

Reading for Women and all the Family

Life's Problems Are Discussed

By MRS. WILSON WOODROW

For thousands of years—ever since our first tallies ancestors learned to create fire by rubbing two sticks together—we have been studying the art of living; and to such little advantage that we never have grasped even its first elementary principle. Life is action; its supreme joy is in functioning. Yet we persist in believing that our highest bliss lies in laziness—and this, in spite of the fact that the idle and indolent invariably present a spectacle of unhappiness.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

It sounds enticing. As Sydney Smith said, God might have made something better than the strawberry. But he never did it. Yet we are willing to wager that within a week curlylocks would find her diet so cloying and the softness of her cushion so monotonous, that she would be fairly begging for a chance to feed the cunning pigs and dabble her hands in the dishwasher.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

"I've made the pile," he says to them in effect. "It's up to you to enjoy it."

And then he considers them lacking in gratitude and appreciation, because the poor things are bored and miserable.

Carlyle put the whole thing in a nutshell when he wrote: "Not what I have said, but what I do is my kingdom."

I have a letter which in its unconscious pathos and courage has touched me deeply. It is from a girl twenty years old, in her early childhood was stricken with cerebral paralysis and left so badly crippled that she has never since been able to go about without a companion to assist her.

"When I was younger," she writes, "I had hopes of outgrowing my helplessness and then I was resolved to strike out for myself in some kind of an occupation. But I guess my hopes will never be fulfilled now, and the fact that I cannot go to work makes me very unhappy."

"At one time we lived near a dressmaker, and this woman taught me how to cut out a dress by just looking at the picture or fashion-plate of it. But somehow I could never get the knack of fitting—or maybe I never did enough of it to become expert—so, you see, I would not succeed very well as a dressmaker, and that is about the only thing I would really care to do."

"I have some money saved up, and I would like to do something with it, so that I could help myself and feel independent."

"My people, when I speak of this ambition, only laugh and tell me I don't have to do anything. That may be true; but I know that unless I start doing something now I never, never will do anything at all, and will never be satisfied with my life."

I wonder if the relatives of that young girl could understand how cruel they are to her in their kindness.

It seems to be a rule of Nature that the more handicaps she loads upon a person, the more indomitable and eager is the spirit that implants. The lame, the deaf, the blind and the blind are never content to be taken care of. They burn to prove to themselves and to the world that

Bringing Up Father

I MOVED AWAY OUT HERE ON PURPOSE - JUST TO KEEP YOU AWAY FROM THOSE HORRID FRIENDS OF YOURS

WHY DIDN'T YOU GO TO CHINA?

BY GOLLY - I'M LONESOME - I MUST SEE ME OLD PALS!

YES - JERRY - I SENT FOR YOU - I BOUGHT THE PROPERTY NEXT TO WHERE I LIVE AND I WANT YOU BOYS TO DO THE BUILDING - GET THE GANG ON THE JOB -

JIGGS YOU'RE A WONDER!

DON'T WORK FAST BOYS - AS I WANT YOUSE WITH ME AS LONG AS POSSIBLE

I'M STALLIN'

BUY NOW

LIBERTY BONDS

BY MRS. WILSON WOODROW

For thousands of years—ever since our first tallies ancestors learned to create fire by rubbing two sticks together—we have been studying the art of living; and to such little advantage that we never have grasped even its first elementary principle.

Life is action; its supreme joy is in functioning. Yet we persist in believing that our highest bliss lies in laziness—and this, in spite of the fact that the idle and indolent invariably present a spectacle of unhappiness.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

It sounds enticing. As Sydney Smith said, God might have made something better than the strawberry. But he never did it. Yet we are willing to wager that within a week curlylocks would find her diet so cloying and the softness of her cushion so monotonous, that she would be fairly begging for a chance to feed the cunning pigs and dabble her hands in the dishwasher.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

"I've made the pile," he says to them in effect. "It's up to you to enjoy it."

And then he considers them lacking in gratitude and appreciation, because the poor things are bored and miserable.

Carlyle put the whole thing in a nutshell when he wrote: "Not what I have said, but what I do is my kingdom."

