—Coincident with the announcement by Director of Public Safety Wilson that Philadelphia firemen as well as police must keep out of politics, the Republican Alliance indorsed the "objects and purposes" of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Protective Association. This organization is made up of bluecoats of the city, but it has never been recognized by Mayor Smith and his police officials. It is significant that in ordering the firemen to keep out of politics, Director Wilson leaves the way open for them to "contribute" voluntarily to the campaign fund of voluntarily to the campaign fund of

No Better Than Bonds

There is a rumor going about that certain persons are hoarding currency in the fear that the exigencies of the war will invalidate all other forms of credit. It seems to be their idea that a $5 note must in the very nature of things maintain the value which the government engraving places on it. For these persons it is worth while saying that the engraving offers no greater surety than the surety of the United States government. The use of this currency to purchase Liberty Bonds merely transfers it to another form of government obligation. If Liberty Bonds should become worthless, Government obligation. man of the War Savings work for Dauphin county, is vitally interested in making the sale of stamps a big go in this county, especially since it has shown up so well on the Liberty Loans. Mr. Donaldson is working out a plan, which has been tried in other communities, to have people save systematically. idea is to have a pledge week during which people will be asked to pledge themselves to save so much, little or big, just so it is saving" says he. "It will not interfere with weekly payments on Liberty Bonds, but rather help it because it will be to catch the nickels and quarters that might be spent otherwise. There can be much money saved and people learn how to save if they have something like a pledge to tie to." When Mr. Donaldson's plan is thought over, the strength of it is apparent. There are many Harrisburgers who spend money each week for something they do not want and do not need. They ride when a walk would do them good and they spend money for trips when they do not know the beauties of their city sparkways. They buy out-of-town and pay the freight when they can get it just as good and cheaper at home. They eat between meals when it hurts their digestion and spoils their temper and some have an idea they have to drink certain beverages now because pretty soon they won't be able to get them. By just going down the line and thinking where some clipping can be done and then putting down the sum on a rather help it because it will be to ing where some clipping can be done and then putting down the sum on a ing where some clipping can be done and then putting down the sum on a pledge card they can be savers instead of spenders and the money being loaned to Uncle Sam is put back into circulation right in Harrisburg where there are works and factories making munitions and supplies for the Army and Navy and where the railroad men who haul them live and where the workmen who are building the big depots near here have their homes. Just trace the money you put into a Thrift Stamp or a Baby Bond and watch it come back to your own hand. You buy the Baby Bond and the $4.18 goes to Uncle Sam's credit. An officer pays it out to a Harrisburg firm or to the Pennsylvania railroad or the Central Iron and Steel Company. Either one pays its men and they go to a store and buy and by you get paid something and before you know it the money is back in your pocket and you have the Baby Bond, too.

A good story is told about the arrival of some colored men from one of the central counties at Camp Meade the latter part of the week. These men arrived about noon and the colored men in the Army were sunning themselves against their barracks after the usual Army dinner. Suddenly one of the bucks in uniform spied the draftees toiling up the road and sang out at one of them:

them: "Oh, Henry, dey done all de chicken you can eat—like something."

The mention of chicken had inspired grins, but the windup seemed to break their hearts, while the audience in khaki just yelled.

Now what do you think of that for a welcome," remarked Colonel Hatch, who had come along and heard it.

Speaking of music, at the organ Speaking of music, at the organ recital given Monday night by Charles Heinroth, he transposed the numbers on the program, playing a "Spring Song" in place of a Bach fugue in D Major. Imagine the perplexity of musiclovers when they heard the note of a bird opening the brilliant Bach composition. But they were happily set aright when they heard the opening notes of the fugue as the next number, and found that McFarlane's "Spring Song" followed.

War does not seem to have hit the Harrisburg Public Library circula-tion to any extent. The April fig-ures will show that it went over 10,-000, which is almost a winter month's figure. Generally in March and April reading declines, but this year, as in many other lines, the cir culation of books has gone ahead and the April figures show up better

That Harrisburg has some mighty fine musicians, is a fact which needs no note. In the various recitals given by local artists, Harrisburg is being given an opportunity to realize this. The other evening a party of musicians began to invent new ways of amusing themselves. "I'll wager you can't play a sonata with Tipperary' as the theme," said one of the party to an expert planist. The wager was taken and auditors heard "Tipperary" played with the skill of wager was taken and auditors heard "Tipperary" played with the skill of a Josef Hoffman. "Here's a harder one! Allen Sangree has made "The Old Gray Mare," a marching tune Can you transpose it to a funeral march?" Without perceptible effort or knitting of the eyebrows, the planist played a death march, with "The Old Gray Mare" as the theme
