

Camp Meade Soldier Home Via $500 Bonds

Camp Meade, May 3.—Gus Cantor, a private in the Three Hundred and Fourteenth Infantry, but a business-man of Mount Carmel, Pa., as well, hit upon a novel scheme of obtaining a leave of absence from camp. It is buying a $100 Liberty Bond for every day wanted. Cantor wanted a few days' leave of absence to attend to some personal business in Mount Carmel, so he suggested to a Liberty Bond salesman that he would buy a $100 Liberty Bond for every day he would aid him in getting away from camp. The salesman had a talk with Cantor's company commander and succeeded in getting the soldier a pass for five days. Cantor pulled out a checkbook and wrote a check for $500, and he is now attending to his business affairs.

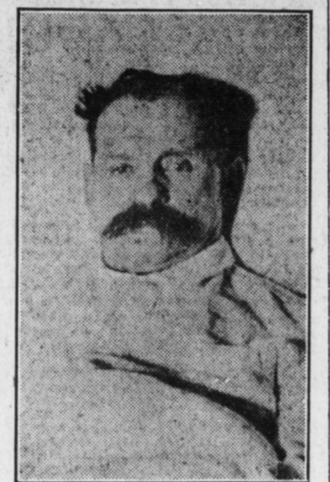

Ruffians in Berlin Strip Men and Women in Street

London, May 3.—So acute is the scarcity of clothing in Germany that men and women are being attacked daily by ruffians in the streets of Berlin and stripped of their garments, according to German newspapers received here. It is said that one insurance office alone in Berlin is notified of an average of 400 thefts daily. Threats for mending clothes is said to be virtually unobtainable. Commenting on the food situation in Germany the papers intimate that the hope entertained of speedy relief from the Ukraine has been dispelled.

Major Jackson Praises U. S. Troops in France

Major Jackson is with the Army Commissioner of Labor and Industry, pays warm tribute to the behavior of American soldiers in France in a letter just received here. Major Jackson is with the army in France and now on leave of absence. He states: "I am writing for the purpose of telling that during the three months I have been in Europe I have not seen a single disorderly or drunken American soldier. 'I have seen many thousands of our boys, off duty and on duty, and a more manly set of young men of fine bearing I never expect to meet.'"

Body of A. S. Neal, Missing Month, Found at Wildwood

A. S. NEAL

The body of A. S. Neal, 1728 Logan street, was found concealed in some bushes in Wildwood Park, at the upper end of the lake near the boathouse, it was thought to have wandered while mentally deranged as a result of a continued illness of four years. He disappeared from his home one month ago, leaving word that he would seek a home in the mountains, and a prolonged search failed to reveal his whereabouts. The mountains north of the city were scoured by friends and state police to no avail. Late yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Willis Cooke accidentally discovered the body while gathering dandelion blossoms.

Foch's Appointment Spur For New Tales of French General

London.—The appointment of General Foch as generalissimo of the Allied forces has brought out a new crop of stories about him. Some of the best are related by M. Meinier-Surcouf, Deputy from Saint-Brieuc, who served for twenty months on Foch's staff at the beginning of the war. "October 30, 1914," says M. Meinier-Surcouf, "General Foch learned that the English cavalry had been attacked by superior forces and had had to give considerable ground to the south of Ypres. The two points of support were lost, the line had been broken and the flank of General Dubois was in danger. General Foch hurried to St. Omer, arriving at 1 o'clock in the morning. 'Marshal French was awakened. 'Marshal, your line is broken,' said General Foch. 'Yes, the marshal replied. 'Have you any reserves?' 'I have nothing.' 'Give Own Reserves to British. 'All right,' said General Foch. 'I will give you mine. We must stop the hole at once. If the line is pierced at one point we will be lost, because of the overwhelming numbers of the enemy. I have eight battalions of the Thirty-second Division that General Joffre has sent me. Tame them and—Forward! 'Marshal French was greatly moved. He shook hands warmly with General Foch, saying, 'It is a fine thing you have done for me.' At 2 o'clock the orders were given, the gap was stopped and we were advancing." "Another time! It was to the north of Ypres and the English had been forced back. A division of the First Corps was almost annihilated. In vain Sir Douglas Haig charged at the head of a brigade of the Guard. His staff was killed and his troops were shot to pieces. He was obliged to give way. 'General Foch hurried again to Marshal French, whom he found at Vlamertinghe November 1. General Foch begged Marshal French to forbid the retreat. 'Marshal French replied. He could do no more, he said; his troops were worn out. Saves British Again. 'Foch argued. He showed the danger, the incalculable consequences of losing the battle. 'You must hold!' he cried. 'Fight to the death! You must never retreat in full battle. The rout would be frightful. Today it would be a catastrophe. Hold. I will come to your aid.' 'While speaking he wrote on a scrap of paper he picked up from the table his idea of what should be done and passed it to the marshal. The British general took the paper, wrote on it, 'Execute the order of General Foch,' signed it and gave it to one of his officers. 'As soon as the orders were issued the English stopped their retreat and counterattacked. We supported them. The Germans were stopped. They are still stopped.' Another of the anecdotes of M. Meinier-Surcouf relates to General Foch's method of choosing the members of his staff. It seems that at the beginning of the war the colonel of an infantry regiment called for a sergeant to volunteer "for an extremely perilous mission." Several sergeants stepped from the ranks and the colonel, picking one, said, "Report for duty on the staff of General Foch."

