

U. S. CAN RAISE 10,000,000 MEN FOR WAR, HE SAYS

Men at Home, Speaker Tells Big Patriotic Rally, Must Help With Money

Harrisburg's great patriotic jubilee week, which will wind up on Saturday night with the appearance of Madame Schumann-Heink, was launched last evening at Chestnut street hall before an immense audience who heard speakers of national repute discuss the vital questions now being settled and the ones that must be met when Germany is beaten. Perhaps the keynote recognized by the bulk of listeners was touched by Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale University, when he said that "permanent peace can only come through fighting this war to a finish." The desire in every mind evidently was that every sacrifice must be made now to suppress Germany but after that to so reconstruct that war will hereafter be almost impossible.

The big auditorium was crowded with a patriotic throng that cheered the speakers.

The substantial objective therefore, should be a "league of nations" and not only Professor Fisher, but the other speakers, Bishop McDowell, of Washington; W. A. Law, president of the First National bank of Philadelphia, and Lieutenant Henry Darlington, all emphasized that "the present war has challenged the moral incertitude of civilized society. While the world was at peace it was easy to feel that duty had been done and responsibility discharged when, in pupil, university and market place, occasional voices had been lifted against war. A long period of peace had lulled the world into a false sense of security. Then life was going along quietly. A few who understood something of the impending peril were doing what they could to educate public opinion against war, but leaders in church and state did not feel any urgent and driving necessity for diverting the

WELL-TO-DO MAN WHO "GETS BY" ON $100 BOND SURELY A SLACKER

Written for The Harrisburg Telegraph By Paul Arthur

About the meanest slacker is the well-to-do man with a big bank balance who is not satisfied with a 4 1/2 per cent. investment and yet who obtains the right to wear a Liberty Bond button by purchasing a $100 bond, whereas he should buy $10,000 or double or treble the latter amount.

His near brother is the man who refuses to make application for a Third Liberty Loan bond, for which he must pay 100 cents on the dollar, because he hopes to be able to buy the same bond in the open market after allotment at a discount of 1 per cent. or possibly a fraction more.

The third of the triplets is the man or woman who refuses to buy even a $50 bond if that purchase would necessitate cutting down on the purchase of unneeded and luxuries.

Any person of either class who is able, but fails to do his duty to himself or to his country, and thinks he can "get away with it," is going to discover his mistake. There never was a bond campaign so thoroughly organized as this Third Liberty Loan, and bankers and brokers and members of the executive committee have perfected a system whereby they can track the slacker who evades his duty.

The man without bonds proportioned to his means will be like the man without a country, and methods have been devised for giving him more and a different sort of publicity than he will relish, after the campaign closes.

Dowell, later on, called for everybody who would buy bonds to stand up not one person remained sitting. The number of Harrisburg boys in service could be estimated, too, by the number who responded when the bishop asked those to rise who had relatives fighting for Uncle Sam.

God Not With Murderers

Both Bishop McDowell and Professor Fisher excoriated the Kaiser and his people for their atrocities; hate, the results of years of struggle for social justice, for democracy and for larger opportunity for the common man were thrown on the scrap heap for settling disputes that are bound to arise between nations. Unless this can be done we never can be sure that at any moment the results of generations of preaching and teaching may not be consumed in the fires of war.

No Words Mincied

This for the future. For the present the very able speakers had a punch in both hands and did not mince words. Mr. Law declared that the United States can raise ten million soldiers without seriously interrupting the regular course of business; that we need not fear things will be managed otherwise than carefully as the war continues and that the only thing to think of now is getting the money.

Dwelling on the same idea Professor Fisher gave utterance to this sentence which seemed to go home to the audience: "When the troops come marching home again, and you stand on the curb and give the greatest ovation any army in the history of the world ever received, you will be unable to take your part unless you have a Liberty Bond." This struck so true that many an auditor felt for his Liberty Bond badge and some persons looked rather uncomfortable, although when Bishop Mc-interviewed at the same time and the two German leaders apparently were convinced that for Germany force was needed to bring about peace.

