

JUSTICE HEAD PLANS PROBE OF AIRCRAFT BOARD

House Committee Presses the War Department Officials on Billion Dollar Budget

Washington, May 7. — Attorney General Gregory started to-day to outline plans for the aircraft investigation ordered by President Wilson. He called into conference G. Carroll Todd, his assistant, and Solicitor General Davis, and the three went over the situation.

The Attorney General made it clear that under the President's instructions he would go to the bottom of charges against those connected with the production program, and would welcome assistance from any persons who believe they have information on the subject.

Meanwhile the House Military Committee, subjected War Department officials to a close examination at a conference in which the Administration's request for a billion-dollar aircraft appropriation was taken up.

Secretary Baker, J. D. Ryan, in charge of production; Major-General March, acting chief of staff; Major-General Squier, chief signal officer, and other officers were present at the conference.

Senate Will Probe, Too Chairman Chamberlain, of the Senate Military Committee, announced in the Senate to-day that with the support of the Senate his committee would investigate the aircraft situation with a view of determining how and where the money appropriated for that purpose had been spent.

Senator Chamberlain declared his committee proposed to "put its finger on men responsible" for conditions in aircraft production and added "the committee doesn't propose to engage in any whitewashing process, either."

In response to a question, Senator Chamberlain unreservedly declared not one American-built battleship had yet been sent to Europe, although materials in large quantities had been shipped abroad for assembly.

War-Time Cookery Appeals to Women [Continued from First Page.] fested in the announcement by Mrs. Vaughn that the large white Hooster kitchen cabinet which she is using in her model kitchen will be presented to some Harrisburg housekeeper during the week. The presentation has been made possible through the courtesy of Robert & Co.

There isn't a woman in Harrisburg who can afford to miss the opportunity which the Telegraph is offering them this week in the instructive lessons on war cookery given by Mrs. Vaughn and it is the patriotic duty of every woman to attend. There is no cost whatever and no admission card is necessary. The program starts each afternoon at 2 o'clock and the Telegraph cordially invites every woman in Harrisburg and vicinity to attend.

The following Aeolian-Vocalion concert has been arranged for tomorrow: "American Fantasie" (concert band), Herbert; "Sweet Little Buttercup," Bryan-Paley; "In San Domingo" (Peerless Quartet), Ted Snyder; "It's a Long Way to Berlin, But We'll Get There," Fields-Platow; "I May Be Gone For a Long, Long Time," Brown-Von Tizler; "The Star Spangled Banner."

UNREST STIRS REVOLT PULSE OF AUSTRIANS

Suspension of Parliament Is Looked Upon as Return to Absolutism

Berne, Switzerland, May 7.—Labor and Socialist organizations in Austria threaten revolt against the government action in suspending Parliament. Swiss newspapers print a telegram from Vienna quoting the Sozial Demokratische Korrespondenz to the effect that a committee of the Socialist party and a committee of the German Socialist deputies club have been said to issue a manifesto to the workmen in regard to the government action in which the following declaration will be made:

"If absolutism is re-established out of regard for pan-Germanism which is prolonging the war, the working classes will be forced to fight for their rights." The manifesto concludes by exhorting the workers to hold themselves ready to fight if necessary.

COMMISSIONER GROSS GETS SOUVENIR FROM FRANCE City Commissioner E. Z. Gross to-day exhibited in Council a souvenir vase sent to relatives in the city by his son, Lieutenant Henry M. Gross, who is with the Lafayette Flying Corps in France. The vase is made from a case of one of the French "75," or three-inch shells. In addition to other decorations, the initials A. E. F. have been wrought in the vase. The vase was made by a wounded French soldier.

LIBERTY LOAN IS $2,000,000 OVER [Continued from First Page.] quotas by almost one-third their allotment, are Dauphin, Perry, Juniata, Cumberland, not including Shipensburg in the last named county. Harrisburg subscribed $3,710,900. Its quota was $3,500,000. Of the amount raised, $3,347,900 was subscribed through the various banks, and $363,000 through the railroads. The subscriptions reported by the banks include the subscriptions secured by the various campaign workers during the intensive campaign in the city.

Steelton is credited with $726,000. Steelton's quota was $400,000. Counties Do Good Work The county outside of Steelton and Harrisburg reports subscriptions amounting to $50,000. This raises the entire Dauphin county total to $5,210,900. Its quota was $4,800,000. There are a number of banks in the small counties of Perry and Juniata which have not completed their returns, so that the total will be raised by a few hundred thousands to-morrow. In addition, $20,000 was reported by the railroads.

Cumberland county is the only county which has not yet submitted complete returns. Its total to date shows subscriptions of $1,300,000, with a quota of $1,000,000. It has promised additional $200,000. Perry county has surpassed the expectations of the Liberty Loan officials. With a quota of $400,000 to raise, the officials of the county promised $500,000 and to-day reported $578,200.

Juniata county in the last week of the campaign raised $200,000, which is more than it raised during the entire preceding period of the drive. Juniata county raised $388,150, with a quota of $300,000, one week ago last Saturday night the county reported subscriptions amounting to $190,000, and raised the remainder the last week of the drive.