Tech Freshies Make Good in Thrift Stamp Campaign by Defeating Upper Class

Members of the Freshman class made good their challenge sent out to the remainder of the school to defeat the upper classes in sale of Thrift Stamps. In charge of Mr. Rees, of the faculty, the "Freshies" bought over $500 worth of the Thrift Stamps, as announced this morning. These are being converted into the Baby Bonds. Mr. Wallize aided the Juniors in making a drive to the extent of $155. Messrs. Pomp, Nye and Knauss headed the Sophs, who licked $161 worth of the stamps. The Seniors, few in number, and needing their change for commencement activities, were last in the collections. Mr. Royal was in charge of the sale. With the campaign only two weeks old, the students of the school have purchased almost $1,000 worth of stamps. The drive will continue until the close of school.

At that time the members will discuss the work in connection with the remaining issues of the staff.

An important meeting of the faculty was held after school last evening. Matters pertaining to the close of school were discussed. Professor J. Clyde Ziegler, who recently resigned from the Tech faculty to enlist in the ordnance department, is located at Camp Edgewood, Maryland. In a recent letter to the principal, he expressed himself as pleased with life in the service of Uncle Sam. Charles Zerbe, a member of the 1915 class, visited the school to-day. He enlisted in the Navy last fall and is stationed at Hampton Roads at a training school. The Senior class will hold a meeting Monday evening to perfect plans for commencement. They have chosen the American Beauty as the class flower.

RETURNS KAISER'S THREAT

Washington.—"America will stand no nonsense from the Kaiser," declared James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, in opening a Y. M. C. A. hut for soldiers and sailors here. "America now makes the same threat toward the Kaiser," said Mr. Gerard, "that the Kaiser made toward America when he received me at his Potsdam palace in October, 1913. Force must be met with force, and autocracy must be met with autocracy."

Rummage For Nursery Home to Bring in Articles Needed at Institution

Collection of waste for the Nursery Home will begin in the near future, it was announced to-day by officials in charge of the collection. Thrift bags were recently distributed throughout the city, the purpose being to have people place their waste in the bags. This waste will be sold and the proceeds used for the support of the Nursery Home.

The Nursery Home, at 1321 South Cameron street, is a school for children below the age of fourteen years. The waste saved by Harrisburg housewives will be sold at a high figure, officials say, and it is estimated that many children can be supported with the money realized. Commenting upon the campaign for saving waste, a worker said to-day: "No better movement than the waste saving campaign could have been launched to enlist all who are interested in united efforts for the common welfare. By this method people come to realize what can be accomplished by intelligent war on waste."

"At the present time the country is suffering from an unprecedented shortage of manufacturing materials. There is also an alarming falling off in contributions to charity at a time when charity demands have greatly increased. The thrift campaign accomplishes a two-fold purpose in relieving both these conditions."

Tendency to Constipation?

USE THIS LAXATIVE! Dietitians advise a "careful diet," but that is troublesome to most people; physical culturists advise "certain exercises," which is good if one has both the time and the inclination. In fact, since the ingredients are wholly from the vegetable kingdom it may truthfully be said it is a natural laxative. Its positive but gentle action on the bowels makes it an ideal remedy for constipation. The dose is small and it may be taken with perfect safety until the bowels are regulated and act again of their own accord. The druggist will refund your money if it fails to do as promised.