I have a letter which in its unconscious pathos and courage has touched me deeply. It is from a girl twenty years old, in her early childhood was stricken with cerebral paralysis and left so badly crippled that she has never since been able to go about without a companion to assist her.

"When I was younger," she writes, "I had hopes of outgrowing my helplessness and then I was resolved to strike out for myself in some kind of an occupation. But I guess my hopes will never be fulfilled now, and the fact that I cannot go to work makes me very unhappy."

"At one time we lived near a dressmaker, and this woman taught me how to cut out a dress by just looking at the picture or fashion-plate of it. But somehow I could never get the knack of fitting—or maybe I never did enough of it to become expert—so, you see, I would not succeed very well as a dressmaker, and that is about the only thing I would really care to do."

"I have some money saved up, and I would like to do something with it, so that I could help myself and feel independent."

"My people, when I speak of this ambition, only laugh and tell me I don't have to do anything. That may be true; but I know that unless I start doing something now I never, never will do anything at all, and will never be satisfied with my life."

I wonder if the relatives of that young girl could understand how cruel they are to her in their kindness.

THE FOUR OF HEARTS

I MOVED AWAY OUT HERE ON PURPOSE - JUST TO KEEP YOU AWAY FROM THOSE HORRID FRIENDS OF YOURS

WHY DIDN'T YOU GO TO CHINA?

BY GOLLY - I'M LONESOME - I MUST SEE ME OLD PALS!

YES - JERRY - I SENT FOR YOU - I BOUGHT THE PROPERTY NEXT TO WHERE I LIVE AND I WANT YOU BOYS TO DO THE BUILDING - GET THE GANG ON THE JOB -

JIGGS YOU'RE A WONDER!

DON'T WORK FAST BOYS - AS I WANT YOUSE WITH ME AS LONG AS POSSIBLE

I'M STALLIN'

BUY NOW

LIBERTY BONDS

BY MRS. WILSON WOODROW

For thousands of years—ever since our first tallies ancestors learned to create fire by rubbing two sticks together—we have been studying the art of living; and to such little advantage that we never have grasped even its first elementary principle.

Life is action; its supreme joy is in functioning. Yet we persist in believing that our highest bliss lies in laziness—and this, in spite of the fact that the idle and indolent invariably present a spectacle of unhappiness.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

It sounds enticing. As Sydney Smith said, God might have made something better than the strawberry. But he never did it. Yet we are willing to wager that within a week curlylocks would find her diet so cloying and the softness of her cushion so monotonous, that she would be fairly begging for a chance to feed the cunning pigs and dabble her hands in the dishwasher.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

"I've made the pile," he says to them in effect. "It's up to you to enjoy it."

And then he considers them lacking in gratitude and appreciation, because the poor things are bored and miserable.

Carlyle put the whole thing in a nutshell when he wrote: "Not what I have said, but what I do is my kingdom."

I have a letter which in its unconscious pathos and courage has touched me deeply. It is from a girl twenty years old, in her early childhood was stricken with cerebral paralysis and left so badly crippled that she has never since been able to go about without a companion to assist her.

"When I was younger," she writes, "I had hopes of outgrowing my helplessness and then I was resolved to strike out for myself in some kind of an occupation. But I guess my hopes will never be fulfilled now, and the fact that I cannot go to work makes me very unhappy."

"At one time we lived near a dressmaker, and this woman taught me how to cut out a dress by just looking at the picture or fashion-plate of it. But somehow I could never get the knack of fitting—or maybe I never did enough of it to become expert—so, you see, I would not succeed very well as a dressmaker, and that is about the only thing I would really care to do."

"I have some money saved up, and I would like to do something with it, so that I could help myself and feel independent."

"My people, when I speak of this ambition, only laugh and tell me I don't have to do anything. That may be true; but I know that unless I start doing something now I never, never will do anything at all, and will never be satisfied with my life."

I wonder if the relatives of that young girl could understand how cruel they are to her in their kindness.

"Outwitting the Hun"

I MOVED AWAY OUT HERE ON PURPOSE - JUST TO KEEP YOU AWAY FROM THOSE HORRID FRIENDS OF YOURS

WHY DIDN'T YOU GO TO CHINA?

BY GOLLY - I'M LONESOME - I MUST SEE ME OLD PALS!