The Totals In addition to the above amounts reported through the banks, the amounts raised by the railroad employees of the four counties are: Dauphin $200,000; Cumberland $7,000; Juniata $25,000; Perry $49,000.

The reports of the banks in the city follow: Allison Hill Trust Co. $52,500; Camp Curtin Trust Co. 151,000; Central Trust Co. 170,000; Citizens Bank 47,450; Commercial Trust Co. 30,000; Commonwealth Trust Co. 380,000; Dauphin Deposit Trust Co. 850,000; East End Bank 12,000; First National Bank 495,000; Harrisburg National 150,000; Harrisburg Trust Co. 300,000; Keystone Bank 25,000; Mechanics Trust Co. 175,000; Merchants National Bank 107,000; Security Trust Co. 88,700; Union Trust Co. 245,000; State Capitol 49,000; Loan Association 40,000; Railroads 363,000.

Total $3,710,900. Any persons imagined at the beginning of the recent Liberty Loan campaign that Perry and Juniata counties were not going to "come through" with their respective quotas certainly had a wrong "slant" at the two counties.

Perry county's quota was $400,000—and P. F. Duncan, of Dunncannon, last night reported $578,200, with the county still going strong.

The Perry county towns bought bonds in this manner: Blain, $45,200; New Bloomfield, $100,000; Dunncannon, $108,000; Landisburg, $40,000; Marysville, $48,850; Millerstown, $40,000; Newport, $106,000; Liverpool, $26,150.

Millersburg Buys Heavily Millersburg's bond purchases were secured through the following institutions: First National bank, $92,150; Millersburg bank, $50,000; P. R. R., $5,000; Harrisburg Trust Company, $5,000.

Steelton Has Many Buyers Steelton last night had a total of $600,000 Liberty Loan which represented 7,429 individual subscriptions. This, say the Liberty Loan officials, is a marvelous showing, but it does not include everything, such as much as it represents only the purchases through Steelton National Bank and Steelton Trust Company.

Hershey Does Well Returns from Hershey this morning show that the town has bought $410,000 worth of bonds. In all the Liberty Loan campaigns Hershey has done remarkably well.

Lykens and Wiconisco are down on the books for $117,600 worth of bonds, representing $117,600 purchasers, bought $160,000 bonds.

Penbrook, with 961 buyers, purchased bonds worth $82,400.

FLYING WITH SHAFFER HUNTING BOCHES IN THE AIR

LETTERS FROM A DAUPHIN BOY TO HIS MOTHER

Somewhere in France, March 14, 1918. Dear Mother: Am sorry to say that those wretched Xmas boxes have not showed up yet. I have nearly given up hope of even getting them—and I do want that camera so badly, for your sake more than mine. As I received my two-wing badge from the French authorities, so now I have some official proof that I am an aviator. Having the Lafayette Flying Corps badge also, I'm pretty well decorated up.

The other day several Americans came by in a motorcycle with a side car, and stopping to look around the place, were much interested, and were so thankful they took two of us for a ride to the Lafayette escadrille headquarters. We just got there in time for tea, (they seemed to have acquired the habit) and asked us to sit in, of course. Considering how we looked, it being an impromptu trip and us tearing all old duds on, they showed a real democratic spirit, for they were captains and lieutenants, all dolled up in the American uniform. However, I did enjoy that unexpected lunch, for they actually had granulated sugar—and all one wanted, and white bread also, something I had not seen in eight months—let alone tasted. Even the thought was poor payment for their hospitality, for I confess I had a wild desire to swipe a loaf of that bread. They also had cream—not condensed either—if one wished it in his tea. That made three surprises in one day, which were quite enough for any aviator.

Daylight Saving Yesterday we jumped ahead of the rest of the world again one hour. In this way we kept flying regular pass time to set the clock ahead an hour every once in a while, as far as I can see the idea seems to be to have the sun shining now at 7 P. M., and by judging the clock they succeed pretty well in making "old sol" keep regular hours.

Spring Fever Am feeling rather downhearted tonight, for I have been loafing for over a month now, and am still loafing, since I busted my "Zang" the other day after about six rides in it. Now I am awaiting orders to leave for Paris to get a new one, but the orders have not come yet, and I am becoming very impatient. My roommate, Putman, was in a fight today—the first with a Morane and I am anxious to get at the Hun myself. This inaction is awful!

Spring Fever (Continued) Spring has certainly arrived here lately and naturally, the spring fever also, for the sun has been shining brightly for a whole week. I am trying to kid myself that the weather has forgotten how to weep, but it is like a woman—one never can tell when the next flood will begin. Don't get the idea I am tiring of "cherchant" the Boche, because I am not. Rather, I am becoming heartily sick of waiting around for the chance. After bothering the Captain everyday about a "zing", and even asking for the use of his private Neuport, which he gave me permission to fly, but not to fight in, he finally gave another American and the use of one "zing" a morane whose owner was on permission, and tossing a cent to see who would first, I won, and went jubilantly off to round up my mechanic to put my instruments on, for 'wo lieutenant and I were going hunting at 5 P. M. and I wanted to be ready. We chose this time because there seem to be no Boche owing to the "cool of the evening," as was proven by my roommate Putman, who brought two down in two successive days at that hour, and since we were not going to fly until late, a famous painter asked permission to paint a picture of the Morane of the lieutenant, which was duly granted.

