

TOEN ALONE TO DECIDE BATTLE ON WEST FRONT

General Radcliffe Says Victory Depends on Reserves; Enemy on Kemmel Hill

London, April 27.—"In the end, it will be a question of who has the last reserves," said General Delma Radcliffe, chief director of military operations at the War Office, in a review of the western front situation yesterday afternoon.

"These reserves on the western front are now in the hands of General Koch, in whom the German army has the fullest confidence. He so far has employed only a small proportion of his available reserves, and this is a great augury for the future.

"In this long-drawn-out test of endurance of the nations, it is imperative to get every man possible to support to the front, for men alone will tell in the end."

The Germans, in their attack on the northern battlefield, have occupied Kemmel Hill, General Radcliffe stated.

General Radcliffe declared it was perfectly possible for the Allies to push the Germans back, even to the Germans on Kemmel Hill, but that it was not convenient to have them there and it was hoped to eject them.

Kemmel Hill, continued the general, the Germans gained 2,000 yards on a front of about 1,200 yards, including the important tactical features of the hill itself, which gives important observation over all the ground to the north.

The net result in the Kemmel sector so far is that the Germans have gained about 2,000 yards on a front of about 1,200 yards," says General Radcliffe. "This gain is not large, but it involves the important ground, and there is no question that it is a very serious one.

"There is nothing decisive about the loss of Kemmel Hill but it is one of the most important tactical features, as the hill is an observation point for all the ground to the north. It still remains to be seen, however, whether it will remain in the enemy's hands.

"Our line to the north is all right, and it is entirely possible to hold on to the Yser, where the enemy is in Kemmel. But his presence there is not convenient, and we hope to get him off."

Teutons Wound Selves to Escape From Battle

The Hague, April 27.—In view of the fact that the Germans are trying to create the impression that American troops at the front lack courage and that some have committed suicide to avoid going into the trenches, interesting testimony is given by a traveler who has seen Red Cross trains passing through Aachen from the past offensive.

He states that hundreds of German soldiers have been seen in the left hand and that these wounds seem to have been self-inflicted with rifles in order that they may not have to go to the front.

The traveler says there are 8,000 to 9,000 wounded men in Aachen and that 500 or 600 pass through daily. The lightly wounded are well cared for, but those who are severely wounded are transported to the other end of Germany, often dying on their long journey.

PROHIBITION FAR MORE IMPORTANT THAN POLITICS

Saloon Is Only Friend of Brewer, Says Lecturer Before Great Antiboze Rally in Technical High School

"Issues are more important than parties" are the words on election day and vote for a dry Keystone State. That in few words, was the message brought by Prof. J. H. Dickson, of Woodbury, in the big patriotic rally held under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. in the Technical High School Auditorium last night.

"The saloon is responsible for 5,000 suicides each year; it leads 10,000 criminals to their death each year; ruins 60,000 girls; brings 42,000 to 75,000 men and women to drunkards' graves, and starts 100,000 boys and men and women on the road to ruin."