YES - JERRY - I SENT FOR YOU - I BOUGHT THE PROPERTY NEXT TO WHERE I LIVE AND I WANT YOU BOYS TO DO THE BUILDING - GET THE GANG ON THE JOB -

JIGGS YOU'RE A WONDER!

DON'T WORK FAST BOYS - AS I WANT YOUSE WITH ME AS LONG AS POSSIBLE

I'M STALLIN'

BUY NOW

LIBERTY BONDS

BY MRS. WILSON WOODROW

For thousands of years—ever since our first tallies ancestors learned to create fire by rubbing two sticks together—we have been studying the art of living; and to such little advantage that we never have grasped even its first elementary principle.

Life is action; its supreme joy is in functioning. Yet we persist in believing that our highest bliss lies in laziness—and this, in spite of the fact that the idle and indolent invariably present a spectacle of unhappiness.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

It sounds enticing. As Sydney Smith said, God might have made something better than the strawberry. But he never did it. Yet we are willing to wager that within a week curlylocks would find her diet so cloying and the softness of her cushion so monotonous, that she would be fairly begging for a chance to feed the cunning pigs and dabble her hands in the dishwasher.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

"I've made the pile," he says to them in effect. "It's up to you to enjoy it."

And then he considers them lacking in gratitude and appreciation, because the poor things are bored and miserable.

Carlyle put the whole thing in a nutshell when he wrote: "Not what I have said, but what I do is my kingdom."

I have a letter which in its unconscious pathos and courage has touched me deeply. It is from a girl twenty years old, in her early childhood was stricken with cerebral paralysis and left so badly crippled that she has never since been able to go about without a companion to assist her.

"When I was younger," she writes, "I had hopes of outgrowing my helplessness and then I was resolved to strike out for myself in some kind of an occupation. But I guess my hopes will never be fulfilled now, and the fact that I cannot go to work makes me very unhappy."

"At one time we lived near a dressmaker, and this woman taught me how to cut out a dress by just looking at the picture or fashion-plate of it. But somehow I could never get the knack of fitting—or maybe I never did enough of it to become expert—so, you see, I would not succeed very well as a dressmaker, and that is about the only thing I would really care to do."

"I have some money saved up, and I would like to do something with it, so that I could help myself and feel independent."

"My people, when I speak of this ambition, only laugh and tell me I don't have to do anything. That may be true; but I know that unless I start doing something now I never, never will do anything at all, and will never be satisfied with my life."

I wonder if the relatives of that young girl could understand how cruel they are to her in their kindness.

Six Candidates For Retirement Board

I MOVED AWAY OUT HERE ON PURPOSE - JUST TO KEEP YOU AWAY FROM THOSE HORRID FRIENDS OF YOURS

WHY DIDN'T YOU GO TO CHINA?

BY GOLLY - I'M LONESOME - I MUST SEE ME OLD PALS!

YES - JERRY - I SENT FOR YOU - I BOUGHT THE PROPERTY NEXT TO WHERE I LIVE AND I WANT YOU BOYS TO DO THE BUILDING - GET THE GANG ON THE JOB -

JIGGS YOU'RE A WONDER!

DON'T WORK FAST BOYS - AS I WANT YOUSE WITH ME AS LONG AS POSSIBLE

I'M STALLIN'

BUY NOW

LIBERTY BONDS

BY MRS. WILSON WOODROW

For thousands of years—ever since our first tallies ancestors learned to create fire by rubbing two sticks together—we have been studying the art of living; and to such little advantage that we never have grasped even its first elementary principle.

Life is action; its supreme joy is in functioning. Yet we persist in believing that our highest bliss lies in laziness—and this, in spite of the fact that the idle and indolent invariably present a spectacle of unhappiness.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

It sounds enticing. As Sydney Smith said, God might have made something better than the strawberry. But he never did it. Yet we are willing to wager that within a week curlylocks would find her diet so cloying and the softness of her cushion so monotonous, that she would be fairly begging for a chance to feed the cunning pigs and dabble her hands in the dishwasher.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

"I've made the pile," he says to them in effect. "It's up to you to enjoy it."

And then he considers them lacking in gratitude and appreciation, because the poor things are bored and miserable.