PEACE HOPE PLACED IN FRONT DRIVE

The chief quartermaster said concerning the fighting which has since broken out in Northern France: "The final fighting in the west, of course, cannot be compared to the fighting in Galicia or in Italy. The enemy has a powerful reserve army at hand, which he may move on his splendidly laid-out railroad system as he sees fit."

"But, however heavy the fighting may be, the battle must be fought out, because, without it, peace is not attainable."

Wilhelm Hegeler, correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, in reporting the interview, described Von Hindenburg as a picture of quiescent greatness, while Ludendorff gave the impression of having strength of volcanic heat, but curbed by will.

The correspondent said that when the conversation turned to even in the east, Field Marshal von Hindenburg referred to charges that in concluding peace "we acted like men of violence, and that it was necessary to obtain frontier safeguards."

"As we wanted peace, we had to bring it about by force," was the interjection of General Ludendorff.

Peace in the east, he said, tremendous relief for the Germans on the west, Ludendorff said, adding:

"Ludendorff's Faith in Might

"Now we must try to gain the ascendancy numerically. Of course, the transportation of troops from the east because of the bad condition of the railroads cannot be effected by tomorrow. But at any rate, a position already is such that we do not have to ask, looking up anxiously: 'Where will the enemy attack?' We ourselves are in a position to assume the offensive wherever we desire."

Referring to France, General Ludendorff said:

"We may well say, without exaggeration, that France has dug her own grave. She is about to bleed herself to death. Undoubtedly the French are brave soldiers."

Enemy Leaders Express Concern

Lieutenant-General von Ardenne, the military critic, in the Tageblatt on March 20, the day before the beginning of the offensive in the west, of the interview with the military leaders wrote:

"The German army leaders look forward with grave concern to the final fighting. The saving of German blood they have at all times considered as a sacred duty. But the German people and their allies will have to accept the necessity that the final battle must be fought out."

Washington, April 22.—What has been done toward stamping out vice in Philadelphia to provide wholesome environment for the thousands of marines and bluejackets stationed in and about that city was the subject of a long conference here yesterday between Secretary Daniels and Lieutenant Colonel Hatch, of the Marine Corps, detailed recently to represent the Navy Department in this work.

Both the Secretary and Colonel Hatch made it plain that the Navy has no thought of taking over the policing of Philadelphia, but will insist upon the city authorities enforcing their own laws. They said citizens of Philadelphia are giving aid and encouragement in the task.

Liberty Editorial

BY DONALD MCCORMICK President, the Dauphin Deposit Trust Company

DETERMINED TO WIN

I WISH I could convince the men and women of Harrisburg that these Liberty Loans present an unequalled opportunity to start on the road to systematic saving.

If those of us who have not acquired the saving habit will begin now by acquiring Liberty Bonds, we will find a great satisfaction in knowing that we have become investors in a moderate degree; and we will be incited to continue to save.

Many successful men tell us that the first hundred dollars was the hardest to save.

A youth who starts to save a dollar a week will when it has become $10 be anxious to see it grow to be $100; and his ambition in this regard will prompt him to save $2 a week, instead of the original one dollar he put away.

This man who becomes the owner of a bond is loath to part with it; he desires others like it—and his ambition is to have two or more Liberty Bonds in the place where only one was before.

Men and women who bought Liberty Bonds in the first flotation—and who thus made their first real investment—will tell you if you ask them that they feel a real satisfaction in ownership of those bonds; and the same thing will be true of you six months hence if you buy bonds of the third issue.

Let the rich and poor work hand in hand, each doing his best to save his country by making an investment in proportion to his means.

When we have done that the Third Liberty Loan will have been so successful that it will teach the Germans we are in deadly earnest about this war—and are determined to win.
