MAY BUILD DAM AT TURKEY HILL

Rumor That Pennsylvania Power Co. Is Buying Land Below Wrightsville

Wrightsville, Pa., May 6.—Rumors that the Pennsylvania Power Company, which operates the McCall Ferry power plant, has plans to erect another dam at Turkey Hill, five miles south of this borough, has again been set in motion here, as a result of a representative of the concern being in this vicinity buying up real estate along the river front. It is known that considerable frontage has already been purchased by the company, but there is still considerable acreage to be acquired by the company to give it a clear right of way. A prominent owner of land along the river front was approached only recently with an offer to purchase his holdings. No deal has been consummated, however, up to this time. The feasibility of erecting a dam at Turkey Hill is recognized on account of the fall between this borough and that point.