Carlyle put the whole thing in a nutshell when he wrote: "Not what I have said, but what I do is my kingdom."

I have a letter which in its unconscious pathos and courage has touched me deeply. It is from a girl twenty years old, in her early childhood was stricken with cerebral paralysis and left so badly crippled that she has never since been able to go about without a companion to assist her.

"When I was younger," she writes, "I had hopes of outgrowing my helplessness and then I was resolved to strike out for myself in some kind of an occupation. But I guess my hopes will never be fulfilled now, and the fact that I cannot go to work makes me very unhappy."

"At one time we lived near a dressmaker, and this woman taught me how to cut out a dress by just looking at the picture or fashion-plate of it. But somehow I could never get the knack of fitting—or maybe I never did enough of it to become expert—so, you see, I would not succeed very well as a dressmaker, and that is about the only thing I would really care to do."

"I have some money saved up, and I would like to do something with it, so that I could help myself and feel independent."

"My people, when I speak of this ambition, only laugh and tell me I don't have to do anything. That may be true; but I know that unless I start doing something now I never, never will do anything at all, and will never be satisfied with my life."

I wonder if the relatives of that young girl could understand how cruel they are to her in their kindness.

Boy Scouts Get Clean Health Bill From Prober

I MOVED AWAY OUT HERE ON PURPOSE - JUST TO KEEP YOU AWAY FROM THOSE HORRID FRIENDS OF YOURS

WHY DIDN'T YOU GO TO CHINA?

BY GOLLY - I'M LONESOME - I MUST SEE ME OLD PALS!

YES - JERRY - I SENT FOR YOU - I BOUGHT THE PROPERTY NEXT TO WHERE I LIVE AND I WANT YOU BOYS TO DO THE BUILDING - GET THE GANG ON THE JOB -

JIGGS YOU'RE A WONDER!

DON'T WORK FAST BOYS - AS I WANT YOUSE WITH ME AS LONG AS POSSIBLE

I'M STALLIN'

BUY NOW

LIBERTY BONDS

BY MRS. WILSON WOODROW

For thousands of years—ever since our first tallies ancestors learned to create fire by rubbing two sticks together—we have been studying the art of living; and to such little advantage that we never have grasped even its first elementary principle.

Life is action; its supreme joy is in functioning. Yet we persist in believing that our highest bliss lies in laziness—and this, in spite of the fact that the idle and indolent invariably present a spectacle of unhappiness.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

It sounds enticing. As Sydney Smith said, God might have made something better than the strawberry. But he never did it. Yet we are willing to wager that within a week curlylocks would find her diet so cloying and the softness of her cushion so monotonous, that she would be fairly begging for a chance to feed the cunning pigs and dabble her hands in the dishwasher.

Human longing for most of us expresses itself in the old nursery-rhyme promise of curlylocks' lover, that she should not wash the dishes nor yet feed the swine, but sit on a cushion and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream.

"I've made the pile," he says to them in effect. "It's up to you to enjoy it."

And then he considers them lacking in gratitude and appreciation, because the poor things are bored and miserable.

Carlyle put the whole thing in a nutshell when he wrote: "Not what I have said, but what I do is my kingdom."

I have a letter which in its unconscious pathos and courage has touched me deeply. It is from a girl twenty years old, in her early childhood was stricken with cerebral paralysis and left so badly crippled that she has never since been able to go about without a companion to assist her.

"When I was younger," she writes, "I had hopes of outgrowing my helplessness and then I was resolved to strike out for myself in some kind of an occupation. But I guess my hopes will never be fulfilled now, and the fact that I cannot go to work makes me very unhappy."

"At one time we lived near a dressmaker, and this woman taught me how to cut out a dress by just looking at the picture or fashion-plate of it. But somehow I could never get the knack of fitting—or maybe I never did enough of it to become expert—so, you see, I would not succeed very well as a dressmaker, and that is about the only thing I would really care to do."

"I have some money saved up, and I would like to do something with it, so that I could help myself and feel independent."

"My people, when I speak of this ambition, only laugh and tell me I don't have to do anything. That may be true; but I know that unless I start doing something now I never, never will do anything at all, and will never be satisfied with my life."

I wonder if the relatives of that young girl could understand how cruel they are to her in their kindness.