That boy sure could paint and I stood enraptured behind him, watching the picture appear with swift, deft strokes of brush and pencil. The day before I had watched him paint the picture of a Neuport in the same sure, swift way. At 5 P. M. finally arrived, and we were away, but no sooner had I begun following my lieutenant than I noticed some oil was leaking from a tube nearby. It was leaking very slowly, I knew on going, for I had not been in the air for so long that I would have stayed aloft with more trouble than that. We were soon at the lines and climbing higher, something I did not like, for above 4,000 meters my motor worked badly, so I came down lower, still staying with my lieutenant, but away below him. In this way we kept flying back and forth just over the lines, sometimes being shot at, but the twilight seemed to disturb their judgment, because all the shots fell far short.

Twice I saw white shrapnel breaking over the lines, which is generally an indication of a Boche, but I strain my eyes as I would, I could not find the Hun. It was 6:30 P. M. and getting rather dark, but I still kept flying up and down the lines, although the lieutenant had left for some time before in the hopes of seeing something.

Being all by my lonesome, I naturally kept a sharp lookout all around. Once a big plane dove in sight behind and over me, but it proved to be a French plane, and something I saw far below, one of the famous French acrobats chasing something down at a terrific speed, but I could not see what he was chasing—I hope you have not become all "net up" by this time, for you will be disappointed if you expect the climax to be a "mort" Boche, for I finally had to give up on account of darkness and come back to roost. I made another awful landing, but stayed right side up this time and did not break anything, my roommate, Putman met me with a beautiful "balling out" as I climbed out of my seat, first for making a bad landing, and for staying over the lines so far.

It seems the lieutenant had come down and to the inquiries as to where I had had replied that he had left me a mile on the other side of the lines, flying at the suicidal altitude of 1,500 meters. As Putman put it, "I was afraid I would have to make another trip to Paris" (Winter, an American was killed some time ago here, and he arranged his affairs in Paris, which called forth the above remark.) I think it was more relief than anything else that made him call me down so.

However, the lieutenant had not told him the story quite right for I was flying at 3,000 meters and was right over the lines most of the time. But I had not luck, and my machine gun was working all right for I may go out tomorrow again, if the motor runs well, I certainly hope so.

Today being Sunday, the usual crowd went around to gaze and admire our pretty birds. Some American soldiers came out also, and one of them said he would give me 50 francs if I would arrange to get him a ride. It was soon arranged with one of the big, clumsy zings, which pull a target after them for other zings to shoot at, and he had the thrill of his life—and I 50 francs for he was as good as his word.

There seemed to be a number of "chickens" abroad to-day also, some of them pretty enough to make me wish I was dressed up instead of being in sweater and trousers, the latter needing a "window" closed in the back. But sewing is an awful bother, even when one has the time, for the second time since I came to France, I beheld the French "chickens" actually in the natural, who are painted so beautifully and daintily in the magazines.

The rabbit has hatched again, or would one say laid?—anyway, the family is there, and I am trying to remember now how long it requires a rabbit to grow to eatable size, for with the present vegetables in use here it requires SOME cook to make them appetizing. However, he fills the bill pretty well, for he can disguise turnips so that even I can't recognize them—and believe me! that's going some. As for cabbage and carrots, he bakes it, he cooks it, he mixes it with meat and everything else but sauerkraut, and what we don't eat, goes to the rabbits—or in next day's soup.

You have no doubt heard of the many raids on Paris lately, well, the Boches generally pass near here on their way in, and from the way the keys keep booming away at them, they way must be wild and bumpy. Only last night they attacked Epernay, near here, and there sure was some racket for a while. One of the planes must have gotten lost, for he was sailing around above our camp at a very low altitude. We could even see his lights, so low was he. Searchlights played around the sky, but unfortunately did not reveal him. For my part, I don't know how they found their way at all, even with a compass, for the moon and stars were hidden by masses of black clouds. No, I have never flown at night, and I certainly have a lot of respect for the man who does, for it takes both brain and nerve. It's hard enough sometimes in the daytime; but at night, the chances are doubled.

No Xmas packages yet. WALTER.

Press Urges German Navy to Deal With Bold Antagonist London, May 7.—That the recent British attack on the German submarine base at Zebrugga was successful is admitted by the Frankfurter Zeitung in commenting upon the affair. The newspaper urges that there is no reason why they should not achieve a similar feat at other times. It, therefore, behooves our navy command to be alert for the remarkable boldness.

However unpleasant it may be, we must frankly admit that the enemy ships actually entered the port of Zebrugga. That being so, there is no reason why they should not achieve a similar feat at other times. It, therefore, behooves our navy command to be alert for the remarkable boldness.
