Harrisburg money-earners may buy bonds. There are so many ways—and the investment is so sure—and there are so many reasons why it is not possible to buy—that every wage-earner in this city should own at least one bond before the campaign closes. There will be 13,000 purchasers in Harrisburg. There should be not less than 25,000 during the present campaign."

The executive committee in charge of the loan has just completed a number of cards of persons it must see in addition to a "censuring" committee which has a large number of cards of persons who subscribed $50 or $100 for bonds when they might just as easily have bought $1,000 or $2,000 worth of bonds. These persons will be seen.

25,000 PERSONS EXPECTED TO BUY [Continued from First Page.] Third, where luncheon will be served. The division commanders and team captains already named in this paper.

Have Complete Records The members of the teams to-morrow will be provided with the names of the persons they are to see in various districts of the city. There are 20,000 or 35,000 wage-earners in the industrial campaign of the last two weeks are known, and record of their purchases has been made on the intricate card indexing system of the headquarters, where it is known absolutely whether a man or woman is a bond owner.

When the lists are made up for the various teams to-morrow noon each team will stick close to own assignments. That will be true until the Thursday luncheon. Then the town will be thrown wide open.

"The Liberty Loan Committee does not expect the people of Harrisburg to do more than they can," said Chairman Andrew S. Patterson this morning.

"What the committee expects, however—and what the nation expects—is that each of us will buy as many Liberty Bonds as we can. We have all got away from the idea that we are giving our money away. During the first campaign many people bought bonds with the idea that their money was gone for good. We can all see now that we are merely putting our money on ice for a little time, and getting paid for it."

"It isn't true that you can't pay cash are barred from bond purchases. The banks will be glad to take care of all 'time' purchasers."