NEARLY CRAZY WITH PIMPLES

All Over Body, Also Head. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed in Two Weeks.

"I broke out with small white pimples all over my body, the upper part being the worst. The blisters itched, and I would scratch until I was nearly crazy, when they broke. My face was very sore, and the eruption also broke out on my head. I was treated but it did no good. A friend told me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I did, and after using them two weeks they healed me." (Signed) H. P. Trump, 4 Alexander St., Sharon, Pa., Oct. 12, 1917.

Use these super-creamy emollients for every-day toilet purposes and prevent these distressing troubles.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address postcard: "Cuticura," Dept. 486, P.O. Box 5309, Lowell, Mass. Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25c and 50c.

SEVEN BURN TO DEATH IN GERMAN PRISON CAMP

Philadelphia, April 22.—Evidence that a British seaman named John Genover, taken prisoner by the Germans in the battle of the Skagerrak, was deliberately permitted to burn to death, together with a French soldier and five Russians, in a flimsy board cell in the German prison camp at Brandenburg in March, last year, and that when he attempted to get away from the flames behind him by trying to squeeze through the narrow window was bayoneted by the sentry and thrust back into the fire, has just been made public by the British government in a White Paper, copies of which reached here a few days ago through official sources.

British Drive Germans From Advanced Positions

London, April 22.—The British troops near Rebecq, northwest of Bethune, yesterday drove the Germans from some of their advanced positions, according to Field Marshal Haig's statement, issued by the War Office last night. Aside from artillery engagements, there was little other activity along the front Sunday.

SCHOOL OF COMMERCE AND HARRISBURG BUSINESS COLLEGE

Trump Building, 15 S. Market St. Bell phone 483; Dial 4322

Bookkeeping, Short-hand, Stenotype, Typewriting, Civil Service.

If you want to secure a good position and hold it, get thorough training in a standard school of Established Reputation. Day and Night School. Enter any Monday.

Fully accredited by the National Association.

NO ADVANCE IN PRICE CHILDREN

Should not be "dosed" for colds—apply "externally"

VICK'S VAPORUB

25c—50c—$1.00

Daily Fashion Hint

Prepared Especially For This Newspaper

A SUMMER PROOF

A delightful model is pictured here, fashioned of plain and check cotton crepe. The tunic is longer at the left than at the right side, and is scalloped and bound with silk. The two-piece foundation skirt closes in front. Check crepe is utilized for the underblouse, the jumper being scalloped to correspond with the tunic. Medium size requires 2 yards 36-inch check and 4 1/2 yards 36-inch plain crepe.

Pictorial Review Waist No. 7711. Sizes, 34 to 42 inches bust. Price, 20 cents. Skirt No. 7704. Sizes, 24 to 32 inches waist. Price, 20 cents. Scallop No. 12178. Blue or yellow transfer, 15 cents.

KAISER YIELDS TO POPE

Amsterdam, April 22.—A dispatch to the Maasbode from Cologne says it is learned there that as a result of mediation by the Pope, Emperor William has ordered that no more Belgian church bells shall be seized.

Save America's Fats—Improve America's Cooking—Use Mazola—the Oil from Indian Corn

EVERY time you fry potatoes, fish or any other food in Mazola instead of butter, you save fats—

And you improve the cooking in flavor and digestibility.

Cooking with Mazola holds the flavor of the food itself—never flavors food with the smoke of burning fat. You can use it much hotter than butter and lard—and so make fried things digestible.

For economy—use it over and over again. It never carries taste or odor from one food to another.

Why should you melt solid fats to make an oil for shortening when Mazola is already an oil and makes such delicious pastries?

Mazola makes a perfect salad dressing, equal in quality to one made with the best olive oil, superior to one made with ordinary olive oil. It is easier to mix than an olive oil dressing.

For sale in pints, quarts, half gallons and gallons. For greater economy buy the large sizes.

There is a valuable Cook Book for Mazola users. It shows you how to fry, sauté, make dressings and sauces more delicious, make light digestible pastry. Should be in every home. Send for it or ask your grocer. FREE.

Corn Products Refining Co.
P. O. Box 161, New York

Selling Representative
NATIONAL STARCH CO.
135 South 2nd Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

